CONTRACTOR SHOT BY ROBBER IN SALOON HOLDUP

George Cook Stoops as if Looking for Weapon on Floor and the "Lookout" at Door Fires.

SON, 16, AT TABLE, WITNESSES SHOOTING

Trio Flees From 7031 Manchester Av. With $75 From Cash Register, Dropping $25 in Escape.

George Cook, 39 years old, a grading contractor, of 2854 St. Vincent avenue, was shot in the back and dangerously wounded last night when he lowered his hands and stooped to find a weapon, during a holdup by three robbers in the saloon at 7031 Manchester avenue.

Cook was one of six customers in the saloon shortly after 10 p. m., when the robbers entered—two by the front door and one by a side door—with drawn revolvers. Cook's 16-year-old son, Sylvester, was seated at the table, and the saloonkeeper, Michael Gioia, was sitting behind the bar, tuning a radio. Gioia did not see the robbers until one stepped behind the bar, and the command, "Stick 'em up," was shouted.

All hands were raised, including Cook's. One robber remained at each door and the third walked to the cash register. He was shoving bills into his pockets when Cook, standing opposite him at the bar, abruptly lowered his hands and stooped. The robber at the front door fired one shot, the bullet piercing Cook's body.

Then the three fled hurriedly with $75, scattering about $25 in bills on the floor. Cook, accompanied by his son, was taken to City Hospital. The witnesses said the robbers were between 20 and 25 years old and wore overcoats with collars turned up to hide their faces.

Six Foot, Six Robber Invades Store and Gets $450 and Rings.

A robber, six feet, six inches tall, who said he was from Oklahoma, that he was "hard and tough and didn't care how many people he killed," got $450, five rings and two watches in the shoe store of Samuel Rosenthal, 236 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, at 9:30 o'clock last night.

The robber walked into the store and chose a pair of shoes, size 12, which he put on. In the store were Rosenthal, a clerk, and four customers. The "purchaser" of the size 12 shoes then walked to the front of the store, pulled down the shade and pulled a revolver from his pocket.

He then forced everyone behind a partition. Then he took $435 from the cash register, $15 and a diamond ring from Rosenthal — Rosenthal values the ring at $1000 —four rings from a woman customer and watches from two men. Then he ran away.

Rosenthal left the store to report the robbery to the police. When he returned an hour later he discovered his coupe, which had been parked in front of the store, was missing. Rosenthal thinks the holdup man also took that.

Boy With Rusty Pistol Holds Up Two Women in Store.

A youth, who appeared to be about 16 years old, armed with a small, rusty revolver, held up Mrs. Lillian Beck and her sister, Miss Frances Burock, in Mrs. Beck's notion store at 5729 Easton avenue at 6 o'clock last night. He escaped with $75 obtained from the cash register, and a diamond ring valued at $400 which Mrs. Beck took from her finger at his command.

Charles Troys, 2630 Newport avenue, was robbed of $15 near his home by two men, one of whom struck him on the head with a revolver.

OTTAWA GREETS PRINCE GEORGE

King's Youngest Son Expects to Be Home for Christmas.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ontario, Dec. 4.—Prince George, youngest son of King George, arrived in Ottawa today to spend the week-end with Governor-General and Lady Willingdon, before leaving for England, where he is desirous of passing the Christmas holidays. The young sailor-Prince, who will be 24 Dec. 20, has just returned from naval duty in China.

The Prince was entertained at Government House today and tonight. A dance for 200 of Ottawa's young people was given in his honor. Tomorrow there will be a luncheon at Government House, to which representatives of the official life of the capital have been invited, and at noon the Prince will leave for St. Johns to catch his ship.

Church League Formed To Uplift the Drama

Federal Council of Churches Leads Non-Sectarian Movement—Movies Already Influenced by It.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Organization of the Church and Drama Association, through which Protestants, Catholics and Jews may join hands in an effort to turn the influence of stage and screen into spiritual and cultural channels, was announced today by the Committee on Drama of the Federal Council of Churches. The aim of the association is stated as follows:

"Recognizing the power of drama to influence human ideals and conduct, we believe it to be not only our obligation but our privilege to work for a wider appreciation and support of dramatic art as a creative force and to seek its employment for educational ends and the pursuit of social and spiritual culture."

In making the announcement the Protestant drama committee made public an abstract of an address to be delivered by its chairman, Dr. George Reid Andrews at the meeting of the executive committee of the Federal Council next Wednesday in Minneapolis.

Dr. Andrews will tell of results already obtained in the theatrical world by his committee, including prevention—by co-operation with motion picture interests—of unfair representation of Protestant churches and caricatures of Protestant pastors on the screen.

"The charge has been made," his address reads, "that Protestantism is unfairly represented on the screen. This charge is not without foundation when one considers the past, but the chairman of the drama committee is working effectively to secure respectful treatment of all things pertaining to the ministry."

Dr. Andrews cites as an instance of co-operation between his committee and theatrical interests one Broadway motion picture which included a scene described as "unfortunate if not sacrilegious." The committee was asked to view the picture, decided it ought to be changed, and "notwithstanding the fact that the picture as made was breaking records in financial returns, without question the company changed the picture so as to eliminate the objectionable features."

PIRATE SHIP NEAR MIAMI

American Patrol Boats Seek Motorboat in Colonial Waters.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—Two fast patrol boats, the GG-294 and the GG-297, have been sent into British colonial waters near Gun Cay, 50 miles east of Miami, to search for a vessel said to have committed acts of piracy. The United States vessels were dispatched hurriedly last night on orders from Washington, which were said to have resulted from a plea made by British officials.

The vessel sought is said to be a 150-foot motorboat painted dull gray to resemble the coast guard ships and to use the French flag occasionally. Details of its actions were not reported here.

WOMAN HELD ADMITS PASSING BAD CHECKS

Mrs. Viola Markel Forged Name of Alton Woman in Whose Home She Worked.

Police of the Carr Street Station yesterday put an end to plans for a winter sojourn in Hot Springs, Ark., which was to be financed with forged checks by Mrs. Viola Markel, 21 years old.

Mrs. Markel was arrested at the Gately Clothing Co., 520A Washington avenue, when she offered a check for $25.50 for a purchase and waited for the change in cash. The check was drawn on the Alton National Bank and was signed with the name of Mrs. Edith F. Giberson, by whom Mrs. Markel has recently been employed as a housemaid at Alton, Ill.

At the Carr Street Station Mrs. Markel told Capt. Nally that she took three blank checks from the check book of Mrs. Giberson yesterday morning and took along Mrs. Giberson's gold fountain pen with which to fill them out on her way to Hot Springs.

Encouraged by her success at the Leader department store of Alton, where the name of Mrs. Giberson was known, and where she had no difficulty in cashing a check for $20.50, she came to St. Louis on her way South. She planned to fill out the remaining check for additional expenses later, she told police. In her handbag were also found two maid's uniforms belonging to Mrs. Giberson.

Mrs. Markel waived extradition and was returned to Alton by police last night.

LACK OF ORDINANCE HAMPERS PLAN TO RELIEVE CONGESTION

Chief Gerk Says He Cannot Close Lower Washington Avenue to Parking.

Elimination of automobile parking all day on Washington avenue, between Third street and Twelfth boulevard, from now until Christmas, to relieve the congestion incident to holiday shopping, was suggested by Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks in a letter to Chief of Police Gerk yesterday.

There is no ordinance authority for this and no time to obtain it, but Director Brooks thought it could be handled as a matter of police regulation. Chief Gerk approved the purpose, but said he was powerless to act under the circumstances, suggesting an order from Brooks might accomplish it. Brooks will discuss the matter further with the Chief. The Traffic Council has been shorn of its power.

Mail Order House Reports King James Version Is Favorite.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The Bible is still the world's best seller.

A comparison at a mail order house here with the kind and number of books sold, discloses that more thna 150,000 Bibles have been dispatched this year to all parts of the world, a generous proportion going to missionaries in foreign countries. Purchasers in country areas will not tolerate innovations in Bibles. They are satisfied and demand plain black leather binding and easily readable type, and most all want the King James version.

CONGRESS OPENS TOMORROW FOR 3-MONTH SESSION

Senator Simmons Urges Republicans to Unite With Democrats in Obtaining Tax Reduction.

GENEVA TREATY IS EARLY ON PROGRAM

President's Message to Be Read Tuesday—Insurgent Problem Worries G. O. P. Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—To all intents and purposes, Congress had assembled tonight for a three-month session, although the formality of banging the gavel ending a five-month recess will not take place until Monday at noon.

The Senators and Representatives are nearly all here; they have been doing the things that are most necessary to get through the legislative program for several days in private and unofficial conferences outside the legislative chambers, in restaurants, in offices and elsewhere.

Tomorrow will bring in some tardy members, and some will come in even on Monday morning, but so far as the activities of the capital are concerned, the session is officially on.

Thrusting aside vexatious problems, such as taxation, insurgents, radio control and others, the Republican leadership looked far enough ahead today to map out a program for a week ahead, for the House at least.

Business to Be Keynote.

Business will be the keynote, after an early adjournment Monday and Tuesday out of respect for members who have died during the recess. President Coolidge's messages are expected to be read Tuesday, and most of the remainder of the week will be given to a consideration of the treasury-postoffice appropriation bill.

The Senate, where rules of procedure are not so applicable to restriction of the sphere of activity, will appoint its usual committee Monday, to accompany a similar delegation from the House to notify the President that Congress has assembled; will hear the President's messages early in the week, administer the oath of office to one or two Senators, and then be open to whatever business is decided upon.

One of the first things expected is the bringing up of the Geneva Treaty prohibiting the use of poison gas, which is favored by Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee and the State Department. And which is being opposed vigorously by the American Legion and others.

Urges Tax Reduction.

Prohibition enforcement bills; modification bills, coal strike bills, and bills affecting every interest of American life will pour into both houses in the meantime.

With the nation's legislators assembled, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who is ranking Democratic member of the Senate Finance Committee, tonight seized the opportunity to issue a statement urging Republicans to join with the Democrats in making "the reasonable reduction in internal revenue taxes which the constantly mounting and now gigantic surplus in the Treasury fully warrants."

The statement which, the Senator said, was indorsed by Representative Garner, ranking Democrat of the House Ways and Means Committee, the tax originating body of Congress, is expected to fall on unenthusiastic ears, inasmuch as Republican leaders of all shades have shown an inclination to consider new tax revision legislation, some of them even looking coldly on administration suggestions for a credit on income tax payments.

Insurgents a Problem.

A Democratic tax bill to reduce tax payments by $350,000,000 will be offered in the House Thursday. Whether it will be met with a Republican tax-credit measure is not certain, because Republicans are not at all certain as to their course.

In addition to its worries over trying to put a mass of legislation through a small legislative funnel, the Republican leadership is faced with the problem of dealing with the insurgents whose prestige has grown amazingly since the November election, and the consequent reduction of the majorities of the nominal controlling party. Steps already have been taken in the Senate to bring harmony into the ranks, and in the House, the insurgent situation which has rested quietly since the Wisconsin dele-

AMERICAN WIDOW IN PARIS, ONCE WEALTHY, KILLS SELF

Death of Mrs. De Guise-Hite, Known as "The Duchess," Reported by Consulate.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Mrs. Mary de Guise-Hite, once a wealthy American widow, is reported by the United States Consulate to have killed herself on Thanksgiving day, due to despondency over poverty.

Born in Cleveland, she was first married to George Harbaugh, a millionaire by repute, De Guise, from whom she was separated, is said to be English.

Dispatches from Paris in July, 1921, told of an attempt by Mrs. de Guise-Hite and her son, George Harbaugh, to end their lives. She was said to have taken poison in her apartment, and young Harbaugh, then 24 years old, cut several of his veins. The mother recovered, but the son died. This episode was said to have followed losses in speculation. Mrs. de Guise-Hite was prominent in the social life of the American colony which knew her as "the Duchess."

CHARGES AMUNDSEN AND ELLSWORTH BROKE CONTRACT

Norwegian Aero Club Replies to Cabled Resignation of Explorer and American Aid.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1926.

OSLO, Dec. 4.—The Norwegian Aero Club has issued a lengthy statement in reply to the cablegram from Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth, in which the Polar explorers resigned from honorary membership in the club. The statement charges Amundsen and Ellsworth with various instances of breach of contract.

Amundsen is charged with having refused to give his services upon arrival at Nome for which he had contracted and also had refused to give lectures in America for which he had contracted. Finally he is alleged to have refused to permit Col. Nobile, the Italian commander to the Norge, to keep on the writing of a book on the flight.

Amundsen, the club charges, now has published a Polar book as a private enterprise and disregarding the Aero Club protest, took a copy of the Polar file behind the club's back to be used during his American lecture tour.

The Queen crossed Rumania from west to east but few people gathered at stations to meet her train. This was in sharp contrast to the enthusiasm which followed her progress across the United States.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Arch Selwyn cabled his New York office from Paris today that he expected to complete arrangements shortly whereby Queen Marie would make her screen debut under his management. The picture would be made in Rumania.

DEPLORES AMERICAN DRAMA

More Playhouses Than Playwrights in U. S., London Manager Finds.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — The American stage has fallen upon evil days, in the opinion of Sir Alfred Butt, managing director of the Druhy Lane Theater in London. He is on his way home, after viewing stage successes, in the hope of finding something worthy of presentation in England. Before sailing, he expressed the opinion that the paucity of good plays in America was because America had more playhouses than playwrights.

INQUEST DISCLOSES CLARA OLSON WAS CLUBBED TO DEATH

Contents of Water-Soaked Note From Sweetheart, Found in Wisconsin Girl's Dress, Are Withheld.

WITNESSES WILL BE QUESTIONED FIRST

Letter From College Boy Sought on Murder Charge Declared "Different From What Was Expected."

By the Associated Press.

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis., Dec. 4.—Clara Olson was clubbed to death, physicians testified today at a Coroner's inquest after an autopsy over her body, found Thursday in a hillside grave near the home of her missing sweetheart, Erdman Olson, 18 years old.

A water-soaked letter found today in the girl's dress was the last message to her from her missing sweetheart and is of a "sensational nature," District Attorney G. S. Earll said tonight.

"It was the last letter from Erdman Olson to Clara," said Earll. "It is so different from what was generally expected that we cannot make its contents public until we have questioned certain witnesses.

"We want them to tell the same stories they would have told if the letter had not been found, and they would change their stories if they knew what was in the letter."

The letter was delivered to Clara Olson on Sept. 9, a few hours before she disappeared, and is said by the district attorney to have contained his request that she flee with him.

Four pathologists, including Dr. Charles H. Bunting of the University of Wisconsin, agreed that one or more blows killed the girl, and that they were struck from behind.

Thinks Several Blows Were Struck.

"A series of fractures were found on the left side of the skull at the autopsy," Dr. Bunting reported to the Coroner's jury. The whole side of the head had been crushed in by a blow or blows administered in the region of the left ear.

He said he found no pathological conditions of the body which would have resulted in death.

"Could the fractures have resulted from a fall from a great height?" District Attorney Earll inquired of Dr. Bunting.

"It would have to be from a great height," answered Bunting. "If she fell from the sixth or seventh story of a building squarely upon that side of her head, she might sustain such fractures, but not by a fall from a hill or a cliff."

The body was covered with a coat, a red sweater, a silk dress, under garments, stockings, shoes and rubbers. A broken string of pearls and a ring were found.

Empty Purse in Dress.

The dress, according to Dr. C. A. Armstrong, who aided in the autopsy, contained an empty purse and a small bottle to hold perfume.

Dr. F. J. Antoine testified that the girl's right hand was folded across her chest. The viscera is to be examined further, but all four physicians agreed the girl died from clubbing.

Death was almost instantaneous, Bunting concluded.

Had the girl lived, the doctors testified, she would have become a mother of a baby girl, soon after Christmas.

The coroner's jury is composed of John Peacock, a pearl buyer; Henry Otto, an insurance man; Roy Sheckler, an undertaker; Tom Gander, register of deeds; Ed Mc Closkey, a merchant, and Leo Lapointe, a butcher.

The jury will resume its investigation Monday morning at the Courthouse to hear testimony concerning Clara and Erdman Olson from neighbors of the girl, and several persons at the dance Olson is said to have attended the night the girl vanished, a hired man for the boy's father and several of the posse which discovered the girl's body.

The Olson families are not related.

The unclaimed body of a suicide in a morgue at Chicago became a focal point today in the search for the boy who wrote in a farewell letter to his parents that "I would rather take death than captivity," but the body later was identified as that of a University of Chicago student, by his father.

Investigation also turned to Great Falls, Mont., for a clew, through disclosure that relatives there recently had transmitted to Erdman's family a communication which it was thought might have

100 SHIPS ICE-BOUND IN THE GREAT LAKES

World's Largest Crusher Goes to Rescue in Worst Blockade in History.

By the Associated Press.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 4.—The long line of lake cargo carriers caught in the worst ship blockade in the history of the upper lakes still is ice-bound in St. Mary's River tonight. Prospects for their release appeared brighter, however, with the arrival of the big car ferry St. Marie from St. Ignace. The St. Marie, most powerful ice crusher in the world, is working her way slowly up to the head of the blockade.

The blockade has lasted four days, and increases as additional freighters arrive for passage through the locks that connect Lakes Huron and Superior. In single file, the 100 freighters extend in a line reaching for miles around Neebish Island. Of these vessels, 55 are down-bound with cargoes aggregating 13,800,000 bsuhels of grain. The remainder are upbound, some with cargoes of coal.

The temperature today went to 12 below zero and ice that floated from Haylake into the two Neebish channels packed into a virtually solid mass. There was more concern tonight for the safety of the vessels than for the 2000 sailors comprisings the crews of the ice-locked freighters. It was pointed out that the safety of the men was assured whether the ice breakers get through or not, while a further solidification of the ice will make more difficult the work of releasing the vessels, it will make it possible for the crews to walk ashore. The same factor lessened concern for the food supplies.

Work of releasing the steamers Thomas Maytham and City of Bangor, which went on the rocks off Keweenaw Peninsula several days ago, was hampered by a new storm. It was 20 degrees below zero. The City of Bangor is valued at $1,000,000. It has a cargo of automobiles valued at $250,000.

AUSTRIA SEEKS RETURN FROM U. S. OF EX-MINISTER WHO FLED

Jacob Ahrer Involved in Scandal Over Loan of Public Funds Said to Be in America.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1926.

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—Chancellor Seipel of Austria, Foreign Minister, cabled the Austrian Minister at Washington to try to compel former Finance Minister Jacob Ahrer to return to Austria to testify before a Parliamentary Committee as to a loan made during Ahrer's term of office, to the Vienna banker, Siegmund Bosel, by the Austrian Postal Savings Bank.

This loan resulted in enormous losses to the State and caused a financial scandal which for Austria is more important than was the Teapot Dome scandal in the United States.

When Seipel resumed the chancellorship and began cleaning house, Ahrer left the country and is thought to have gone to America.

PROSECUTION WILL ATTACK 'PATRIOTISM' OF OIL LEASE

Will Introduce Four-Power Naval Arms Treaty to Discredit Plea Made for Fall and Doheny.

PLAN TO SUMMON HUGHES TO STAND

Pearl Harbor Work Was Not Let Until After Pact Assuring Peace in the Pacific Took Effect.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—As an answer to the "Yellow Peril" scare with which the defense attempts to justify the leasing of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve to Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, by Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, in 1922, the prosecution expects within a few days to introduce a copy of the Four-Power Pacific treaty of the Washington disarmament conference as evidence in the criminal trial of Fall and Doheny, charged with conspiring to defraud the United States on the lease.

In addition, Special Prosecutors Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene are considering whether to call Charles Evans Hughes, who was Secretary of State during the period in which the defense contends official information was received of an impending attack on the United States by Japan. They are confident that Hughes would blow the "Yellow Peril" theory sky high.

Defense Pleads Patriotism.

The plea offered in behalf of Fall and Doheny is that Fall decided to lease the reserve, and Doheny consented to bid for it, only after they had been informed of the Japanese menace, and only after Capt. (then Rear-Admiral) John K. Robison of the Navy had impressed upon Doheny that the construction of fuel storage tanks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, as provided for in the contract, was vital to an adequate defense of the Pacific Coast.

Although Doheny protests now that patriotism was his motive, and asserted then that he would refuse to make a cent of profit on the contract, he did make a profit of $971,000 on the contract.

In addition, the contract contained the famous "preferential right" clause, under which Fall afterward secretly leased to Doheny the entire reserve, a transaction out of which Doheny has testified he expected to make a profit of $100,000,000.

Significance of the Treaty.

The significance of the Four-Power treaty in this case is quickly apparent from a study of dates.

The defense alleges it was in December, 1921, that news of the impending Japanese attack was received. At this time the Washington disarmament conference was in session, and Premier Kato of Japan was here negotiating, with Secretary Hughes and other diplomats, the terms of the Four-Power treaty. The treaty, under which the United States, Japan, Great Britain and France, became allies in the maintenance of peace in the Pacific, was signed before Christmas.

It was ratified by the United States Senate, and became effective March 24, 1922—more than a month before Doheny received the Pearl Harbor contract. In the light of that circumstance, the award of the Pearl Harbor contract as a defensive move against Japan, appears somewhat like locking the stable door after the horse has been placed in a bank vault.

Robison Tells Story on Stand.

What Robison confided to Doheny, in convincing him it was his patriotic duty to bid on the Pearl Harbor contract, was related on the witness stand today by Robison, after Justice Adolph Hoehling had overruled his protest that he would be divulging military and diplomatic secrets.

Robison is a large man, with florid cheeks, fair hair, and an over-impressive manner of speech. As a result of his connection with the oil leases, he was not promoted, and has since gone on the retired list. His attitude is that of the stern seadog who did his best to save the country, and was thwarted by politicians. He bore a reputation in the navy for being somewhat eccentric.

Scowling fiercely and speaking in measured and portentous tones, he repeated the conversation which

SUGGESTS INQUIRY BY LEGISLATURE IN HALL-MILLS CASE

Senator Simpson in Letter to Governor Denounces "Flagrant Activity of Politicians."

FAVORS EMBALMING DEAD JERSEY JUSTICE

All Charges Against Mrs. Hall and Brothers Are Dropped Following Acquittal—Cousin Freed.

By the Associated Press.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 4.—A request for a Legislative investigation of conditions surrounding the Hall-Mills trial is contemplated by State Senator Alexander Simpson, he announced in Jersey City today after resigning as Assistant Attorney-General in which capacity he appeared as special prosecutor.

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her two brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens were released from custody today upon the ordering of a nolle prosequi of all indictments against them as well as against their cousin, Henry de la Bruyere Carpender, who was not brought to trial.

A jury yesterday after five hours' deliberation acquitted Mrs. Hall and Henry and Willie Stevens of the murder of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, a choir singer killed with the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall Sept. 14, 1922.

All Charges Dropped.

Attorney - General Katzenbach made the motion for a nolle prosequi of the remaining indictments charging them with Hall's murder. He explained the State considered there was no hope of getting convictions. He pointed out, however, that if any additional evidence should be discovered, the dismissal of the indictments would be no bar to future prosecution.

Gov. Moore in a statement said: "To attempt to retry the defendants on another indictment would be entirely unwarranted and uncalled-for. I shall not permit a prosecution to become a persecution."

Senator Simpson, implying that Jersey justice was dead, suggested that it be embalmed, in a letter to Gov. Moore.

Simpson's Letter.

The letter says in part:

"As I have finished the first trial of the Somerset murders I feel I have neglected my private practice long enough. My clients are entitled to some attention. I therefore desire to withdraw as Assistant Attorney-General from the further prosecution of the murders aforesaid.

"I think, however, it would be a serious attack on the administration of justice if there were any cessation in the prosecution, especially after the conditions in Somerset County which suurounded the obtaining of the indictments in this case. Any withdrawal on the part of the State with the evidence in its possession already made public at this trial, and the flagrant activity of the politicians in Somerset County in this trial, would, it seems to me, reflect seriously upon the administration of justice in the State.

"Embalm Jersey Justice."

"I thank you for giving me the opportunity to serve in the administration of justice. If justice is to be obstrcted by a cessation of further prosecution in these murder cases, due to the verdict obtained under such circumstances, I respectfully suggest to you, as chief executive of the State, that you embalm Jersey justice and send her to the British museum."

James Mills, husband of the murdered choir singer, announced he had employed an attorney. "The defense in its addresses to the jury charged me with the crime," was his explanation.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carpender will go South Monday to a plantation on the Cooper River, 30 miles from Charleston, S. C., where Henry and his brother, Sydney, also of New Brunswick, will shoot ducks.

Some 11,000,000 words were wired to newspapers during the trial, said to be a world's record. The official record contains 1,110,000 words, covering 5500 pages. A total of 178 witneses testified, 102 for the State and 76 for the defense, and total cost of the trial is estimated as high as $1,000,000. The cost to the county is estimated at $100,000 to $300,000.

HELD FOR TRYING TO INTIMIDATE WITNESS

Frank Oefelein Said to Have Urged Holdup Victim to Repudiate Identification.

Frank Oefelein, 21 years old, a shoeworker, living at 4063 Russell boulevard, was arrested yesterday charged with trying to intimidate a witness who had identified his friend, Orval Killian, 18, of 1918 La Salle street, in a Kroger store robbery.

Killian has been in jail under a robbery warrant since Nov. 24, when he was identified by Stanley Carter, manager of the store, at 1901 Park avenue, and his clerk, Lloyd Polen, as one of two men who held them up, taking $284 on Nov. 13.

Last Saturday, Carter told police, a man entered his store, announced he was a friend of Killian and said: "You'd better be careful. That boy has friends in the Cuckoo gang and you'll be bumped off, if you don't change your mind about that identification." The man offered to return part of the stolen money, Carter said, if he would withdraw his identification.

Carter declared he recognized the man as one of the prisoners in a 'line-up" at Soulard station when he picked out Killian. He identified a photograph of Oefelein, who was in that "line-up," and last night repeated his identification.

Oefelein denied the charge, insisting he entered the store with a friend who made a purchase Saturday night, but did not say anything. He is known as an associate of Killian and has been arrested 12 times in two years, as a suspect police say. Killian has been arrested 20 times in two years, the police declare. A warrant against Oefelein will be sought tomorrow.

INQUEST DISCLOSES CLARA OLSON WAS CLUBBED TO DEATH

pertained to his whereabouts. From surrounding states came messages reporting the arrest of suspects.

Four years younger than Clara, Erdman had "kept company" with her for more than a year, but had declined, according to the girl's father, to marry her despite the knowledge that she was about to become a mother.

Detectives employed by Christ Olson hold that the girl was lured by a promise of marriage, taken to a lonely logging road, slain and hastily buried by young Olson.

Boy's Father Denies Charges.

The youth's father, however, maintained that his son had nothing to do with the girl's death, and expressed the belief that the body was placed on Battle Ridge to direct suspicion to the boy.

The boy knew, his parent said, that the wooded plot where the grave was discovered was frequented constantly by hunters and he knew that it was the scene at this season of extensive wood cutting. He could not have hoped, the father insisted, that the body would lie there undiscovered.

Moreover, said the elder Olson, the boy, had he slain the girl and desired to hide the body, could have concealed it in a swamp on the tobacco plantation, described by the father as "the most desolate in Wisconsin."

Completing the circumstantial chain which convinced Olson of his son's innocence, the father reviewed the son's presence on the night of Sept. 9, when Clara disappeared, at a dance at Seneca, a dozen miles from his home, his departure shortly before midnight, and his arrival home at 1:15 a. m.

"He could never have gotten the girl, killed and buried her and driven home after he left the dance and still have reached home a few minutes after one," said Olson. "And if he had, his clothes would have shown it. There was no sign of mud or disarray on his clothes or on the car."

HIGHWAY OFFICER ON MOTOR CYCLE KILLED IN CRASH

Patrolman Walter R. Gandy of Webster Groves Runs Into Truck at Gravois Road and Winnebago St.

While in pursuit of a speeding automobile Motor Cycle aPtrolman Walter R. Gandy of the State Highway Commission was killed yesterday in a head-on collision of his machine and an auto truck in a moment of traffic confusion at Gravois road and Winnebago street.

The impact hurled Patrolman Gandy from his machine, his head striking the pavement with such force that he died a few minutes later while being taken to St. Anthony's Hospital.

The truck, belongnig to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and driven by James W. Duff, 27 years old of 2111 Maury avenue, was westbound on Gravois road, at 12:30 p. m. An automobile driven by Charles Kramer, 42, 3938 Winnebago, was southbound in Winnebago. They met at the intersection and were swerved to avoid hitting each other, the truck to the left and the automobile to the right.

At that moment Patrolman Gandy was on the intersection running east, and crashed into the truck, which had swung wide, beyond the middle of the road.

Motorcycle Patrolman Charles Follen of the St. Louis Department, arrested Duff and Kramer, booking them at Magnolia Avenue Station for the Coroner.

Patrolman Follen, a few minutes before the accident had pursued a speeding Buick car occupied by several men. This car was running east on Gravois and Patrolman Follen set out in pursuit at Chippewa street, but was out-distanced. He turned about after giving up the chase and was running out Gravois when he came upon the accident. He believes Patrolman Gandy was in pursuit of the Buick car when the fatal accident occurred.

Patrolman Gandy was in the St. Louis Police Department, to which he was appointed last February, until Aug. 1, when he resigned to accept the appointment of patrolman for the State Highway Commission. His chief duty was to watch for trucks laden beyond the weight prescribed by law for State highways. He was also required to see that speed laws were observed and had authority to make arrests under a Deputy Sheriff's commission, issued by Sheriff Wilmas at Clayton. He was 29 years old and lived at 122 West Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves.

CONGRESS OPENS TOMORROW FOR 3-MONTH SESSION

gation and a few others were ejected from favored committee positions at the last session, has become a live issue.

Various Discussions Foreseen.

It developed today that friends of Representative Nelson of Wisconsin seek the chairmanship of the Pensions Committee for him, and this has brought to Speaker Longworth and Floor Leader Tilson the question of how to comply with such a request without stirring up trouble in other quarters.

Radio, Muscle Shoals, alien property, farm relief, tax, rivers and harbors, and prohibition discussion is expected to take up most of the time of the session not devoted to appropriation bills, but a variety of foreign relations subjects, such as the Mexican situation, the Lausanne treaty with Turkey, war debts and related questions will furnish material for lengthy debate. In addition, there will be a flood of nominations made by President Coolidge, which must be approved or turned down by the Senate.

The radio control bills on which the Senate and House have deadlocked, promise to be tedious subjects.

LENGLEN ILL, QUITS MATCH

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 4.—Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis champion, left the court at the Coliseum tonight after winning the first set of her exhibition match with Mary K. Browne and collapsed when she reached her dressing room. She was taken to her hotel. C. C. Pyle, troupe manager, said Miss Lenglen was suffering from a cold.

The match with Miss Browne was said to have been the hardest fought of the present tour across the United States and the longest set ever played by Suzanne since she won the World's Championship. Miss Browne, who forced her opponent to play 20 games before yielding the victory, was at one time within two points of winning the contest. The final score of the unfinished match was 11 to 9.

FEDERAL AGENTS INVESTIGATE ACTS OF BIRGER GANG

Illinois Feudist at Harrisburg Says He Told U. S. Officer Here That He Knew About Inquiry.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HARRISBURG, Ill., Dec. 4.—Hope that the Department of Justice may be able to accomplish what the civil authorities of three Illinois counties say they are unable to do, in bringing to a cessation hostilities between the Birger and Shelton gangs, was aroused here today, when it was learned that Department of Justice Agents were investigating the activities of Charlie Birger, leader of one faction.

As is known, Carl, Earl and Bernie Shelton, titular heads of the other gang, were eliminated from the warfare in Williamson, Franklin and Saline counties, due to their arrest by Postoffice Inspectors for the $15,000 Collinsville mail robbery, Jan. 27, 1925. If the Department of Justice is as successful in its investigation of Birger as the Postoffice Inspectors were in their investigation of the Sheltons, both gangs will be without leaders, and it is hoped that warfare will cease.

Birger Phones U. S. Agent.

If the three Illinois counties do obtain peace from the circumstances outlined, entire credit for the solution of the problem will rest with the United States Government. For the officials of each county have declared they are unable to cope with the situation due to depleted county finances and their inability to employ a sufficient number of peace officers. The State of Illinois refused the counties aid, Gov. Small declaring they should find their own solution to the difficulties confronting them.

Birger knows, too, that the Department of Justice is investigating him. "I called up Dowd of the Department of Justice in St. Louis," he told a Post-Dispatch reporter, "and I told him I knew he was investigating me. He said they had a stack of evidence against me and members of my gang that was too big to fit under his arm. I told him that if he or any other Government agent wanted to look over myself or any of my boys they could come down here without fear of molestation."

Birger declared his enemies had given the Government affidavits charging him with the transportation of stolen automobiles from one state to another as well as affidavits charging him with the possession and sale of narcotics. This is entirely likely, since the Shelton gangsters desire revenge on Birger for the information, that Art Newman, former East St. Louis saloon proprietor, one time intimate of the Shelton brothers, but now a henchman of Birger, gave the Government concerning the Shelton brothers' alleged part in the Collinsville mail robbery. Newman is expected to be the Government principal witness at the trial.

Will It Be the End?

It is known, moreover, that the Department of Justice in St. Louis is receiving numerous reports concerning the general situation here. Shortly after the shooting up of the office of United States Marshal Leitch here three weesk ago, a Department of Justice agent was sent into Saline County.

However, many persons here, as well as in Williamson and Franklin Counties, are rather skeptical concerning a permanent cessation of hostilities. The present gang war may be broken up, they admit, but other gangs will take their place. Bombing and machine gunning seem to be peculiar to the atmosphere of the three counties, no matter what the issue or who the participants. First there was the mine massacre at Herrin with unionism as the issue; then there was the Ku Klux Klan issue and now there is the present bloody struggle for the control of graft. Consequently there are many who believe that the bark of the automatic will again be heard after the Shelton-Birger feud is history.

Makes Fat People Slim

New York Physician Perfects Simple and Easy Method of Reducing Weight

Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician, of 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the Doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without unnecessary change of diet of burdensome exercise. He also says that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the Doctor has offered to send, without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when-reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Dept. R

BOSTON CUSTOMS OFFICE BARS MAGAZINES WITH LIQUOR ADS

Former Periodicals Excluded Since Aug. 2. Apparently Contrary to New York Precedent.

By the Associaed Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—Customs authorities here have been excluding foreign publications containing liquor advertisements since Aug. 2 last, says the Boston Transcript. Apparently this is a reversal of the decision made recently by the customs authorities in New York, who held that such publications could be admitted.

The question was raised by Customs Collector Whitehill of St. Albans, Vt., who asked for a ruling on "La Lyre," a Montreal musical magazine. In reply William B. Harney, special Treasury agent here, wrote that the local customs and postoffice officials held the magazine to be admissible, but that the Boston prohibition director believed it to be in violation of the law.

Collector Whitehill then referred his inquiry to Washington and the reply quoted an order of the prohibition unit excluding publications containing such advertisements. This information reached Boston on Aug. 2 and since then, says the Transcript, the ban has been enforced. The elaborate Christmas number of Femina, Conservative French fashion magazine, was barred because of a one-inch liquor advertisement. Other magazines seized were said to have been "L'Illustration" and "Les Annales Politiques et Litteraires."

PRISON TERM FOR EDITOR DALE

Muncie, Ind., Publisher Also Fined $400 for Libel.

By the Associated Press.

MUNCIE, Ind., Dec. 4.—George R. Dale, Muncie publisher, was found guilty of criminal libel by a jury here tonight and was fined $400 and sentenced to 90 days on the penal farm. The charge resulted from an article in Dale's newspaper concerning Raymond Warner, a member of a jury that convicted Dale some time ago for carrying concealed weapons.

Dale recently attracted wide attention by filing an appeal from his first conviction with the United States Supreme Court after the Indiana Supreme Court had affirmed the lower court's decision.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE LOSES OLDEST MEMBER

H. B. Louderman, 83, Also Was Last Survivor of Original V. P. Group.

Henry B. Louderman, 83 years old, last of the organizers of the Veiled Prophet group, oldest member of Merchants' Exchange and pioneer in the installation of telephones here, died of the infirmities of age early yesterday, at his home, 4038 Lindell boulevard.

Born in Baltimore, he came here as a youth in 1860 and became a clerk for the pork packing firm of John J. Roe & Co., Third and Convent streets. Ten years later a partnership, in which William Hamilton and William G. Bartle joined him, took over the firm, continuing its business until a short time after the establishment was destroyed by fire in 1873.

It was in 1871 that Mr. Louderman joined the Merchants' Exchange. In those days the exchange, which had started in 1835 through periodic meetings of business men in an old church, was a general organization embracing all lines of commerce. When Mr. Louderman took his membership as one of about 200 pork packers, the exchange met in a building at Main and Walnut streets, which still stands, and it did not move to its present structure until 1875. Since then specialized organizations have left only grain products and hay interests in the exchange and packing is a highly concentrated activity.

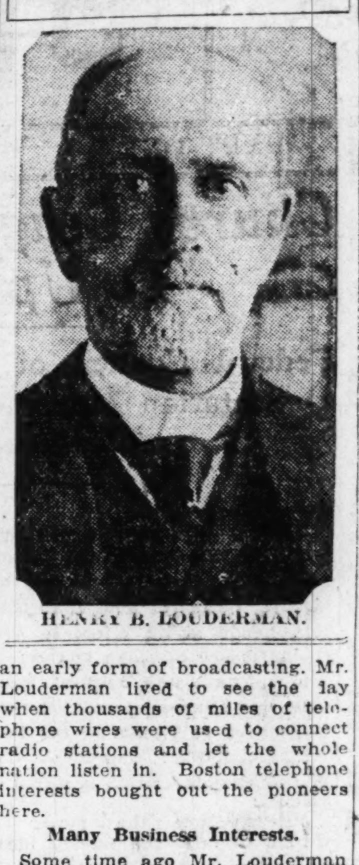
In Original V. P. Group.

When merchants and others formed the Veiled Prophet organization 49 years ago, to hold a fashionable ball and a popular parade every October for the benefit of the city's commerce and gayety, Mr. Louderman became a charter member. All his colleagues in that group died before him. He never missed attending the ball until those of 1925 and 1926.

St. Louis received its first crude telephones not long after Bell had finished his original invention in 1876. The District Telegraph Co., of which Mr. Louderman was vice president and secretary, being associated with George F. Durant, installed them—the first telephone exchange in the West. Boys were the operators then and subscribers were few. The public had no confidence in this "new fangled toy."

As an inducement to people to take telephones, the company, Mr. Louderman's family recalls, arranged to connect them periodically in groups with a phone in the old Grand Opera House on Market street, to hear concerts. That was an early form of broadcasting. Mr. Louderman lived to see the day when thousands of miles of telephone wires were used to connect radio stations and let the whole nation listen in. Boston telephone interests bought out the pioneers here.

BUSINESS MAN DEAD



HENRY B. LOUDERMAN.

Many Business Interests.

Some time ago Mr. Louderman was president of the St. Louis Sectional Dock Co. and the Carondelet Marine Railway for 10 or 12 years, with the business of building and repairing steamboats and barges. For the last 40 years or more he had been engaged only in private business activities. He owned a number of pieces of real estate, but the Louderman Investment Co., Bank of Commerce Building, was formed to handle them. He was a frequent attendant on the floor of Merchants' Exchange until his illness, and was at his desk in the investment company office until June 23.

He was of a retiring nature and shunned placing himself before the public. He was married in St. Louis Sept. 5, 1865, to Miss Sarah R. Marshall of Lewes, Del., who survives. Four children also survive—H. B. Louderman Jr. of 4010 Lindell boulevard, William M. Louderman of 4038 Lindell boulevard, John H. Louderman of 4212 Maryland avenue and Mrs. Leonora Carlisle of Los Angeles. The sons are officers of the investment company, of which their father was president. His brother, John H. Louderman, died in 1909. W. M. and H. B. Louderman Jr. own the new Louderman Building, Eleventh and Locust streets.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow from the residence. Interment will be private.

BELIEVES WOMEN JURORS LESS EASY TO FOOL THAN MEN

Judge Florence E. Allen of Ohio State Supreme Court Addresses Women Voters' League.

DENIES HERS IS EMOTIONAL SEX

Recounts That Man Wept on Giving Death Verdict While Women Jurors Did Not.

"Should women see the seamy side of life, and how?" was a question taken up and answered by Judge Florence E. Allen of the Ohio Supreme Court in St. Louis yesterday. Her answer was that they should, and by serving as jurors in the courts.

Judge Allen, the first woman in the United States to sit in a court of last resort, spoke on "Jury Service for Women" at a luncheon meeting at the American Annex Hotel, under auspices of the League of Women Voters which will sponsor a measure to be introduced at the next session of the Legislature to permit jury service by women in Missouri. Ohio is one of 22 states where women serve on juries.

"How anyone thinks the great questions of morality which affect men and women can be settled by men only is beyond me," Judge Allen said.

Can't Bamboozle Women Jurors.

"As a lawyer and judge, I voice the sentiment of the bar and bench of Ohio when I say jury service for women has proved not only a benefit to women, but to the entire administration of criminal justice. One lawyer of the Court of Common Pleas in Cleveland told me women jurors were not only as good as men but better, because lawyers could not bamboozle them as they could men.

"When I think what happens in Cleveland, and perhaps in St. Louis, where male juries go out and play cards and throw dice, I realize one reason why criminal justice is not administered in the United States as it is in England.

"With due deference to all men, women are not the emotional sex. We are more apt to cry than men—perhaps our tear ducts are larger. But the fact that there are fist fights in Congress proves men are emotional as well as women."

Man Cried, Women Did Not.

Judge Allen told of the only case, in her experience as a trial Judge, where she sentenced a defendant to die. "I did not enjoy it," she said, "but I did not cry." An alien was tried for a wanton payroll robbery murder. Two women and 10 men made up the jury. The tension was increased when friends of the defendant were caught in court with concealed weapons, and when the foreman of the jury, a woman, received a blackhand letter, threatening the jury and Judge with extermination in the even the defendant were sentenced to death. In spite of this, the jurors returned a verdict of guilty, making no recommendation of mercy, and Judge Allen imposed the death penalty. The women jurors were calm, but one man juror wept as if his heart would break.

"I don't think less of that man for crying; I think more of him," commented Judge Allen. "I honor him for doing his duty as a juror and for expressing his emotion."

It was a friendly jury that Judge Allen addressed, composed of women representative of various organizations with a sprinkling of men, including Circuit Judges Calhoun, Killoren, Pearcy, Rosskopf, and Rutledge, and former Judge J. Hugo Grimm, who introduced Judge Allen. Mrs. Gordon B. Sommers presided.

Judge Allen is the daughter of a college professor. In this era of mechanical music, she plays the piano. She has a school-girl complexion, and earns it by walking five miles each day. She is not ashamed of her ears and shows them, by combing her hair pompadour fashion. Yesterday she wore an attractive blue dress, with a filmy white scarf.

Judge Allen, the first woman in the United States to sit in a court of last resort, spoke on "Jury Service for Women" at a luncheon meeting at the American Annex Hotel, under auspices of the League of Women Voters which will sponsor a measure to be introduced at the next session of the Legislature to permit jury service by women in Missouri. Ohio is one of 22 states where women serve on juries.

"How anyone thinks the great questions of morality which affect men and women can be settled by men only is beyond me," Judge Allen said.

Can't Bamboozle Women Jurors.

"As a lawyer and judge, I voice the sentiment of the bar and bench of Ohio when I say jury service for women has proved not only a benefit to women, but to the entire administration of criminal justice. One lawyer of the Court of Common Pleas in Cleveland told me women jurors were not only as good as men but better, because lawyers could not bamboozle them as they could men.

"When I think what happens in Cleveland, and perhaps in St. Louis, where male juries go out and play cards and throw dice, I realize one reason why criminal justice is not administered in the United States as it is in England.

"With due deference to all men, women are not the emotional sex. We are more apt to cry than men—perhaps our tear ducts are larger. But the fact that there are fist fights in Congress proves men are emotional as well as women."

Man Cried, Women Did Not.

Judge Allen told of the only case, in her experience as a trial Judge, where she sentenced a defendant to die. "I did not enjoy it," she said, "but I did not cry." An alien was tried for a wanton payroll robbery murder. Two women and 10 men made up the jury. The tension was increased when friends of the defendant were caught in court with concealed weapons, and when the foreman of the jury, a woman, received a blackhand letter, threatening the jury and Judge with extermination in the even the defendant were sentenced to death. In spite of this, the jurors returned a verdict of guilty, making no recommendation of mercy, and Judge Allen imposed the death penalty. The women jurors were calm, but one man juror wept as if his heart would break.

"I don't think less of that man for crying; I think more of him," commented Judge Allen. "I honor him for doing his duty as a juror and for expressing his emotion."

It was a friendly jury that Judge Allen addressed, composed of women representative of various organizations with a sprinkling of men, including Circuit Judges Calhoun, Killoren, Pearcy, Rosskopf, and Rutledge, and former Judge J. Hugo Grimm, who introduced Judge Allen. Mrs. Gordon B. Sommers presided.

Judge Allen is the daughter of a college professor. In this era of mechanical music, she plays the piano. She has a school-girl complexion, and earns it by walking five miles each day. She is not ashamed of her ears and shows them, by combing her hair pompadour fashion. Yesterday she wore an attractive blue dress, with a filmy white scarf.

Government to Attack Doheny's 'Patriotic' Plea

he had with Doheny in the course of it he gave the general substance of the mysterious Gleaves report, written by the admiral commanding the Asiatic Squadron, and shown to Doheny by Robison on that occasion.

War a Theoretical Possibility.

When he had concluded, the whole mysterious business, boiled down, amounted to this:

That war between the United States and Japan had been a theoretical possibility ever since Japan attained the status of a first class power, that such a war would be fought in the Pacific, and that if it ever was fought, possession of the Hawaiian Islands would be of great military advantage to the side which held it.

The question of why a document like the Gleaves report, regarded by Robison as being so confidential in character that he strenuously protested against describing it in court, should have been shown to Doheny, a private citizen, was not put to Robison.

As he described it, however, there appeared to be no reason why it should not have been shown to Doheny, or to anybody else.

What Robison Told Doheny.

This was his testimony:

"I told Mr. Doheny of the military estimate of the situation in the Pacific, as it existed then, of bases built and building, and of naval organization. I told him of the detailed increases in the military and naval strength of another Power, and of their general preparations for possible military operations.

"I informed him of the sort of defense that was necessary to enable us to prevent the invasion of our Pacific Coast by an Eastern Power, and I linked up that defense with the establishment of adequate oil storage facilities at Pearl Harbor."

"Did you show him the Gleaves report?" insisted Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel. "I disclosed," was the throaty response, "much information of a confidential character. It did come from Gleaves."

"What was in it?" "I told Mr. Doheny in detail of the increase in military strength of other powers in the East and of their growing mercantile power and the rapid development of their industrial resources. I pointed out what we might expect if an attack came from that quarter and how we would have to meet it if it came.

Plans Centered on Hawaii.

"I told him that our Pacific defense plans centered on the Hawaiian group. The establishment of a strong fleet base there would make our navy twice as strong. So long as we retain that base, the power attacking us from the East must operate from a base 5000 miles distant from our Western Coast with our fleet on his flank. Once we lost it, the enemy line of communications is reduced to 2000 miles. I explained all this to Mr. Doheny and showed him how essential it was that we have a strong base at Pearl Harbor."

It was plain from the testimony that Robison regarded the existence of a base at Pearl Harbor, and hence the whole plan of defense, as almost entirely dependent upon the adoption of his pet scheme for storing navy fuel oil there.

Robison's elaborate avoidance of the name, Japan, approached burlesque and elicited a broad smile from the spectators, whom the witness left free to speculate upon the possible identity of the first-rate Power which could attack the United States in the Pacific. There is, of course, only one.

Doheny Much Agitated.

"He (Doheny) was considerably agitated," said the witness solemnly.

"Over what you told him?" eagerly inquired Hogan. "Over what I told him," affirmed the witness heavily.

"What else did you tell him?" urged Hogan. "I had previously obtained permission from the Secretary of the Navy," Robison continued, "to divulge to Mr. Doheny certain international conditions as they had been authoritatively reported to us."

Virtually all Navy men are agreed upon the strategic value of Hawaii, and it is no secret that Pearl Harbor is a strongly fortified base. However, naval officers were by no means agreed then, or are they agreed now, upon the advisability of storing 4,000,000 barrels of reserve fuel 2000 miles out in the Pacific, in tanks 80 feet high, which any naval gunner or bombing aviator could hit nine times out of ten on a dark night. It was just Robison's hobby.

Nevertheless, it was upon his showing, he said, that Doheny, whom a neighbor has described as "the foremost patriot in Los Angeles," was persuaded that it was his duty to bid on the contract, and accordingly instructed the official of his company, with the assistance of Robison, H. Foster Bain, director of the Bureau of Mines, and other officials of the Interior Department, to draw up proposals.

Originally Fall's Idea.

During this testimony, Robison had pushed Fall almost completely out of the picture. In response to a question otherwise intended, however, he brought him back into the middle of it when he said that the idea of leasing the reserve and exchanging the Government's share of the oil for tank construction, "came originally from Secretary Fall."

Throughout his earlier testimony, Robison had dwelt upon Doheny's patriotism as the deciding element which made the contract possible.

But when he reached the stage of describing how the business details were arranged, the picture began to suffer. There ensued a description of bargaining and haggling which would have done honor to a pair of Arkansas horse traders.

Fall had drawn up a contract which provided for a certain schedule of royalties to be received by the Government from the pumping operations in the reserve. Robison saw them, and said they were too low.

"If you think you can get any more out of the old man, you are welcome to try it," Fall told Robison. Robison tried it. Doheny and his company executives on one hand, and Robison on the other, haggled and bargained.

Robison told finally of becoming exasperated. It seemed there was a point where patriotism left off and business began.

So, where once he had appealed to patriotism, he now appealed to personal friendship. While he did not know of the unsecured "loan" of $100,000 which Doheny had made to an old pal, Fall, he knew that friendship was no light matter with the oil man and he said to him:

Friendship Plea Didn't Work.

"Mr. Doheny, you have been a mighty good friend to me. I appeal to you as a friend not to let the Navy get bilked on this contract."

Doheny, he said, pounded on the table and retorted, "If there any question of bilking here, I'm through right now."

"I reported to Secretary of the Navy Denby," Robison continued, "and told him I had lost out, that I couldn't do any better. He said, 'Robison, I think you've done very well.'"

The second and more important contract, that under which Doheny obtained a lease on the entire 38,000-acre reserve, was broached by Doheny to Robison in a communication, signed Nov. 6, 1922, which was introduced in evidence. What negotiations, if any, might have occurred between Fall and Doheny on the subject, Robison did not know.

In his letter to Robison, Doheny stressed the advantage to the public which would accrue from large scale production in the reserve. It would certainly result in a marked reduction in the price of oil, he said. While this might appear to be an unusual argument to come from a man in the business of selling oil, Robison's previous testimony had clearly indicated that Doheny's operations were not always actuated by ordinary selfish considerations.

Ordered to Prepare Plans.

"Later in November," the witness continued, "I received orders from the Navy Department to proceed with specifications increasing the storage facilities at Pearl Harbor from 1,500,000 barrels (as provided in the first contract) to 4,000,000 barrels."

Apparently, the orders had originated with officials who knew that the second lease would be signed. It was signed, in secrecy, and without any pretense of competitive bidding, on Dec. 11. It was at this point in the testimony that court recessed for the day.

The cross-examination of Robison by Roberts, which is expected to furnish one of the liveliest sessions of the trial, is scheduled to open Monday.

Present indications are that the trial will be concluded in 10 days, and possibly by the end of the week. What effect the approach of the Christmas season may have upon the jury, is causing some speculation. Both the gray-haired defendants have grandchildren at home, a circumstance to which the agile-minded and eloquent lawyer Hogan may refer in his closing address to the jurors.

Doheny Rests Comfortably.

Doheny was resting comfortably tonight in his hotel quarters, confined to bed by an infected arm. Physicians said a complete relaxation throughout the afternoon and early evening had appreciably benefitted the patient and they said they hoped his condition would permit him to return to court Monday. Doheny suffered an irritation in his left arm 10 days ago and a lancing operation was resorted to last night. He appeared in a weakened condition during today's short session of the court, and was ordered to bed immediately after noon adjournment. His temperature was normal tonight. Doheny is 70 years old.

WEALTHY OIL MAN AND WOMAN WITH HIM SHOT BY WIFE

Mrs. T. L. Smith of Eldorado, Ark., Seriously Wounds Husband and Mrs. L. R. Simmons.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Thomas L. Smith, 45 years old, is held in the Caddo Parish jail following the shooting, at Vivian, La., a small town near here, of her husband, Thomas L. Smith, 45, and a woman companion, Mrs. L. R. Simmons, 30.

Both Smith and Mrs. Simmons are in critical condition. One bullet struck Smith in the mouth, fracturing the jaw. Mrs. Simmons was shot in the breast and neck. Mrs. Lurena Nixon of Shreveport, who was with Smith and Mrs. Simmons, was not hurt.

Smith owns valuable oil lands in the Eldorado (Ark.) field. Mrs. Simmons is the wife of an Eldorado grocer. Mrs. Smith set out to chase the pair when she met them in an automobile on the road several miles from Shreveport.

The shooting occurred just as Smith pulled up at the curb in front of a store in Vivian. A moment later Mrs. Smith's car bumped the curb and she leaped out, brandishing a pistol. Smith jumped from his car and rushed toward his wife and as he did so she shot him, then turned her weapon on Mrs. Simmons.

According to the town Marshal at Vivian, Mrs. Smith said she shot Smith and Mrs. Simmons because Mrs. Simmons had stolen her husband's love. She would say nothing further.

Mrs. Nixon, who was in Smith's car, said that Mrs. Smith passed them on the road and as she did so, Smith recognized her. "There goes my wife," he said. Mrs. Nixon begged to be let out of the car, but Smith would not let her go. The chase followed.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Maudie Simpson, came to Shreveport Friday night in search of Smith, and found his rooming house today, but he and the two women with him had disappeared in their car, going north, and Mrs. Smith and her daughter followed

SKELETON OF MAN MISSING FOR 29 MONTHS IS FOUND

Laverne Langford, War Veteran of Joplin, Mo., Had Been Shot in Back of Head.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Dec. 4.—The mystery of the disappearance two years and five months ago of Laverne Langford, a World War veteran, became a murder mystery to county authorities today, following finding of his skeleton yesterday.

An investigation into the death was begun today, but Coroner F. J. Bigham of Newton County said he had little hope of unearthing clews that might lead to arrests.

In the skull of the skeleton, found in a dense wood near Ritchie, Mo., was a bullet hole. It was plainly evident, officers said, that Langford had been shot in the back of the head. The skeleton was identified positively today as that of Langford by means of a piece of cloth that was with the bones. A careful examination revealed that the cloth was part of the trousers to a suit Langford wore when he left Joplin July 10, 1924, on a motor trip to Battle Creek, Mich. The coat was found in his abandoned car at Monett the following day.

He is believed to have been robbed and killed by two youths he had given a ride.

Student Explains Row On Floating College

About 20 of 363 Pupils Aboard Ryndam Misbehaved, Writes J. M. Hall of Webster Groves—Captain's Discipline Resented

Life on the S. S. Ryndam, "floating university," now at Bangkok, Siam, with a student body of 363 American boys and girls and a faculty of 63 men and women college professors on board, is not at all what it seems to be from cable dispatches.

This cheering word came to the anxious families of 10 St. Louis boys who are on the round-the-world cruise, in the form of letters from their sons, telegraphic assurances from the steamship company and copies of The Binnacle, the ship's daily newspaper.

The floating university was obliged to dismiss eight students at Kobe, Japan, for schoolboy pranks among the temples in Tokio and Yokohama. One of them happened to be Robert Heilbrun of 5757 Cates avenue. They were sent back to the United States in charge of a professor, but Heilbrun and a companion dived overboard as the vessel was leaving Honolulu, swam to a buoy, where they were rescued by a small boat and carried back to the city.

Stories of beer-drinking, gambling and flirtations have sparkled back from the Ryndam since it started its tour at New York, Sept. 18, but more responsible correspondence has indicated that these were not representative of the student body as a whole.

About 20 Misbehaved.

"About 20 fellows have misbehaved," writes John M. Hall, a student, to his father, John C. Hall, 225 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves, "and they have given the tour a bad name. The rest of the students are under good discipline."

The Ryndam's troubles as learned from authoritative sources by Hall and other St. Louis parents, are such as might have been expected from the nature of the floating university experiment.

The first difficulty arose when it was decided to admit co-eds to the tour. The floating university idea had been proposed in 1925 and many St. Louisans registered their sons. But a sufficient number of boys could not be got together and the cruise was abandoned. This year its organizers decided to allow girl students to make the trip in order to be sure the quota of passengers was filled. There was much criticism of this policy as most of the parents agreed it would be better to have only boys on the ship.

Co-Ed Problem Introduced.

As it turned out there was a surplus of young men applicants and 300 more would have gone had there been room. An effort was made to persuade the girl students to give up their reservations, but 57 refused and the floating university became co-educational. This necessitated faculty changes and created the problem of chaperonage.

These difficulties were supposed to have been ironed out when the Ryndam sailed. The girl students were grouped on deck A and segregated so far as was feasible. The staff of the University consisted of Charles F. Thwing, president emeritus of Western Reserve University as president; James E. Lough, Dean at New York University and Dean George Howes of Williams College as deans, and 60 others of note in education, including former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas.

President Thwing left the ship at Havana, for reasons not explained and responsibility was divided.

Captain Takes a Hand.

The Ryndam is a Holland-American line boat and manned by a crew of Dutchmen, many of whom speak no English. Its Captain is Y. K. Lieuwen, a stern moralist by all accounts. When things became gay on the decks during the confusion of the first week, he asserted his disciplinary powers.

Co-eds were forbidden the hurricane deck after dark. The captain stationed stewards to keep watch for flirtations.

According to letters from St. Louis boys, these stewards were very obtrusive and prone to act on the slightest provocation. It got so that if a young man spoke to a young woman student there was a deluge of Dutch language.

The next act of the Captain's was to start a crusade against gambling in the smoking room. He walked in on a group of youths one night after the ship left Los Angeles for Hilo, Hawaii, and discovered them with piles of red, white and blue chips stacked neatly about the table.

"We weren't gambling," one of the boys told the Captain, "These chips haven't any value. They don't mean anything."

Capt. Lieuwen grunted and scattered the piles then gathered them all into a heap in the center of the table.

"Let them be all together," he said, "if they don't mean anything," and the banker was put to bed hours later in a state of mental collapse.

Allen Approves Captain's Actions.

Former Gov. Allen who is editing the The Binnacle approved the Captain's crusade, editorially, but the students decided they should have their own disciplinary rules.

They appealed to faculty members and Albert K. Heckel, dean of men at the University of Missouri championed self-government. Dean Heckel declared he would leave the ship at Honolulu unless something was done to preserve order. He had his way and a student's council was formed, the honor system instituted, and affairs were peaceful once more.

Scrutiny of the daily issues of The Binnacle reveals that the ship settled down to a routine of classroom lectures and legitimate student activities. There is mention of a student orchestra, the Planet Players, an amateur theatrical group and there were faculty teas and student dances. The only pranks referred to with censure by The Binnacle were petty thefts of clothing, in one case of money, from students' staterooms. The incident of the pirate flag which was flown from the radio mast one night is passed off as a joke.

Pilfering in Japanese Shrines.

No serious outbreaks of collegiate horse play occurred until the ship reached Yokohama Nov. 5. The students were divided into groups for sight-seeing trips in Japan under faculty supervision. But about 20 young men, it is said, became so elated on Japanese beer that they had not the proper regard for Japanese shrines. Some pilfered small idols, one youth leaped into the inner temple of a shrine, and a party invaded the royal suite in a hotel at Tokio. The student council tried 20 suspects for these depredations and convicted eight of them. They were put off the ship at Kobe.

The applicants for places on the ship were examined very carefully and numerous youths with bad records at school were rejected. Students who have written about the obstreperous few aboard the Ryndam point out that it is impossible for faculty members to control shore parties. Most of the students, they insist, have been amenable to discipline and only in rare instances has liquor been found aboard after the ship left port.

This year's cruise will end at New York, May 2. The Ryndam is due to leave Bangkok Dec. 7 and arrive at Singapore Dec. 11.

$125,000 GIFT MADE SECRETLY TO Y. W. C. A.

East St. Louis Association Will Erect Home for Women on A. E. Meints' Property.

Women are keeping secret the source of a donation of approximately $125,000 to the East St. Louis Young Women's Christian Association, to be used in constructing a new home for young women at Ninth street and Ohio avenue, and in purchase of the site.

A man is the donor, according to Miss Carolyn Chandler, secretary of the association. He has specified that his name shall not be made known, and has made the gift contingent on this secrecy.

A gift of such magnitude by an individual is a new thing in East St. Louis. In the past, the only way to get a new building for social or religious work there was to carry on a laborious subscription campaign.

The site of the new building is the present home of Postmaster Albert E. Meints, 454 North Ninth street. The Meints home is to be removed, and construction of a three or four-story building will begin in the spring. It will have about 75 bedrooms and a dining hall. Tennis courts will be provided. The "Y" will retain its cafeteria, gymnasium and clubroom at 317 Missouri avenue. Mrs. E. H. Bottom is president of the Association.

The Meints property, valued at $50,000, fronts 225 feet on Ninth street and 150 feet on Ohio avenue.

Toren admitted to policemen that he had beaten Mays on the head with a revolver.

Mays suffered lacerations of the scalp and a possible fracture of the skull. Toren was arrested.

BAKER MUST FACE SENATE WITH LIST OF 100 APPOINTEES

Most of Them Will Be Confirmed, but Opposition Centers on State Penal Board Selections.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—A large turnover in Gov. Baker's official family, due to resignations, term expirations and various board upheavals and reorganizations, compels Baker to face the next session of the State Senate with a list of approximately 100 recess appointments. Legislature convenes Jan. 5.

Most of the appointments, probably, will be confirmed without question, but pre-session comment indicates a fight may develop on the confirmation of some. The Democrats control the Senate with 21 members, or three more than the r quired majority of 18. The Republicans hold 13 seats.

Some opposition has developed among politicians in St. Louis to Allen C. Orrick, president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, but this opposition has not been effective so far. Baker has given the St. Louis board full indorsement and has been deaf to complaints. Orrick was confirmed by the last Senate, but the term for which he was appointed expired, and he was reappointed on Jan, 2, 1926.

The principal opposition is expected to center around the State Penal Board, headed by Dr. Cortez F. Enloe, close friend and political adviser of Baker. The entire board, comprising five members, must come up for confirmation.

The Democratic state platform charged the administration had "permitted graft and incompetence in the management of the penal institutions," but did not go into detail. Various charges of irregularities in purchases of prison supplies, without competitive bids, have been made, but these charges, made by a Republican purchasing agent at the prison, were shelved by the Penal Board.

The members of the board are Enloe, Warden Leslie Rudolph and Parole Commissioner A. H. Steinbeck, Republicans; Farm Superintendent W. B. McGregor and Industrial Superintendent T. Speed Mosby, Democrats.

All seven members of the State Board of Health will be up for confirmation. It is recalled that Baker called for resignations of all board members in September, 1925, and reorganized the board, following a row over demands for the resignation of Dr. Enloe as a member of the board. In the reorganization, Dr. Enloe and Dr. Emmett P. North of St. Louis, former president of the board, who had participated in the demand for Enloe's retirement, were not reappointed.

Eleemosynary Board Shakeup.

Two members of the Board of Managers of the state eleemosynary institutions must be confirmed. Baker reorganized this board early in 1925, after the members deadlocked on carrying out the Governor's instructions that his brother-in-law, George Gilpin of St. Joseph and Luther Wilson, a Democrat, of Jefferson City, be appointed stewards in two of the hospitals. The appointments were made after Baker reorganized the board. W. T. Robinson of La Plata and Mark A. McGruder of Sedalia are the members up for confirmation.

Three of the four members of the State Highway Commission must go before the Senate for approval. They are C. D. Matthews, Republican, of Sikeston; E. J. McGrew, Republican, of Lexington; and Hugh Stephens, Democrat, of Jefferson City.

Two members of the State Public Service Commission, J. H. Porter of St. Louis and S. M. Hutchinson of Kansas City, both Democrats, must be confirmed, likewise State Finance Commissioner S. L Cantley, Republican, of Owensville and State Oil Inspector W. A. McAtee, Republican, of Springfield. State Insurance Superintendent Ben C. Hyde, of Kansas City, also is on the list, having been reappointed after the last Legislature adjourned. He is a brother of former Gov. Hyde.

Among other appointments on the list are Robert W. McElhinney, of Clayton and J. C. A. Hiller of Kirkwood as members of the St. Louis County Board of Election Commissioners; four members of the Jackson County Board of Election Commissioners; two members, each, of the Kansas City and St. Louis Boards of Police Comissioners; and members of the recently appointed Missouri Workmen's Compensation Commission.

AMERICAN MEMBER TO QUIT REPARATIONS COMMISSION

J. E. Sterrett Will Be Succeeded by Pierre Jay, a Banker of New York.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Joseph S. Sterrett, American member of the Reparations Commission, has resigned his post, effective Jan. 17, and will be succeeded by Pierre Jay, chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Sterrett's letter making known his intention was dated Berlin, Nov. 20, and was addressed to S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations. It was presented at today's meeting of the Reparations Commission and was made part of the record.

Sterrett, who was Gilbert's principal assistant during his more than two years' service, resigned because of a desire to resume law practice in the United States.

Much of the success of the Dawes plan was attributed to Sterrett's aid and counsel, in the Agent General's letter of acknowledgment.

CHINA REPUDIATES SIXTEEN TREATIES, ONE WITH AMERICA

League Representative Announces at Geneva That His Country Will Terminate Unequal Agreements

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—China has decided to terminate all unequal treaties on their expiration, Chu Chao-Hsin, Chinese representative at the League of Nations, announced today in a statement on China's recent denunciation of the Sino-Belgian treaty of 1865.

The statement says China will refuse to submit to the World Court the question of interpretation of the treaty, since it considers the controversy political, rather than judicial. China, however, is willing to submit the case to the League Assembly, the statement declares.

Sixteen Powers have treaty rights in China, including Belgium. The others are Brazil, Denmark, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Mexico, the Netherlands, Norway, Peru, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States.

Denunciation early this month by the Pekin Government of the Sino Belgian treaty was the "first cancellation by China of one of 1[illegible] series of treaties which have long been in force, and led to fears that China would denounce the remaining treaties as their terms expired. Today's statement by Chu Chao-Hsin, however, is the first official word indicating the realization of this fear.

The Sino-Belgian treaty was denounced after Belgium had refused negotiation of a new treaty based on the "quality and reciprocity" and had proposed reference of the question to the World Court. On Nov. 18, it was stated that the Belgian Government would soon submit the Sino-Belgian treaty controversy to the World Court unilaterally, the Chinese Government having formerly declined to submit it jointly.

Britain Will Not Intervene, Minister Tells Chinese.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4.—Great Britain has no intention of intervening in China's chaotic affairs, but will hold out a sympathetic and helpful hand, Miles W. Lampson, British Minister to China, told the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce today in an address at a reception tendered him.

Lampson said the chaos in China had worked to the detriment of trade in China, but more to the detriment of Chinese than to British trade. The British, he said, were ready to help clarify the situation but this did not mean intervention.

Lloyd George Praises Chinese As Strugglers for Rights.

BRADFORD, England, Dec. 4.—Former Premier Lloyd George came to the support of China today in addressing a Liberal meeting at Bradford.

The "Reds," he declared are not the real cause of the trouble in China. "The real cause," he explained, "is the Chinese struggling for their fundamental rights.

Suggesting certain people were eager for war in the Far East, he attributed to the Tory press "the usual preliminaries to war—tales of outrages, suggestions of worse to come and panicky stories."

"China's ports are occupied by foreigners and governed by foreigners," he continued. "The Chinese cannot raise revenue in their own way; yet they are an empire of 400,000,000 of civilized peoples, naturally they are rebelling.

"The record of Western civilization in China is indeed black. We forced opium upon China against the will of its greatest moral teachers. It is not surprising that China has rebelled against the indignity, humiliation and injustice inflicted upon her by the Western powers."

The British Government was under great pressure to do something "impulsive and provocative," he said, and it was essential that public opinion should be aroused.

CLOSED BANK MADE LOANS TO MANY KANSAS OFFICIALS

Former Governor, Ex-Bank Commissioner and Others Named in Records.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 4.—Records in the State Banking Department disclosed today that Carl J. Peterson, former Kansas Bank Commissioner, had an overdraft last June for $1946 in the People's State Bank here, which closed its doors yesterday. Peterson also owed the bank $2150 on a personal note and Mrs. Peterson had overdrawn her checking account $200. Peterson owns 10 shares of the bank's capital stock.

No evidence of any unlawful irregularities in the management of the bank has been found by the State Examiners. Roy L. Bone, State banking commissioner said there probably will be some losses.

The records show that the following borrowed from the bank: Jonathan M. Davis, former Governor; John Barrett, formerly treasurer of the Democratic State Central Committee; J. R. Coffey, cashier of the bank; M. F. Reinhardt and E. S. Simmons, directors of the bank; S. S. Irwin, also a director and Peterson's law partner; Burt Brown, State Registrar of Vital Statistics under Davis, and Allen McMahon, wife of Joe McMahon, assistant State Bank Commissioner under Davis.

INCREASE IN ASSESSMENT OF 26 BANKS IN ST. LOUIS

The City Comptroller's office yesterday completed an adjustment of the $2,000,000, or 3.108 per cent increase in the assessment against the capital shares of 26 St. Louis banks imposed by the State Board of Equalization.

The State board had increased some banks a greater percentage than others, the average being 3.108. Thus, the Lafayette-South Side Bank was increased from $1,311,730 to $1,911,780, and the American Trust Co. from $1,508,040 to $1,600,000.

The Comptroller made the 3.108 per cent apply to all banks on a straight line basis.

Ends Life by Igniting Clothes.

MARSHALL, Mo., Dec. 4.—After excusing himself from the breakfast table today, J. S. McNabb, a wealthy resident of Elkland, near here, committed suicide by soaking his clothes with oil and setting fire to them. His charred body was found in a field.

LEAGUE DIPLOMATS MOVE CAREFULLY TO AVOID CENSURE

Now Denied That Briand, Chamberlain and Stresemann Planned to Meet With Mussolini.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 4. — The much talked of "Big Four" conference with Premier Mussolini of Italy sitting in with M. Briand, Sir Austen Chamberlain and Gustav Stresemann, the Foreign Ministers of France, Great Britian and Germany respectively, has apparently come to nothing, if indeed it was ever contemplated.

M. Vandervelde, the Belgian statesman, disposed of the matter by asserting, after a long talk with M. Briand this afternoon, that there was no thought of such a conference. He and M. Briand, however, discussed nearly everything coming before the League of Nations Council, over which M. Vandervelde will preside.

Might Meet "by Chance".

Sir Austen Chamberlain, Dr. Stresemann and M. Briand are expected to have an important conference, although officially no such conerence is planned. It is taken for granted that these three leaders are likely to talk things over informally; they will know how to meet by chance, if there is objection to a formal pre-arranged affair.

M. Briand is understood to have objections to talk of a conference of three or four as discourteous to others interested in German problems, particularly Belgium. Whatever may occur the allies ought to have their ideas pretty well digested and be in accord by now, for M. Briand, Sir Austen Chamberlain, M. Vandervelde and M. Zaleski, the Polish Foreign Minister, muiled over things yesterday and today, and all four took the train together tonight for Geneva.

Diplomats at a Lunch.

Germany and Italy may know by this time what these four think, for the British Foreign Secretary had the German and Italian Ambassadors to lunch today.

M. Vandervelde said that a great part of today's talk with M. Briand was devoted to the Chinese situation, concerning which the French and Belgium views were identical. Belgium is particularly interested in Chinese affairs because the Sino-Belgian convention was denounced by the Pekin government, which apparently is trying to make a test case in order to establish a precedent for denouncing other foreign conventions when they come up for renewal.

German Political Circles Display Chagrin Over Conferences.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—German political circles have shown chagrin over the conferences now being held in Paris by Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain of Great Britain, Foreign Minister Briand of France and Foreign Minister Zaleski of Poland, in which Foreign Minister Vandervelde of Belgium also was reported to have taken part.

The Germans say it is unfair, now that Germany is a full-fledged member of the League of Nations, for a group within the League to hold a conclave with the purpose of presenting a united front on matters at issue between Germany and her former enemies.

The Diplomatisch Politische Korrespondenz, semiofficial mouthpiece of the Foreign Office, declares that such conferences "are calculated to furnish added data to critics among the Powers less favorably inclined toward the League of Nations, supporting their doubts as to whether the League can be transformed from an instrument of the victorious Powers into a forum for the regulation of world questions."

This attitude is supported by a large part of the German press.

AMERICANS TO CLOSE DEAL TO ELECTRIFY ALL POLAND

Utilities Agents Expected in Warsaw Dec. 10 to Sign $20,000,000 Contract.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

WARSAW, Poland, Dec. 4.—Representatives of the American-European Utilities Corporation are expected to arrive here Dec. 10, to sign a contract with the Polish Government for a $20,000,000 scheme for electrification of Poland, the New York World and Post-Dispatch correspondent was informed here today. The $20,000,000 is to be loaned to Poland by the American Corporation, composed of the General Electric, Western Electric and Westinghouse interests, the loan being guaranteed by the Polish National Economy Bank, which is practically a Government institution.

Most of Poland's available water power is to be utilized, particularly that in Polish Galicia, formerly Austrian Poland. It has taken about a year and a half to bring the negotiations to a conclusion and it is estimated construction works will take seven or eight years. It is understod W. P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, who recently returned to the United States from a tour of investigation in Poland, was largely instrumental in making the negotiations successful.

MARY T.—Fuller's earth is a variety of clay sometimes used for cleaning cloth that has been oil or grease stained. It is a fine powder and is very porous, so that when applied to a grease spot it absorbs the grease. Deposits of this clay are found in Colorado, Florida and South Dakota and in several European countries. The composition of Fuller's earth is alumina, silica, magnesia and lime. It feels like a soap powder.

PALATABLE. — Creamed or chicken a la king is made by fixing finely cut cooked chicken with cream sauce to which chopped mushrooms or a little pimento may be added. The sauce is made by bringing the desired amount of milk to a boil and adding cornstarch and water thickening until of the desired consistency and let whole come just to a boil. Another white sauce is made by melting 1 tablespoon butter in a saucepan and stirring in 1½ tablespoons flour. Add seasoning and 1 cup of milk and stir the mixture until it is smooth. Boil milk for 1 minute. Add the chopped mushrooms or pimento to the sauce as it boils. You might serve boullion, creamed chicken in patties, mashed potatoes, cauliflower, peas, tomato and lettuce salad, pumpkin pie and coffee. All the incidentals such as crackers with soup and salad, rolls, butter, celery, olives, salted nuts and mints should be served.

Send us a stamped, self-addressed envelope and ask for the names of such physicians, if you desire to have us recommend one to you.

IN MEMORIAM

Past her suffering, past her pain;
Cease to weep, for tears are vain.
She who suffered is at rest.
Gone to heaven with the blest.
CHARLES LEHMUTH AND FAMILY.

In loving remembrance of Charles H. Richards, who died one year ago Dec. 2, 1925. Sadly missed by DAUGHTER, SON-IN-LAW AND GRANDDAUGHTER.

In memory of my beloved husband and our father, Benjamin Hetz, who departed this life one year ago, Dec. 4, 1925:

Today recalls sad memories
Of the loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today
Are those who loved him best.

Sadly missed by wife and children and all who loved him.

In loving memory of William A. Robert, who departed this life Dec. 3, 1925.

We do not forget you,
Nor do we intend to.
We think of you often,
And will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.

Sadly missed by wife and those who loved him.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and niece, Florentine Bromwich, who departed this life eight years ago, Dec. 3, 1918:

We mourn for her in sorrow,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed,
While others are asleep.

Sadly missed by father, mother, aunts, uncles and all who loved her. (c)

In loving remembrance of our dear daughter, Patricia Marie Sullivan, who died Dec. 6, 1925:

There was an angel band in heaven
That was not quite complete,
So God then took our darling Patsy
To fill the vacant seat.

From her loving PARENTS.

In loving memory of our dear daughter, mother and sister, Lillian Boersig (nee Rank), who departed this life Dec. 3, 1922:

Four years have passed since you were here.
Oh how we miss you, daughter dear.
God took you home, it was His will,
But in our hearts you linger still.

Sadly missed by little daughter, parents, sister and brother. (c)

In loving remembrance of our dear beloved mother, Mrs. Anna Weil, who died Nov. 27, 1923:

Three years and one week have passed: oh, how we miss her;
Friends may think the wound is healed;
Little do they know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

DAUGHTERS AND GRANDDAUGHTER.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Homer Netherton, who passed away Dec. 3, 1922, and little son, Walter, who passed away May 27, 1925:

My lips cannot tell how I miss them;
My heart cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how I miss them
In a home that is lonesome today.

Sadly missed by their LONELY WIFE AND MOTHER.

In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Myrtle Duepner, and baby (nee Haneman), who departed this life Dec. 8, 1917:

Nine years have passed since you were here.
Oh, how we miss you, Myrtle, dear.
Some day we hope to meet you; some day we know not when;
To clasp your hand in a better land, never to part again.

Sadly missed by PARENTS, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

In sweet memory of our dear, darling mother, Mrs. Anna Pohlman, who went to heaven, Nov. 26, 1925:

She shares a love we cannot know,
A joy we cannot feel,
And He who bids our tears to flow
Will all our sorrows heal.

She meekly bore her earthly cross
And gently laid it down,
And while we deeply mourn our loss,
She wears her heavenly crown.

Then, let us wipe our tears away,
Since she the prize hath won,
And ask for strength that we may say
God's will, not ours, be done.

HER CHILDREN.

Henriette Bockermann, dearly beloved wife of Peter Bockermann, mother and grandmother, who entered into rest Dec. 4, 1925:

O how blest are ye whose toils are ended!
Who through death have unto God ascended.
Ye have arisen
From the cares which keep us still in prison.

We are still as in a dungeon living,
Still oppressed with sorrow and misgiving:
Our undertakings
Are but toils and troubles and heartbreakings.

Ah! who would then not depart with gladness,
To inherit heaven for earthly sadness?
Who here would languish
Longer in bewailing and in anguish?

Come, O Christ, and loose the chains that bind us!
Lead us forth, and cast this world behind us!
With Thee, th' Anointed,
Finds the soul its joy and rest appointed.

From your loving HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

PROTEST ON REMOVAL OF MEMORIAL CANNON

Legion Post Wants It Replaced in Webster Groves Parkway.

A litle but lively aftermath of the World War centers about a German cannon which once adorned the Webster Groves Memorial Parkway, but, last Tuesday, was temporarily relegated to the comparative obscurity of the city hall's back yard.

The move, sponsored by the Webster Groves Memorial Parkway Commission, headed by Frank Thompson, left alone in the parkway a granite monument with a World War honor list. In fact, since the park is cut in two by the triangular intersection of Big Bend and Lockwood avenue, half of it was left empty.

"So-called" Memorial Parkway, Commander A. H. Buser of the local American Legion post, called it yesterday.

"It is true," he added, "that there was no base for the cannon in the parkway, but we planned to construct one. The Legion agreed to move the cannon last June, when there was talk of putting up a fine monument in its place. The monument got no further than talk, and we are going to appear at a meeting of the Parkway Commission Monday night, and the following Monday we are going to talk the City Council into putting that cannon back where it belongs.

The back yard of the city hall is the resting place of the cannon only until a concrete base for it can be erected in the front yard, near the flag-pole, or until the city has to take it back. Thompson offered to build the base at his own expense before the cannon was moved, but somehow, the cannon was moved first.

"It's an ugly old cannon, anyway," remarked Circuit Judge Wurdeman, a member of the commission. "Nose always stuck up in the air. A handsome fountain or something like that would be a more fitting memorial. I hold with Napoleon—melt the cannon and make beautiful monuments.

"But then," he added, with suggestion of levity in the judicial countenance, "maybe it is a good idea to set it up in front of the city hall—a warning to gangsters."

HISTORIC CHURCH TO REMOVE CONGREGATION

The first step in the removal of the congregation of the historic First Presbyterian Church from the present place of worship at Washington boulevard and Sarah street to University City will be made Jan. 2, when Sunday School and services will be held temporarily in the Tivoli Theater building, 6340 Delmar boulevard, under the direction of the Rev. Chester E. Jenney, pastor.

The Church Presbytery recently authorized the erection of a new First Presbyterian Church at Delmar boulevard and Overhill drive, 7200 west, to cost $450,000. More than $100,000 of the sum has already been subscribed and construction will begin at once. It is expected the new structure will be ready for occupancy next October.

Members of the church have been requested to indicate their intentions with regard to joining in the removal or remaining at the present location, where a new congregation will be organized under a name and pastor to be designated. The arrangement will be explained in detail by the Rev. Mr. Jenney at services today.

The First Presbyterian Church was founded more than 100 years ago and is the oldest continuous Protestant congregation west of the Mississippi River.

PROTEST ON REMOVAL OF MEMORIAL CANNON

Legion Post Wants It Replaced in Webster Groves Parkway.

A litle but lively aftermath of the World War centers about a German cannon which once adorned the Webster Groves Memorial Parkway, but, last Tuesday, was temporarily relegated to the comparative obscurity of the city hall's back yard.

The move, sponsored by the Webster Groves Memorial Parkway Commission, headed by Frank Thompson, left alone in the parkway a granite monument with a World War honor list. In fact, since the park is cut in two by the triangular intersection of Big Bend and Lockwood avenue, half of it was left empty.

"So-called" Memorial Parkway, Commander A. H. Buser of the local American Legion post, called it yesterday.

"It is true," he added, "that there was no base for the cannon in the parkway, but we planned to construct one. The Legion agreed to move the cannon last June, when there was talk of putting up a fine monument in its place. The monument got no further than talk, and we are going to appear at a meeting of the Parkway Commission Monday night, and the following Monday we are going to talk the City Council into putting that cannon back where it belongs.

The back yard of the city hall is the resting place of the cannon only until a concrete base for it can be erected in the front yard, near the flag-pole, or until the city has to take it back. Thompson offered to build the base at his own expense before the cannon was moved, but somehow, the cannon was moved first.

"It's an ugly old cannon, anyway," remarked Circuit Judge Wurdeman, a member of the commission. "Nose always stuck up in the air. A handsome fountain or something like that would be a more fitting memorial. I hold with Napoleon—melt the cannon and make beautiful monuments.

"But then," he added, with a suggestion of levity in the judicial countenance, "maybe it is a good idea to set it up in front of the city hall—a warning to gangsters."

MIXED CHANGES IN LIVESTOCK TRADE

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Dec. 4.—Price changes in the livestock market the past week were mixed. Hogs improved somewhat, cattle and lambs ruling unevenly steady to lower and horses and mules maintaining a steady basis.

Receipts of swine for the week just closing show moderate to light total. The six day run reflects a loss of 9000 head from the corresponding week a year ago. There have been moderate supplies at Missouri River markets but St. Paul and Chicago got right good runs. The trade is disappointed in the continued moderate movement of fat hogs. November hog receipts at St. Louis fell under 300,000 head for the first time in 10 years. Quality of the week's offering has been right good, although light hogs predominated. The proportion of choice finished heavy swine is running much lighter than it was during the summer months. The market has been featured by comparatively moderate price fluctuations. There has been a right good order demand all week. Compared with last week's close the general market is 10 to 25c higher, lights advancing the most. The low day of the week was Monday when the top dropped to $11.95 and bulk of sales ranged $11.80 to $11.90. On Tuesday and Wednesday the top stood at $12.20. On Thursday it dropped to $12.10 but Friday got back to $12.20 and reached $12.25 Saturday. The general hog trade as far as prices are concerned is just about like it was a year ago but the market is around $1.50 per cwt. lower than it was a month ago.

Light Run of Sheep.

Light receipts have been the rule in the sheep department the past week. Total run amounted to 8500 head against 8900 the corresponding week a year ago. There has been no essential change in the market as compared with the preceding week, lamb trade closing on a steady to strong basis. Local butchers paid up to $13.75 in a small way for choice lambs but packers got their best lambs mostly from $13.00 to $13.25. Several consignments from local feed lots, a notable sprinkling of natives and a few Tennessee lambs moved in this range. Quality of the offering for the week has been just fair. Cull lambs sold mainly around $8.50. Sheep have been in rather limited supply all week and steady markets have been the rule on mutton classes. The better handy weight fat ewes sold mainly at $5.50 to $6.50 with the plain, heavy kinds from $4.00 to $5.00. Southern wethers, shorn, sold up to $7.50. According to Government survey the supply of lambs on feed in the corn belt states this season is larger than a year ago. On the other hand, the important feeding districts of Colorado and Nebraska are feeding much fewer sheep than last winter. Quotations: Slaughter stock—Good to choice lambs $12.50 to $13.25 (small lots to butchers up to $13.75); medium to good $12.00 to $12.50; plain to medium $10.00 to $12.00; cull and common $8.00 to $9.00; skips $5.00 to $7.00. Good to choice yearling wethers $10.50 to $11.00; medium to good $10.00 to $10.50; plain to medium $9.00 to $10.00. Good to choice aged western wethers $7.25 to $8.25; Southern kinds $6.50 to $7.75. Thin to fair kinds, $3.00 to $6.00. Good to choice mutton ewes $5.50 to $6.50; medium to good $4.50 to $5.50; plain to medium $4.00 to $4.50. Choppers and bucks $2.00 to $4.00; canners $1.50 to $2.50. Gat goats $2.00 to $2.50; thin to fair kinds $1.00 to $2.00. Fat kids $4.50 to $5.50; thin to fair kids $2.00 to $4.00.

Butcher Steer Changes.

Cattle receipts were moderate and trading rather irregular. The most pronounced change in the market was on butcher steers and heifers which averaged 50c to 75c lower in a dull trade. Fat handy weight beef steers ruled strong to 25c higher; plain and medium weight killing classes steady and heavy beeves of virtually all grades steady to 25c lower. Stocker and feeder steers close about steady for the week although the demand has showed much improvement and action was good throughout the week. Beef cows likewise ruled about steady with the previous week's close after an advance in mid-week which was wiped out later. Canner and cutter varieties figured steady to 15c lower. Bulls closed the period steady or nearly steady with the low time last week which places them about 50c under the high time. Veal calves, in a series of declining markets toward the last of the week were put on a basis of $12.50 to $12.75, compared with a bulk of $14.25 on the previous week's close. These prices indicate a decline of $1.50 to $1.75. First cuts showed a corresponding loss at $9.50 to $10 with heavy calves little changed at $6 to $8. Southern canner yearlings were steady to possibly 25c lower on weighty grades. Sales ranged $4.25 to $5 largely, extremely heavy kinds down to $4. Top steers in the yearling division reached $11.85 for the week, others registering up to $11.75 and $11.10. Weighty beeves at $10.50 represented the top for mature offerings. Bulk of all steers went $8 to $9 followed by low grade offerings in the $6 column.

Horses and Mules.

During the past week receipts of horses and mules were quite light, totaling 878 head against 935 the preceding week and 1197 same time a year ago. The horse trade has shown fair life on kinds that are wanted including wagon horses on the coach type weighing 1050 to 1250 lbs. and showing finish and quality, also young farm horses and mares and good thick chuncks. In the mule department there hass been a seasonable call for good haired, fat cotton mules 14.2 to 15.3 hands and blocky mine mules 15 hands and up. The market for small pit mules was not as satisfactory as it was a couple of weeks ago.

FURTHER DECLINE, THEN HIGHER CLOSE TO COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A further decline in the cotton market at the opening today was checked by covering and a little more trade buying at 11.55 for January contracts. Rallies followed, January selling up to $11.84 and closing at $11.80. The general market closed steady at net advances of 9 to 19 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of one point on December, but generally 2 to 10 points lower. Some buying on the steadier showing of Liverpool was quickly supplied by continued southern hedging and further liquidation of old long accounts.

All months made new low records for the season. December selling off to $11.85 on 5 points net lower in the first few minutes, while later deliveries showed net declines of 10 to 12 points. May selling at 12.02. Recent sellers seemed disposed to take profits for over the week-end, or in advance of the approaching government report, while the lower prices also appeared to bring in a little more trade demand, sufficient to absorb offerings.

Prices rallied later, December selling up to 12.11 and May to 12.28, net advances of about 14 to 21 points on active position. Last prices were a little off from the best under realizing by early buyers, but there was very little southern selling in evidence here after the first half hour.

Private cables said there had been liquidation of near months in Liverpool but that the decline had induced covering by shorts and continental buying.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 155,000 bales, against 120,000 last year.

Part of the buying on the early decline here was attributed to belief that the market had discounted some increases in the estimate of the crop and the technical position of the market had been strengthened by the heavy liquidation of the past week.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—After one of the most remarkable declining movements in the history of the exchange when prices moved off daily for over a week without a reaction, the market rallied 30 points today and closed 10 to 15 points over last night. As May approached 11 cents resistance was encountered and room traders covered actively the last hour of the day. Spots were 20 points higher at 12.35c.

WHEAT IS HIGHER IN TRADING FOR WEEK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Wheat showed strength after an easier opening today. Commission house buying was a little broader and some local professionals also were bullish, although the rank and file of the local trade sold on bulges and had to cover at higher prices later. Closing prices were 1c to 1⅝c higher and for the week, 1⅝c to 4c higher. December, $1.39⅝@$1.39¾; May, $1.41¼@1.41⅝; July, $1.33⅝.

The market was strong most of the week, largely because of the excellent manner in which the December deliveries were financed and the tightness in the current delivery.

There was nothing in today's news to account for the activity and the only excuse that could be given for the buying was strength in Winnipeg and the closing advance of 1c at Buenos Aires. Germany bought 750,000 bushels of Argentine wheat for January shipment at 3c under the price of any No. 2 grade of any North American wheat. Local shippers sold 10,000 bushels of chicken feed wheat.

Corn had a sharp upward trend. A feature was the heavy buying by local professionals. Pressure to sell was light until prices were up nearly 2c from the bottom. Closing prices were ¼c to 1¼c higher and for the week 2¼c to 3¼c up. December 74¼@74⅜c; May, 83⅛c; July, 85⅝@85¾c. Shipping sales were 20,000 bushels.

Oats trade was quiet early but investment buying improved because of strength in other grains and prices worked higher, closing unchanged to ¼c up and for the week 1⅝c to 3c higher. December, 43⅞c; May, 48¼@48⅜c; July, 47¼@47⅜c. Shipping sales were only 62,000 bushels.

Provisions were irregular. Lard rallied on Eastern buying but meats were lower under liquidation. Lard closed 2¼c to 10c higher; ribs, 15c to 35 clower; bellies, 45c lower.

U. S. IMPORTS FOR OCTOBER LARGER THAN YEAR AGO

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A decline in the value of American exports for October, as compared with a year ago, was shown in Commerce Department figures today to have been due largely to a decrease in European buying.

Part of the recession was accounted for by lower prices for cotton and wheat, the quantities bought by Europe showing little change.

Imports to the United States during October increased materially as compared with last year from all parts of the globe, with the exception of those from Asia. The decline there was due more to a fall in the price of rubber than to an increase of American consumption.

The following comparisons of exports or October, 1926, and October, 1925, were made:

	Oct., 1926.	Oct., 1925.
EXPORTS.
Europe	$235,577,936	$282,668,813

Purchases of the United Kingdom from the United States were $97,630,545, against $121,392,825 last year. United Kingdom exports to the United States were $33,637,219, against $37,733,036.

Germany bought in the United States during the month goods to a value of $47,003,999. Last year the figures were $56,481,166. German exports to the United States were $17,750,318, against $15,702,528.

WHEAT SELLS HIGHER ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Dec. 4.—Wheat and corn closed higher at the week-end session on the local market.

Higher Winnipeg and Buenos Ayres markets were reported.

Cash wheat was higher. Unfavorable weather was reported factor in corn trade. A Chicago dispatch said export bids for all rail shipment of wheat from Chicago today close to a working basis. Less fear of probable surpluses in Argentine and Australia was noted."

Soft wheat was ½c to 1c higher, there being good demand and everything cleaned up readily. Local mills and country mill order buyers were in market. Hard wheat was 1c better, with improved demand, mills taking the good grades and elevators off grades. Mixed wheats also were better. Cash corn prices ranged up 1½c, bulk of sales at 1c advance. Trade was active, offerings of new corn being freer and the demand broadened out. Elevator interests took 8 or 10 cars, while up till this time industries were the only buyers of consequence. Mills and local trade took the old crop offerings. There was good demand for oats and offerings cleaned up at 1c to 1½c advance. Local trade and shippers bought.

The opening in wheat was fractionally higher and during trading subsequently the slight gain was held or increased. Corn also sold on a higher basis. Winnipeg wheat early was ½c higher. Liverpool wheat closed ⅛d to ⅝d lower.

Weekly Metal Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The volume of new buying in the steel market during the past week was again of small proportion and it was generally conceded that business was slowing down quite generally, with only a few bright spots here and there. Prices were comparatively little affected, however, and while buyers seemed well supplied for the immediate future or until the end of the present year, leading authorities were quite optimistic relative to the future of the market and seemed to be anticipating at least a partial revival of business after the turn of the new year.

Pig iron was quiet, with buyers generally indifferent, but prices were well maintained.

Lead remained steady, but the buying was routine. Unsettlement of the London market has been one of the sources tending to curtail activity.

Inquiries for copper showed improvement, with apparently the low price attracting attention. Producers were naming 13.55 cents delivered in the Connecticut Valley and there were intimations that some sellers were naming 13.50 cents for shipment the first quarter of the year.

Tin was a shade easier for prompt delivery positions, but future shipments were maintained in a dull market. The tendency appears to be to limit buying to requirements as a result of the probability of a fair increase in the visible supply for the month and the relatively high prices that rule now.

A slight improvement in demand for zinc occurred, largely in the way of early shipment.

Antimony was firm with more consuming interest, although the bulk was for future shipment from China.

Steel Market.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Steel prices unchanged.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review today, says:

"A further substantial rise in French francs, fresh signs of an approaching heavy holiday trade, easier money, an important wage increase, a new record volume in capital flotations, an interesting crop of railroad earnings statements and publication of trade statistics that reveal some contraction in business activity from a year ago, were the events of the week on which interest in the financial district converged. Not much is known about the situation even in the best informed circles here, but the spectacular advance of the French franc to a new recent high at 3.96c, which represents a gain of over 100 per cent from the low of 1.95 reached this year on July 20, stands out as the most interesting if not the most important development of the week. No satisfactory explanation for so pronounced a move has been found, either in the French Bank statement or any plans announced to date for stabilization.

Plan Not Clear.

"That the Poincare Government is embarking upon a new experiment and contrary to the plan employed by Great Britain, where the currency was restored to parity or the one adopted by Belgium, where the gold point was fixed at the market level, hopes to lift the franc part way back to normal before revaluing it, is not clear. There are some very good reasons, indeed, why the Government might be opposed to so rapid an improvement at this time in the exchange, since settlements are thereby made more difficult. Back of the whole upward movement lies, of course, the return of confidence in their own government on the part of the French people but the momentum of the rise has been accelerated by the desire of French commercial interests and investors to turn their funds back quickly into their own money.

Return of Capital.

"In other words, whereas early in the year there was an exodus of capital from France, the movement of late has been reversed and each fresh rally in itself hurries the advance of compelling Frenchmen in greater numbers and in greater haste to bring their money home before still further improvement occurs. Much has been said about the switch from foreign to home investments, but a still more significant aspect of the situation is the pressure from French merchants and business men to get their funds in so as to be able to set aside cheap francs with which to pay future obligations. What part the Government has played in the operation, at what level stabilization will be attempted and when overtures for a settlement of the debt issue, nobody knows, and, therefore, appraisals of the situation by commentators here cannot be accepted as better than guesses.

Issues Total $259,000,000.

"Financing of two Standard Oil units this week carried the total new flotations up to a new weekly high in several years, but the aggregate of $259,000,000 in securities was readily absorbed at prices which indicate a strong position for the bond market. In only one week this year, and that back in February, has the volume of security flotations reached the $200,000,000 level, and not since the Dodge financing has so large an issue been offered to the public by any company as this week was brought out by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. It is significant that the market price of the latter's 5 per cent debentures, offered Monday at 100¾, touched 102¾ this week and that the Standard Oil Co. of New York yesterday quickly sold an issue of 4½ per cent debentures on a 4.65 yield basis. Such transactions testify to the sound position of the money market and the added fact, of course, that the bankers are anticipating the huge reinvestment demand of the season.

What Statistics Show.

"In the first of the month statistics on the performances of industry evidence may be found of the failure of trade to mount on up as it has been and even, for that matter, of some contraction from the abnormal levels established a year ago, but it is too early to draw conclusions on the general trend. Bank clearings for November were slightly below those of a year ago, collections are smaller than last year at this time, wholesale trade is smaller, but the Federal Reserve Bank officials in New York reckon that the year's total business will run about 5 per cent above that for 1925. The change from the year previous represented a 6 per cent gain in 1925, a 2 per cent loss in 1924 and a 12 per cent gain in 1923. Even if at a slightly slower pace, activity in business continues at a high level and will enter the new year with real momentum."

Stocks Irregular Saturday.

"Cross currents in speculative sentiment stood out in bolder relief in today's financial markets and price movements lacked uniformity. Although many of the recently strong high-priced industrials were still in good demand, reactions in other parts of the list on profit-taking or renewed pressure for the decline gave the market an irregular appearance. Credit conditions remained satisfactory, with expectations of a continuance of easy rates for trading purposes. Bonds developed some irregularity, but in the main reflected good investment buying.

Baldwin Center of Interest.

"Transactions in Baldwin Locomotive again attracted most attention as traders discussed reports of a $10,000,000 profit for a pool engineered by Arthur W. Cutten of Chicago. Mr. Cutten's denial of the yarn was in line with assurances from well informed Stock Exchange firm members that the report lacked foundation in fact. Baldwin shares slumped more than 5 points under the weight of renewed speculative selling for the decline, but offerings were fairly well received after this set-back and a rebound followed. The other leaders in the industrial group pushed ahead, General Motors reaching a new peak on the current recovery, and the whole list reflected optimism over the outlook for good Christmas trade.

Franc Exchange Feature.

"Renewed strength in French francs was the only feature of an otherwise dull session in foreign exchanges. Rates on Paris climbed closer to the 4c level, and bankers who noted the heavy buying indicated the objective might be reached early next week. In some parts of the financial district the view prevailed that an effort would be made to stabilize the currency at about 4c. Sterling remained firm at $4.85, while lire displayed a steady tone. Elsewhere in the European list changes were small. The premium on the Canadian dollar was lost, rates on Montreal falling to par.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—New prices will be named on Chambrais for workshirts on Monday by the largest producers. Mill stocks are light, cotton goods generally have hesitated due to an unsettled cotton market. The gray goods demand was light. Yarns were barely steady. Burlaps were firm for spot shipment. Large imports and consumption of raw silk continue. Silk fabrics were quiet and hosiery and underwear of silk steady. New prices named on cotton underwear for fall are from 12½ to 15 per cent under a year ago. Linens were steady.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire from the New York Post Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign financial review today says:

"The most important feature of the week was the enormous trading in French exchange which could only be regarded as a return home of French capital that had flown from the country in the period of July when the heavy supply carried the franc down to 1.95 cents on July 20. Since then political tranquility has been an important factor in causing returning confidence but until recently Government operations had much to do with carrying along an upward movement.

"Since the beginning of the week, however, buying came in large blocks from other sources and yesterday bids were made for five million francs at a time carrying the rate for the franc up to 3.98 against a low of 3.53 early in the week.

"Italian exchange was naturally helped by this strength in French exchange, the lire advancing from 4.22 to 4.35.

"Sterling ranged close to $4.85 for cables all through the week although business in exchange on London was of large volume. There was some selling of spot exchange replaced by future commitments because of a disposition to take advantage of the high money rate here in the first half of the week.

"Spanish exchange developed strength and moved up 10 points from its low level of the first few days. Exchange on Norway which was under pressure for a time also became strong, crown checks moving up over 30 points to 25.50.

"Silver exchanges were under pressure during the greater part of the week, Hongkong ranging from 48.50 to 47.[illegible] and Shanghai falling from 59.87 to 5[illegible].

"In the Mexican exchange the silver peso with a parity of 50 cents was quoted at discounts ranging from 23 to [illegible] per cent early in the week, but buying of silver by Mexican institutions and curtailment of silver mining in Mexico caused improvement in the position on Thursday and Friday, the discount dropping to 12[illegible] per cent. Gold pesos with a parity of 49.66 yielded to 46.30 but also improved and moved up to above 47 cents.

"Brazilian exchange was steady for a good part of the week, milreis advancing to 12.60 on Thursday but yesterday was again weak following the message of President Luis on stabilizing of exchange on Brazil."

"Renewed strength in French francs was the only feature of an otherwise dull Saturday in foreign exchanges. Rates on Paris climbed closer to the 4c level and bankers who noted the heavy buying indicated the objective might be reached early next week. In some parts of the financial district the view prevailed that an effort would be made to stabilize the currency at about 4c. Sterling remained firm at $4.85, while lire displayed a steady tone. Elsewhere in the European list changes were small. The premium on the Canadian dollar was lost, rates on Montreal falling to par.

BOND PRICES RISE TO YEAR'S HIGHEST LEVELS

Absorption of Nearly $250,000,000 New Offerings During the Week.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Trading in the bond market quieted down today at the end of a week notable both for a rise in prices to the year's highest level and the absorption of nearly $250,000,000 of new offerings. A firm undertone was maintained but the buying movement began to taper off in most sections of the list.

French obligations held their recent gains as the franc mounted to the year's best price near the 4-cent level. Other foreign bonds also behaved well, the Belgian 7s holding around the year's peak and Mexican issues making further recovery.

Warner Sugar 7s displayed independent strength. The first mortgage bonds gained more than a point and the refunding issue climbed more than 2 points to above 75, nearly 20 points above the year's low.

Railroad liens forged slowly ahead with a good demand in evidence for such issues as Pennsylvania 6½s, New York, Ontario & Western general 4s, International Great Northern adjustment 6s, Atchison general and convertible 4s and most of the St. Paul junior obligations.

PUBLIC UTILITIES FEATURE ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Market tone and volume on the Curb Exchange today displayed the broadening tendencies of the last few days with most interest centering on public utility securities.

American Light quickly recovered 6 points and gains of a point or more were registered in Electric Bond and Share preferred, Electric Investors and American Gas.

Industrial shares were in demand around the preceding closing levels. A new feature appeared in the sharp roundup in Bucyrus, which rose 5 points to 230. Servel Corporation improved 1⅝ points in the opening transaction but reacted on the following dealings.

Oil shares were slightly higher but lacked any outstanding movement on market significance.

Lead, Zinc and Copper.

Lead was quiet at $7.80 per 100 lbs. in St. Louis Saturday. Zinc was weak at $7.10 per 100 pounds.

Turpentine, Flax, Linseed

Linseed oil quotations in lots of 1 to 4 barrels now 12.5c per lb for raw and 12.9c for boiled.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 4.—Close—Flax, Dec. $2.20⅛; January, $2.22⅛; May, $2.26.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The market for coffee futures was quiet today, with the price movement rather irregular. The opening was 8 points lower to 2 points higher, with near months relatively steady under liquidation, while there was some covering in later deliveries. March sold up from 14.67c to 14.75c, the market closing net 5 points lower to 3 points higher. Estimated sales, 10,000 bags. Closing quotations: December, 15c; January, 14.85c; March, 14.75c; May, 14.24c; July, 13.77c; September, 13.28c.

Spot coffee quiet; Rio 7s, 15¼c; Santos 4s, 20¾c to 20¼c. Cost and freight offers included part Bourbon 4s, 19.25c.

A good stock

Now and then, for special reasons, will sell very low. It is a bargain. American Securities Service investigations have just located such a stock —a basic industry, an old-established company, a stock which, for special reasons, is cheap. To acquaint you with the valuable service investors are obtaining from us, this sample report sent free. Simply ask for "Special."

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The raw sugar market was unchanged today with sales of 35,000 bags of Cuban from store and 25,000 bags for January shipment at 5.02c duty paid.

After ruling steady throughout the early session, with prices holding around the previous close on covering and trade buying raw sugar futures broke under increased outside selling and closed at net declines of 2 to 7 points. The selling was promoted by press reports from Cuba that President Machado would probably delay issuing the crop restriction decree until after the crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture of Cuba and other private individuals had been made. It was also reported that many planters now oppose restriction in the Cuban crop to 4,500,000 tons in view of the recent reduction in the European beet sugar estimate. Approximate sales 27,400 tons: December closed 3.14c; January 3.17c; March 3.12c; May 3.18c; July 3.26c; September 3.33c.

Refined sugar was quiet. Prices were unchanged at 6.05c to 6.25c for fine granulated.

THREATENED BREAK IS PATCHED UP

Game Scheduled for Oct. 15 After Two Days of Negotiations Between Edmunds and Brewer.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 4.—Settlement of football differences between the University of Washington and Missouri University, climaxed the schedule meeting of the Missouri Valley Conference here today.

Faculties and athletic representatives of the two schools agreed upon Oct. 15 for the game next year, to be played at St. Louis.

The game this fall was marred by a clash of students and a statement by Chancellor Hadley, blaming Missouri for the difficulty, strained relations to near the breaking point.

Two days of negotiations during the Valley Conference meeting brought an agreement to continue the ancient rivalry.

"We finally got together," Coach Edmonds of Washington said, for our annual football game next fall, on Oct. 15."

Athletic Director Brewer of Missouri, however, refused to commit himself, saying the situation was up to the athletic board of his university, or the administrative officials. Dean Manley, the Missouri faculty representative, likewise declined to confirm the date, until further conference had been held Columbia.

The faculty committee today changed the proposed date for the valley championship swimming meet, to March 9-10. It will be held at Ames, while the wrestling championship will be held at Kansas, March 10-11 as originally proposed by the athletic directors.

The tennis championships, which always go with the track meet, will be held at Lincoln, May 20-21. The cross country run was not awarded, although Oklahoma invited the conference harriers there again.

While the question of freshman competition did not come before the facutyt members formally, they approved the stand of the athletic directors in voting down freshman basketball competition. The football coaches broached the question of continuing the freshman football competition, inaugurated this year to raise funds for the Walter Camp Memorial. While frowning upon freshman competition generally, the faculty members decided to study the matter and vote upon it at their spring meeting in Lincoln, May 20-21.

Dean S. W. Beyer of Iowa State was elected as the Valley representative to the National Collegiate Athletic Association, meeting at New York during the Christmas holidays.

The Valley coaches perfected an organization today with Bob Simpson, Olympic star, who coaches the tracks squad at Iowa State as secretary. The chairmanship of the coaches association will go to the school which has the chairmanship of the athletic directors organization.

SHIFT PLAYS MUST STOP ONE SECOND IN ALL VALLEY GAMES

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 4.—Athletic directors of the Missouri Valley Conference today adopted a regulation for a one-second stop after all backfield shifts in football next fall.

In this they followed the lead of the Western Conference, which recently adopted a rule for a two-second pause after such plays.

The coaches present were almost unanimous in their desire to eliminate confusion in the minds of football officials occasioned by lack of a pause after shift plays.

The Oklahoma Aggies so far have negotiated three Valley games but are extending their intersectional list for games both at home and abroad. Athletic Director Gallagher has announced games will be played with Minnesota, Arkansas and Texas Christian University and a big Western team about lined up for a home date, the name of

Hornsby and Breadon Ready To Deal With Each Other, Brown Chiefs With Anyone

Business of Setting Things in Order for 1927 in Hot Stove League — Howley and Friel to Attend Minors' Meeting Looking for New Material.

With Manager Dan Howley and Business Manager Bill Friel of the Browns on the way to Asheville to attend the annual meeting of the minor league magnates and with Rogers Hornsby and Sam Breadon due to confer this week on the subject of a contract for the Cardinal manager for 1927, the Old Hot Stove League was steaming today.

Howley and Friel are stalking any game they happen to see. If they spy a good-looking coach at the minor league meeting they will grab him and sign him to a contract. If anybody has any players to trade or sell, Friel and Howley will lend willing ears and have their check books ready to do business in a big way.

President Breadon of the Cardinals announced Thursday that he would confer with Hornsby again the coming week and inasmuch as it would be advantageous for the Cardinal manager to attend the major league meetings, it is probable that every effort will be made to hasten an amicable settlement of the contract business and the best guess is that before the sun has battled very long with the smoke tomorrow morning, Breadon and Hornsby will square off, either in the Cardinal office or at the automobile company office of Breadon, and strive to come to an agreement.

Catcher Cards' Chief Need.

Charley Barrett will represent the Cardinals at the minor league meeting, but it would be fitting for Hornsby, who led the Cards to a pennant and a world's championship, to represent the champions at the National League session in New York Dec. 14 and the joint major league sessions in Chicago Dec. 16, and if the contract agreement is reached in time, Hornsby will make the trip to New York and Chicago and sound out other club owners and managers on the possibilities of procuring a capable catcher to assist Bob O'Farrell during the next pennant race.

While a victory by a narrow margin carries with it as much glory and cash as a victory by a mile, the Cardinals realize that they won the 1926 pennant by a narrow squeak and Hornsby and Breadon would like to reinforce the Cardinals. The additional catcher is the big necessity, though the outfield strength depends largely on whether Ray Blades' injured knee has recovered and whether Chick Hafey's sinus operation was successful. Hafey's vision was impaired by illness during the late stages of the 1926 pennant race and during the world series and unless he has recovered he will be unable to give satisfactory service in the outfield. If Hafey and Blades were lost to the team, added strength in that department would have to be obtained from the Cardinal farm.

Browns Ready for Anything.

Bill Friel said yesterday that he did not expect any startling news to emanate from Asheville, but that he and Howley would strive to lay the foundation work for trades which might materialize later. Several men are under consideration as coaches, but it is not known whether the candidates could obtain permission from their 1926 employers for a switch to the St. Louis Americans.

The two Brownie officials have made it plain that there will be wholesale trades during the winter, as many members of the squad have outlived their usefulness here. However, no intimation has been given as to the men to be given the air, as that might make it difficult to arrange the trades.

It is generally understood now that George Sisler will remain with the Browns. It would be hard to replace him and as he has expressed the desire to remain, only the formality of arranging contract terms delays official announcement that he will stay in the uniform in which he won his fame.

Iowa Wins Over St. Louis U. Five

Big Ten Basketball Team Outplays Billikens Throughout Game.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Dec. 4.—In an early season basketball game, the Iowa U. five romped over the St. Louis Billikens, 43 to 18. Neither team showed little more than a desire to hold the ball.

At the end of the first half, Iowa led, 28 to 7.

The second half was much the same as the first, during the last period, the Billikens fought harder and gave the Iowa regulars an interesting scrap.

The game was featured by the work of Wilcox, sophomore center for Iowa, who scored 13 points. Steinger counted five of St. Louis' points.

Hoppe Loses in 3-Cushion Match

Gus Copulos of Detroit Defeats Former Balkline King, 600-582.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Gus Copulos, the "Silent Greek," from Detroit defeated Willie Hoppe, former balk line champion by a score of 600 to 582 in their special 600 point three cushion match which came to an end at the Strand Academy tonight. Hoppe won the two final blocks by scores of 60 to 50 and 50 to 50 but he started the day with a twenty-eight point deficit.

Hoppe tried hard to overtake his Detroit rival tonight and at one period of the match he was within four points of Copulos. This was in the 37th inning. But from then on the playing of the former balk line champion fell away off and he was lucky to win the block.

He reached his 50th point in the 63d inning when he made a four cushion shot that won him the applause of the gallery.

When Hoppe won the block, Copulos was only two points behind. The Greek finally won the match in the 65th inning when he made a run of two.

WALKER WILL BE ALLOWED TO KEEP TITLE

Attitude of Commission Members Leaves Little Doubt of Decision—Judgment of Referee, Not His Honesty, Is Issue.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Mickey Walker will be permitted to retain his middleweight championship of the world. The Illinois State Athletic Association, after six hours' investigation, was not willing to make this announcement an authorized statement but the attitude of commission members interviewed by this writer left little doubt that when their final decision, reserved until next Tuesday, is handed down Referee Benny Yanger will be given the indorsement of the commission.

Yanger was under cross-examination by the commission for several hours today. Other witnesses were examined, more are still to testify as to the circumstances attending the fight last night between Tiger Flowers and the new titleholder.

But it was evident from the unofficial views of the commission Yanger would be protected, in the final estimate of the situation.

The rules of the State Athletic Commission do not permit the commission to interfere in the verdict of a referee unless it involves a question of rules. All matters of judgment on the part of officials must be supported by the commission.

Satisfied on Honesty.

As nearly as could be learned tonight the members of the commission are entirely satisfied as to the honesty of Yanger. There is, therefore, no other course open than to support his judgment.

Members of the State body stated tonight money due the fighter would be paid off at once and that financially the incident was over.

But the public and the critics here are still talking adversly about the verdict. It is probable no matter what the defense of the referee, public opinion will always maintain Negro Tiger Flowers was unfairly deprived of his title.

After being on the grill for several hours, Referee Dennis Yanger, who will be remembered as a sterling fighter by all St. Louis ring followers of 25 years ago, and who is today boxing instructor of the Chicago Athletic Association, issued a statement.

Yanger's Statement.

In this Yanger presents his side of the case and it has had great weight with the commission, by the members of which Yanger is highly regarded.

Yanger's statement follows:

When Mr. Righeimer called me into his office and told me that I was to be one of the five referees who would officiate at the Coliseum he stated that no matter which bout I refereed he wanted me to remember that he would consider me a part of the commission the same as himself, and wanted me to have this idea in mind to protect myself as well as the commission. I said that I always did this and would do it now and that no man would reach me. I also told Mr. Righeimer that I was not worth a lot of money and that money never meant much to me and that anybody who approached me with the idea of fixing a fight could not get anywhere.

I have been in the boxing game for about 25 years and have refereed actively for at least the last six years and have been connected with the Chicago Athletic Association since July, 1918 and have never been in any trouble.

When I called the fighters to the center of the ring before this bout I told Mr. Walker and Mr. Flowers I would expect them to box in strict accordance with the

Act Tomorrow To Lift Ban on City High Games

Board of Education Committed to Take First Step Toward Scrapping Rule.

The first oficial action in connection with the proposed abrogation by the Board of Education of the long standing rule limiting the scope of public high school athletic activities is promised for tomorrow when the Instruction Committee of the Board meets.

This committee has the power to rescind the rule subject to final approval by the Board in the meeting of Dec. 14. Favorable action by the committee tomorrow is indicated by previous statements to The Post-Dispatch by the three members of the committee, Richard Murphy, Emil Barth, and Arthur Blumeyer, all of whom indorsed the move of Stephen Wagner, president, proposing the abrogation of the rule.

A majority of the board members have indicated support of the move in response to a Post-Dispatch poll so that there appears to be little doubt that the ban will be finally lifted.

The disadvantages of the rule were pointed out in a Post-Dispatch editorial, following which Stephen Wagner began an investigation of the facts, consulting school officials here and elsewhere, finally arriving at the decision to inaugurate the move which followers of high school athletics had long desired. In a letter addressed to the Post-Dispatch, Wagner pointed out that the new stadium being constructed made inter-city competitions more desirable and more practical, and expressed the opinion that such competition would have had a broadening influence on students.

Statement Indorsed.

Wagner's statement received the immediate indorsement of Ben Weidle, school board member and chairman of the Finance Committee, and Murphy, Blumeyer, Barth, Schollmeyer and other members expressed support of the measure shortly afterward.

The rule in question limited the play of high school teams to games with schools within a 25-mile radius, which robbed local teams of a try at State championships. The

5 Westerners On Team Picked By 100 Experts

East Loses Balance of Power for the First Time.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—For the first time in nearly 40 years of All-America football ranking, the distinction of carrying off the most places on the mythical all-star college eleven passes from the East to the Middlewest.

This was revealed today in a nation-wide consensus compiled by the Associated Press and reflecting the opinions of more than 100 coaches and critics. With no college having more than one representative on the first eleven, the consensus shows the Middlewest gaining five places, the East four while the South and far West occupy one each.

Not since the late Walter Camp first established the All-American idea in 1889, with a team composed entirely of Eastern players has the balance of power passed before to the other side of the Alleghanies. Last year, the East had six of the 11 positions on the first team compilation by the Associated Press, the Middlewest three and far West two.

Taking the 1926 squad as a whole, however—first, second and third teams—the East retains its traditional leadership with 14 out of 33 places. The Middlewest has 11, the far West five and South three. Twenty-six institutions are represented on the list.

All-Western Backfield.

This year's campaign hasn't been lacking in individual stars, but comparatively few, particularly among the backfield performers, have captured popular imagination to the extent that Red Grange, George Wilson, Ernie Nevers, "Swede" Oberlander and others did in 1925.

Herb Joesting, Minnesota's plunging fullback, is an exception. He came near to being the unanimous choice of the experts, who selected this year's All-America lineup. His running mates—Friedman of Michigan, Kaer of Southern California, and Baker of Northwestern—all polled heavy votes, but it was by a comparatively slim margin that they gained

TOUCHDOWN IN LAST FOUR MINUTES GIVES ROCKNE'S MEN A 13 TO 12 VICTORY

Parisien and Flanagan Star in Triumph for South Bend Eleven—Failure to Kick Goal After Touchdown Fatal to Trojans.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4.—Speed on the breaks, headwork in the pinches, ability to kick goal when it was needed and baffling strategy gave the Notre Dame football team a 13 to 12 victory over Southern California here today.

The Trojans lost the first of the five intersectional games played primarily because there apparently was not a single player in the team's big squad who could kick the extra goal point after touchdown.

Notre Dame failed to do this once, but made good on its other try and thereon hung the victory and the honor. An upstretched Trojan hand, there in an attempt to block the kick, worked with reverse english and tipped the pigskin just enough to send it over the bar.

The South Bend, Ind., team came to the Trojan's backyard smarting under a defeat at the hands of Carnegie Tech last week. It headed for home tonight with the mythical title of second place national champion tucked away neatly in the hip pocket of its new-fangled silk pants.

Only One Fumble in Game.

With the exception of the last four minutes of play the battle was a grim scramble between two evenly matched football machines keyed up to near perfect playing pitch. There was one fumble, that by Hearndon, of Notre Dame, but he recovered the ball himself.

The last four minutes, with twilight falling and Parisien's generalship functioning in high, brought the South Benders to the top of their form and in that brief period of action Southern California went down before a momentarily superior football aggregation.

Rockne had pulled his last quarterback out of the reserve list when he sent Parisien to do the trick of victory. Riley, Edwards and McNally had preceded him and had starred but Parisien was dazzling. He shot a 25-yard pass to Niemic on Southern California's 20-yard line. Then his unerging hand heaved another to Niemic, who went over for the touchdown that won.

Morton Kaer, U. of S. C.'s great ground gainer, lived up to his reputation for long advances, but he went out of the game in the third period after a hard tackle out of bounds by R. Smith.

Kaer Is Chief Ground Gainer For Losers; Figures Favor Victors

The first period was even so far as straight football was concerned. It was marked by a flock of penalties, an absence of any real gains by forward passes. Kaer provided the fire works with a 17-yard advance.

During the first period, Rockne held his second string men in play and shifted to his stars only at the start of the second period. Flanagan and Hearndon bucked for first down from their 27-yard mark. Hearndon passed 13 yards to Riley. O'Boyle got off around right end to Southern California's 20-yard line and Riley, screened by interference so perfect that the Trojans looked in vain for the ball, went over for a touchdown. O'Boyle kicked the goal and, although he did not know it then, his toe had won the game.

After a see-saw, Kaer tucked the leather under his eblow and reeled off a 30-yard run, the first step towards a Trojan score. Kaer next passed to Behrendt who slid to the one-yard line, after a 41-yard gain with an Indiana holding to his heels. Kaer bucked it over.

Brice Taylor's boot failed for the extra point where O'Boyle's had made good. Drury similarly was unsuccessful some time later and thereby the battle was lost.

Williams Goes Over.

The third period was a blank in scoring and Williams took up the heavy work for Southern California after Kaer retired.

In a succession of effective bucks aided by Wheeler and Laraneta, Southern California forced the ball to Notre Dame's 11-yard line. Then Williams went to first down on the 8-yard mark and next over for a touchdown. Drury, lame in the knees, could not kick the added point.

Among the spectators were some of the foremost football coaches in the country, on hand to spot the strategy of the two tylists. Howard Jones, of Southern California, and Knute Rockne, old master of Notre Dame. The list included Tad Jones of Yale, brother of Howard, Warner of Stanford; McEwan, formerly of West Point, and now of Oregon; Price of California; Madigan of St. Mary's Hollingberry of Washington State; Walsh of Santa Clara, once center of Rockne's greatest team; Bagshaw of Washington, and Erb of Idaho. Also there sat in the stands Jess Parker, Notre Dame's old coach before Rockne took hold of the squad.

Everyone of the 76,000 seats in the Coliseum Stadium was filled.

Figures Favor Winners.

Figures compiled from running statistics of the game showed that Notre Dame gained 288 yards from scrimmage against Southern California's 241 yards. Notre Dame registered 11 first downs, Southern California 13; seven of Notre Dame's passes were completed out of 16; S. C. made good one out of five, three of which were intercepted. Notre Dame gained close to 90 yards via the aerial route, the Trojans 41 yards on their one heave.

Rockne's men punted nine times, Jones' team seven, the average gain for the Easterners being 41 yards and for Southern California 38.

Thirteen penalties were split, seven for Notre Dame, six for U. S. C. The South Benders losing 55 yards thereby and Southern California 40.

OKLAHOMA CITY AND TULSA TO REMAIN IN WESTERN LEAGUE

By the Associated Press.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 4.—The Tulsa and Oklahoma City baseball clubs will remain in the Western League and will not be transferred to the Texas League, Dale Gear, president of the Western League announced tonight. He said everything had been arranged to the satisfaction of the clubs at a conference.

The league's "rookie rule," which required that six out of 16 men carried by each club should not have any previous experience in Class A baseball, was abolished, Mr. Gear also announced.

FOUR ROOSEVELT HIGH PLAYERS GAIN PLACES ON ALL-STAR TEAM

CLEVELAND AND SOLDAN HAVE 3 EACH

Mowry, Peck and Sauselle Especially Popular in Balloting by Letter Men of Five Schools.

1926 All-Star Football Teams Of High Schools

FIRST TEAM.
Peck, Soldan, center.
Hill, Roosevelt, right guard.
Rost, Beaumont, right tackle.
Schumitzky, Soldan, right end.
Sauselle, Roosevelt, quarterback.
Carroll, Roosevelt, left half.
Hornsby, Cleveland, fullback.
Graham, Cleveland, right half.

SECOND TEAM.
Willits, Central, center.
Barnhouse, Beau'ont, right guard.
Heinrichs, Central, right tackle.
Groepper, Roosevelt, right end.
Thompson, Cleveland, quarter.
Johanningmeier, Soldan, fullback.
Jarrett, Roosevelt, right half.

Individual voting by letter men of five public high school football squads conducted by the Post-Dispatch yesterday resulted in four members of the Roosevelt High team gaining places on the 1926 "All-Star" team, when Vandover, Hill, Sauselle and Carroll, of Coach Lee Carlson's squad were elected to the mythical eleven. Soldan and Cleveland are each represented by three members, Mowry, Graham and Hornsby having been selected from Fenenga's team and Schmuitsky, Pulford and Peck of Soldan being likewise awarded positions. Beaumont managed to place Rost at the right tackle position while Central High escaped recognition although three members of the Red and Black squad were chosen for the second team.

Three men were especially popular in the balloting, Mowry of Cleveland, Peck of Soldan and Sauselle of Roosevelt. The election of these men came very close to being unanimous and with very good reason as each of these three played consistently throughout the season. Pulford and Schmuitsky of Soldan and Carroll of Roosevelt were given a decisive vote.

Mowry Important Cog.

Joe Mowry at left end besides being a valuable defensive man showed especially well on the offense while his place kicking ability which he demonstrated so ably in the Central game, made him an important cog in the championship Cleveland team. Mowry scored a total of 17 points during the season, 13 of which came in a single game when Cleveland blanked Central High 13 to 0. On this occasion, while playing a defensive backfield position, Mowry intercepted a Central pass and eluded several tacklers to complete a 69-yard run at the goal posts. Mowry kicked successfully for the point after that touchdown and topped off a fine game with two place kicks of 40 and 48 yards each, the latter being within eight yards of equaling the existing collegiate record.

Schumitzky of Soldan, chosen for the other wing, is a certain tackler and seldom fails to to stop sweeps around his side of the line, despite a rather meager poundage of 145. Schmuitsky carried the ball on some end-over plays and always managed to add some yardage. The Soldan end topped off the season by scoring both of his team's touchdowns in the 12-0 defeat of Beaumont last week.

Roosevelt Gets Guards.

Pulford of Soldan and Rost of Beaumont chosen for the tackle position were aggressive linemen that are clearly entitled to the vote they received. Heinrichs of Central, however, gave Rost a battle for the position and was consigned to a second team berth by the margin of a few votes. Pulford finished far in the lead of any other candidate.

Roosevelt managed to take both guard positions when Vandover and Hill of the Rough Riders won these positions, nosing out Worheide of Cleveland and Barnhouse of Beaumont. Both Hill and Vandover play well on the defense and generally managed to provide a gap for their plunging backfield.

Peck gained a well deserved plurality neither Willits of Central, nor Heitz of Roosevelt receiving more than 10 votes each. Peck was an accurate passer and the most valuable man of Soldan's defense, the Brown and Gold pivot man having spelled the failure of many an enemy attempt to gain through the line.

Generalship Counts.

Sauselle of Roosevelt displayed generalship in directing the Rough Riders and was an open field runner the equal of any ball carrier in the league. Bill Carroll successful Crimson candidate for a halfback position was probably the most consistent ground gainer in the league, and has the added honor of being the leading scorer of the season with a total of 24. Carroll equalled Mowry's feat by scoring all of Roosevelt's 13 points to defeat Central in the last league game of the season. Graham of Cleveland took the other halfback position without much difficulty. The work of Graham featured the defeat of Roosevelt in Cleveland's most difficult game of the season when the speedy back broke away for a 68-yard run to the goal. Hornsby, All-Star fulback, scored the second and deciding touchdown of that game after intercepting a Roosevelt pass. Hornsby, however, although his play otherwise was of the best, won his place chiefly through his punting ability. Jarrett, Roosevelt captain, was a close rival for Graham's position.

Landis Arrives For Meeting of Minor Leagues

Silent on Re-election Plans—Western League Withdrawals Submitted.

By the Associated Press.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Dec. 4.—Headed by Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, hundreds of club owners and managers arrived here today for the twenty-fifth annual session of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which meets Tuesday.

Judge Landis declined to say whether he would accept the commissioner's job for another seven years, if elected on Dec. 16, and immediately went to the golf course.

Western League officials tonight appointed a committee to interview Doak Roberts, president of the Texas League, to learn if it is agreeable with his organization for Tulsa and Oklahoma City to withdraw from the Western and join the Texas League.

Roberts declined to make any comment on the move, although the committee saw him after the meeting. "I will put the matter up to the club owners and managers on Monday when they get here," he said. "I have no authority to act."

It was said that James Crawford, president of the Tulsa club, had offered the Western League $25,000 for the privilege of withdrawing and that Oklahoma city offered the same amount.

The Board of Arbitration was scheduled to meet in the afternoon, but its session was postponed until Monday morning on account of absentees.

The first commercial transaction of the convention took place when Des Moines employed Matt Donahue, former first sacker for Mobile, Southern Association, to play first base for the Western League pennant holders.

Duffey Lewis, once a member of the famous Speaker-Lewis-Hopper combination, was ready to enter into any transaction which would give him a managerial post for next year. He managed Mobile last year.

Benny Hall Loses.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Davey Abad, of Panama received the judges decision in a 10-round bout here tonight over Benny Hall of St. Louis. The weights were Abad 120 and Hall 119.

Helen Wills Declares Net Game is Becoming Increasingly Important

Development of Play by Stars Proves How Big a Factor It Is in Tennis—It Tends to Cut Short the Rallies.

By Helen Wills.
(Copyright. 1926.)

THE volley holds such an important place in the game of tennis that the beginner should be aware of it from the very first, and try to incorporate it into his growing game as he goes along.

Contrary to general belief among those who do not play tennis a great deal or who are just beginning, the volleying game is not an extremely difficult one to learn. That is, if the fundamental rules are observed. There is no real reason why every palyer should not take the position at the net with confidence. So often one sees players who are very good in the backcourt, and yet who are lost in the forecourt.

Helen Wills.

In this day of hart-hitting tennis, the volley is to be found in the repertoire of strokes of all of the best players. There is no one among the highest ranking men players who remains consistently in the backcourt.

In ladies' tennis, however, the introduction of net play has been, in comparison, more recent. Mrs. Mallory, for example, confines her play entirely to the backcourt, and has no true volleying form. Mlle. Didi Vlasto is entirely a backcourt player. The rest of the women players are able to volley with more or less ease. Mrs. Godfrey and Miss Elizabeth Ryan are both extremely good at the net. I believe that these two, with Mlle. Lenglen, stand out as the very best women volleyers.

Becoming More Important.

After having seen the tennis abroad, and numerous matches in America, during the season just passed, I feel safe in saying that the volley is becoming more and more, a dominant factor in the game. The French players, Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet, seem always to be at the net. This may be a slight exaggeration—but it is apparent from their play that they believe the winning game is there.

Borotra is certainly the most spectacular volleyer of the day. Most of the balls he reaches at the net are put away with great decisiveness. He jumps and leaps in the most agile fashion. At times, he seems to be almost upside down. The name "The Bounding Basque" is appropriate. His marvelous quickness of foot and eye make this sort of net play possible. For the onlooker, he is always fascinating to watch, because of his daring and vivacity. With this brilliant play there is combined a manner and a certain happy-go-lucky air which invariably wins the hearts of those who are watching.

Henri Cochet has also perfected a beautiful volleying game. He, like Borotra, is marvelously quick. His most interesting shot out of the air is his overhead smash. Because he is small, his opponents often attempt to lob over his head, but after a few trys, they change their tactics, for Cochet rarely misses an overhead—so rarely, in fact, that when he does, the onlooker is surprised. Even if the ball is a high one he springs into the air, bends back and brings all of his steel-like muscles into action, and the ball goes whizzing like a bullet to the place he has chosen for it on his opponent's court. To me, his overhead stands out as the most perfect and the most consistent one seen on the courts.

Where Net Play Helps.

The advantages of the net game are many. It cuts short much of the long rallying on the baseline. It makes tennis more interesting and exciting. The net position brings more pleasure to the player—at least to me when I am playing. When you win a point at the net by a decisive volley, it is much more fun than if you had won the point on an error of your opponent following a long rally in which you each waited for the other to drive out or in the net. Watchful waiting in tennis is without doubt, a bore.

The net game is a thrilling one. It makes for faster tennis and more decisive play. It drags the defensive player out of his shell, and gives him new confidence and a keener spirit. To beginners and to players who have started their games, the message of the net game is this: "Break down the wall that keeps you in the backcourt, lift your feet out of the baseline glue, and partake of the thrills and pleasures of the volleying game!"

Jennings Will Return to Game

It Will Not Be as Coach of Giants, However, He Asserts.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 4.—Declaring that he never felt better in his life, Hughie Jennings, assistant manager of the New York Giants and former leader of the Detroit Tigers, announced today that he would get back into baseball next spring. Jennings has been away from the diamond more than a year because of a nervous breakdown.

Jennings will not rejoin the Giants when he returns to the game.

"I have my own reasons for not desiring to join the New York Club," Jennings said. "McGraw and I are the best of friends, but no offer from the Giants can get me back."

Jennings stated that he is desirous of heading some club, but does not want a position that will require him to get out on the coaching lines and give the "E-Yah" yell that made him famous. That work is too strenuous now, he said.

Jennings declined to comment on a report that he has been offered the berth of manager of Cleveland Americans from which Tris Speaker recently resigned.

May Get Speaker's Post.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 4.—Reports that Hughie Jennings, former manager of the Detroit Tigers, is to succeed Tris Speaker as manager of the Cleveland Indians of the American League, reached here from Scranton, Pa., Jennings' home.

Jennings, who returned recently from a sanitarium where he spent a year following a breakdown, refused to confirm or deny the rumors, but asserted that he will return to baseball this spring. He denied that he is to return to the New York Giants, where he held a berth as assistant manager until the breakdown more than a year ago.

rules and that open hand punches don't go.

When Flowers claimed he was hit low in the fourth round and went down I told him he was all right, to go ahead and fight.

When he did come back he fought all right and if he was hit low, he could not come back and fight like he did. I thought this was unsportsmanlike and that he was trying to get away with the fight on a foul and this fact had a great influence in my final decision.

Used Heel of Glove.

Flowers also persisted in open-hand fighting which does not mean anything, and he was warned to keep his gloves closed. Flowers also used the heel of his glove in the clinches and several times hit Walker on the back of the neck with the heel of the glove and wrist. According to the rules open-hand punches and punches where the heel of the hand is used do not count as points and a man using these punches after being warned might be subject to having a decision rendered against him. It would be tough to take a championship away from a man in that way.

The rule book says you cannot hit with open gloves or use these heeling tactics. If you do not live up to the rules you might just as well not have them. Flowers kept slapping and using his thumb in all the clinches and heeling Walker all through the 10 rounds. Flowers is a smart colored fellow at the game and I suppose he thought he could get away with this stuff. He also used his head and butted Walker, which opened a cut over his left eye, and he kept opening that cut with an open glove called "flicking," throughout the fight.

A Clean Knockdown.

Walker showed aggressiveness and forced the fight and in the ninth round scored a clean knockdown. Walker forced the fight in the tenth round and was doing all the real hitting the same as he did throughout the fight. I mean his blows had something back of them and counted for real points. He also fought clean throughout the fight.

I feel that I gave my decision as I saw it with a clear conscience and I still feel the same way.

(Signed) BENNY YANGER.

The Yanger statement may be true regarding the offenses committed by Flowers but, if the warning mentioned was given it was not evident to ringsiders. Furthermore, the bearing of Flowers' open-fist right-hand jabs on the fight was absolutely negligible, as no damage whatever could have been done by them. The fact that Walker was always on the defense shows that the left-hand blows of Flowers were doing the damage.

It is a recognized fact that all championship fights are noted for the fouls committed, but in this battle it is the writer's opinion that no foul blows worth consideration were struck except by Walker, who landed several inches below the waist line on Flowers with a blow that struck the Negro's protector.

Decision by Tuesday.

Commissioner Paul Prehn said to the Post-Dispatch representative:

"We have considered the matter from every angle and have yet to hear several witnesses. We feel that justice cannot be done without more time. I think we will be able to reach a final decision by next Tuesday.

"This morning we heard the testimony of Yanger and we are issuing his statement as to how he arrived at his verdict. I may say at this time that the commission, despite some ugly testimony we have heard, is not inclined to doubt the honesty of Yanger, who, for the 20 years has lived among us since his retirement, honored and respected. If anything was wrong it was with the judgment of the official, not his integrity.

"However, we are hearing all sides in the matter. I am not prepared to intimate what our action may be or whether we shall discipline Yanger. If an injustice has been done we will endeavor to right it in every way the commission rules permit. That is as far as I can go. We are trying to protect the game.

"We have no authority to insist that Flowers and Walker put on their return match. If that is part of their contract, it is up them and the promoters. The c mission is not in the promoti game.

Fighters to Get Pay.

evident they were parties to no pr arrangement. They fought a go

EXPERTS' VIEWS ON YANGER'S DECISION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—How the experts viewed Benny Yanger's decision in the Walker-Flowers middleweight championship fight:

Walter Eckersall, Tribune.—It looked to me as if the champion were entitled to the decision by a wide margin. Many of the ringsiders thought Yanger had held up the wrong fighter's hand by mistake. In most of the rounds, Flowers did all the fighting and Mickey was always grabbing the champion's arms to stop their piston-like swinging.

Joe Foley, Chicago Journal.—That the verdict stunned the crowd is putting it mildly. Yanger made a mistake but an honest one.

Don Maxwell, Tribune.—Deacon Flowers converted everybody in the big congregation by beating Mickey Walker in extremely decisive fashion. But he couldn't convert the referee. Even Walker was surprised when Yanger held up his hand.

Clair T. Kelly, American.—The boys who pay and pay to see fights here are wondering how Benny Yanger got that way. The writer thought it was Flowers' fight to the considerable extent of seven rounds in the Tiger's favor.

Fred Hayner, Daily News.—Flowers won five rounds going away and could easily have been given three others. He slapped Walker all around the ring at all times and was consistently the aggressor. He was the faster man of the two and was in trouble only in the ninth.

Warren Brown, Examiner.—Yanger was probably influenced in his decision by Walker's finish. Mickey had Flowers on the floor in the ninth round and staggered him on another occasion.

Harry Cross, New York Daily News.—I can't see any excuse for such a decision. Flowers won by a wide margin.

Emerson W. Dickerson, Grand Rapids referee.—Yanger seems to have made a bad mistake.

Jimmy Daugherty, Philadelphia referee.—How can they be so dumb?

Leo Flynn, New York, manager of fighters.—The only decision I recall as bad as Yanger's was when Mickey Walker was given the verdict over Dave Shade.

1926 RECORDS SHOW PITCHING ALONE WON'T WIN PENNANTS

Yankees' Hurlers Rank Fourth in Earned-Run Efficiency — Browns Tied for Last Place.

FIGURES ON A. L. PITCHING STAFFS

THE following table shows how the combined pitching staffs of the American League clubs performed during the 1926 season with the order of finish of the teams in the pennant race:

Club.	C.G.	Av.	Inn.	E.R.	Finish
Philadelphia	67	3.15	1301	456	3

Browns	60	4.50	1176	586	7
Boston	47	4.50	1268	633	8

By Herman Wecke.

It was the late Addie Joss, a great pitcher, who once remarked: "A pitcher is 80 per cent of a baseball club." But before that day, the cry of the manager was "Give us pitchers and we will make a showing in the pennant race." And today it's still pitching, pitching and then more pitching.

Now, here's the rub. It's not always the club with the pitching that wins the pennants. That was evinced in the 1926 pennant race in the American League. The Yanks captured the title, but records on the twirlers show that the New York hurlers, as a combined staff, did not lead the American League. Not by a lot. In fact, the men who labored on the hill for Miller Huggins, ranked fourth in a group.

The figures further prove that Connie Mack, when his entire staff is taken into consideration, had the outstanding twirling in the circuit. But the Athletics did not win the flag. Pennant winners need something more than pitching. That something, the old base hit, was lacking in the case of the Philadelphia Americans and for that reason the club finished among the also rans. Had the hitters upheld the sensational work of Mack's hurlers—they were found for an average of but 3.15 earned runs a game—the White Elephants might have done better.

Baseball records show only one instance when a sensational pitching staff carried a weak hitting team to victory. That occurred in when Ed Walsh and other great stars hurled the White Sox, known as the "hitless wonders," to triumph. Connie Mack's twirlers were not good enough to repeat the trick.

Browns as Bad as Any.

The figures bring out other interesting features. They show that the staff of twirlers, on combined marks, did worse work than those Manager George Sisler of the Browns had to call on during the season. The Browns' twirlers gave earned markers in each battle. That mark was equaled by the members of the Red Sox staff. Everyone knows where the Red Sox finished in the American League race. Ditto the Browns. However, if there still be some misinformed persons, it might be stated that the Browns finished seventh, with the Boston entry a hopeless last. Brownie hillmen in 1176 innings were found for 586 earned runs and those of the Red Sox for in 1268 frames.

All of which shows that the two clubs finished just the way the pitching indicated they would.

Except for the case of the league leaders in the 1926 flag scramble, the work of the hurlers, as compared to the order of finish in the championship race, stands up pretty good.

The twirlers of the pennant-winning Yankees (only those who worked in 45 or more innings being figured) permitted an average of 3.96 tallies in each nine frames to rank fourth. The Yankees had a lot of slugging and a big early lead which aided the club considerably in its victory.

In the case of the Athletics, whereas the mound stars led the procession, the club was third in the standings when the curtain was run down.

Pitchers Kept Indians Up.

Figures hold good in the case of the Indians. The men of Speaker, who only last week resigned as manager of the club, finished second and so did the pitchers, who were paced by George Uhle. There is a slip-up of two places, with the White Sox. Pitchers were third in efficiency, but the team landed fifth.

In addition to showing that the club with the greatest combined pitching does not win, the figures also tend to show that batting alone cannot carry a club to victory. Take for instance, the Detroit club. The Tigers had three of the first four batters in the official ratings, but the flingers were such a poor lot that the club could do no better than gain sixth position. The Tigers' sluggers were Manush, the new champion; Fothergill and Heilmann, who tied for third and fourth places. All were over .360. But the Tiger pitchers were batted for 4.23 earned runs a game. That's the answer for the failure of Cobb's men to do better.

The Athletics' great record in efficiency is brought up by four men—Grove, Pate, Walberg and Rommel. These four finished in the first 10. The first three gave fewer than three earned tallies a clash, while Rommel's figure was 3.08. A mark of 3.89 for Ehmke, obtained in June from the Red Sox, is the highest earned run average off any man who pitched for Mack.

Wingard Led Brownies.

Contrast this with the work of the Brownies. Ernie Wingard, the most efficient man on Sisler's staff, was found for 3.57 earned runs a game.

In addition to Mack's hurlers named, Quinn and Gray figured in the making of the fine record. Combined, the seven worked in 1301 innings and were found for but 456 earned markers.

Cleveland's fine showing was due to the brilliant work of George Uhle, who was the "iron-man" of the circuit, working in 32 complete games and 318 innings, and three youngsters—Buckeye, Miller and Levsen, the man who pitched and won a double-header during the year. In 1332 rounds, 499 earned runs were scored against Cleveland's pitchers, or 3.33 for each complete contest.

The White Sox showed five great pitchers in Lyons, Connally, Faber, Blankenship and the youngster, Thomas, all permitting fewer than four earned counters a battle.

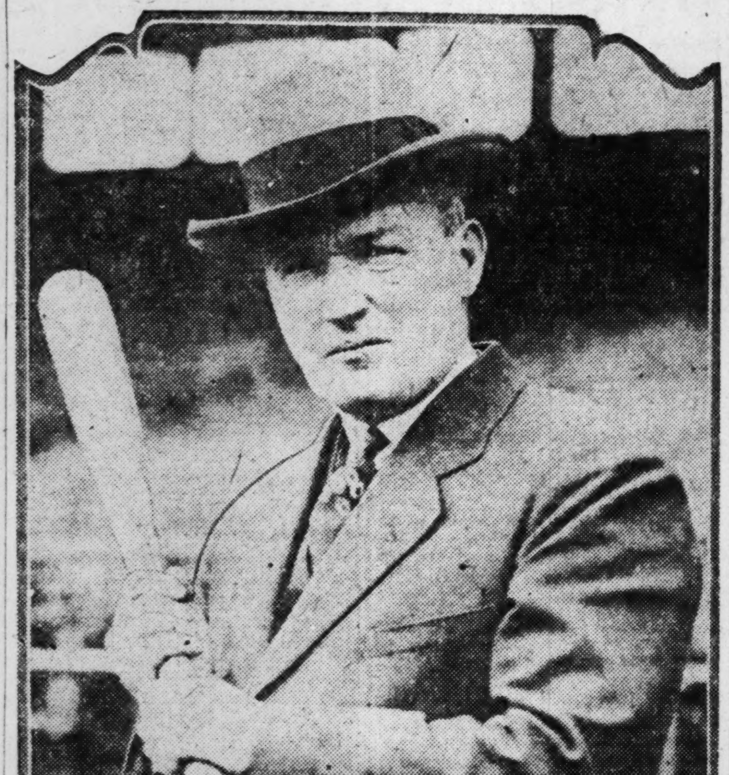
While Herb Pennock, the left-hander, was usually regarded as the ace of the New York staff, he was not the leader in efficiency for the club among the regulars. This honor went to Urban Shocker, one-time member of the Browns. Shocker's efficiency average was 3.38 and that for Pennock 3.62. Pennock, who in 1925 was second among the A. L. stars, fell to twenty-fifth position the past campaign.

Figures on Relief Work.

Going further with the figures on the pitchers for the season of 1926, it is found that but two managers were called upon to use relief pitchers in fewer than half of the games played by their clubs. These men were Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins, who will not be in the list of 1927 managers. The Indian pitchers, with Uhle laboring in 32, pitched 95 complete games, while those for the White Sox worked 84. Thus Speaker was forced to use relief men on only 59 occasions and Collins 70 times.

Yankee twirlers went the route 73 times, those for the Athletics 67 and the Brownie hill men 60 times. The total for Detroit twirlers was 57 and for Washington 55. The Red Sox hill men went the full distance but 47 times. Thus Fohl was forced to switch 107 times, or in more than two-thirds of the contests played by the tail-enders. This last mentioned figure is probably close to a major league record.

Can He Come Back?



BILL CARRIGAN,
Who led the Boston Red Sox to world championships in 1915 and 1916, and then quit baseball to enter the banking business, has come back to his old love, signing a two-year contract to manage the Boston team for Bob Quinn.

SCHOOL BOARD TO ACT TOMORROW TO LIFT 25-MILE RULE

Missouri State High School Athletic Association, newly formed organization of which the city schools are members, recently suggested the lifting of the ban so as to permit the participation of the local schools in the district elimination rounds of a State basketball tournament planned by the association. The local teams were eligible to play in the district games, but in the event of a victory of one of the league teams the winner would not be permitted to proceed to the semifinals at Columbia under the present ruling.

Another Argument.

Another argument in favor of action by the board set forth that Kansas City, St. Joseph and other such cities were gaining valuable publicity through their high school's playing the champions of other cities, and St. Louis should not be deprived of any such advertising.

With the abrogation of the rule and the resulting entrance in the basketball tournament, the public high schools will be eligible for a State championship, and with the possibility of a national title through entrance at the University of Chicago's annual tournament of State champions.

40 Net Events In City During Past Season

Five Major Tourneys for Men and Four for Women Were Decided.

By Davison Obear.

More than 40 tennis tournaments were held in the St. Louis district during the season of 1926. Of this total, five were major events for men, four for women and three team championships. Five tournaments were conducted for juniors, boys and girls.

One of the outstanding features was the interest shown in the various district championships. There were few defaults and competition was keener than before.

The Ferris Cup for the winner of the St. Louis district junior championship served as a great stimulus to the younger players. The prize was won by Joseph T. Smith of the Forest Park club. It is the first challenge trophy ever offered for the junior championship.

Edmund Serrano of the Triple A club, a former city champion, donated a challenge bowl for the men's singles. Wray D. Brown won the first leg on the trophy by defeating Fred O. Josties in the final. The Serrano Cup must be won three times before it goes out of competition.

20 Clubs Competed.

Interest in women's tennis was greater than in any season since the St. Louis District Association was organized nearly 10 years ago. One of the outstanding features was the donation of a District Challenge trophy by Mrs. Elise G. Werner. Mrs. Melicent Endicott Baehr of the Forest Park Tennis Club captured the trophy, defeating Lottie Hagemeyer in the district final.

Nearly 20 teams competed in interclub tournaments during May and June for the Joseph Werner trophy. The cup remained in play as a result of the Ferris Club's victory over Triple A. Triple A had previously gained two legs on the cup. The H. W. Gellar trophy for Municipal interclub play was won by the Forest Park Tennis Club, while the women's interpark prize donated by Mayor Victor J. Miller also went to the Forest Park club.

A number of St. Louis players made good records in championships held in other cities. Theodore R. Drewes of the O'Fallon Park retained his title as national municipal champion, while Wray Brown reached the final round of the Missouri Valley and Illinois State singles events.

Karl Hodge of the Triple A Club, one of the first 10 local stars, reached the final of the Western Michigan event, losing to Paul Kunkel, the Cincinnati star. Joseph Smith and Charles Sigeloff, St. Louis District junior champions, brought back the Western Junior doubles title from Culver, Ind.

Miss Bailey Surprised.

St. Louis was represented in the Missouri Valley championships at Kansas City by 10 players. Nearly all of the St. Louis stars advanced to the semifinal round in the various events. Ruth Bailey, 16-year-old Webster Groves star, caused a big surprise by taking a set from Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin, No. 9 in the United States, in the women's singles. Miss Bailey won the first set, 6—2, and was leading 4 to 1 in the second when Mrs. Chapin rallied and finally won.

Richard Rosebrough of the Kirkwood Country Club added two State singles titles to his list. He won the Arkansas State at Little Rock and followed by capturing the Kansas State title at Independence. Rosebrough and Proctor Wright, another Kirkwood Country Club player, won both the Arkansas and Kansas doubles championships.

The improved playing of Fred Josties was the outstanding feature in tournaments played in St. Louis. He reached the final round of the Triple A Club tournament, forcing Wray Brown to five sets. Josties also defeated his old rival, Ted Drewes, in the semi-final round of the St. Louis District singles championship.

Among the younger players, William Bascom and Vernon Tietjen showed good progress. Junior Boehmer and Joyce Portnoy improved their game in the competition for boys.

FIVE MUNICIPAL PLAYERS SUSPENDED

The following soccer players have been suspended for one week by officials of the Municipal League: Anthony Manna, Palermos; William Shea, Brandt's; Lawrence Fanning, Brandt's; George Bochniceh, Giddens; Fred Weber, Giddens.

These are the first players suspended since the season opened.

SHIFT PLAY RULE ADOPTED BY VALLEY

which he was not ready to divulge late this afternoon.

The shift interpretation rule adopted by the athletic directors reads:

"The backfield must come to a one-second halt after a shift is completed. All men in the backfield other than the man carrying the ball, must have one hand on the ground when the shift is completed."

The faculty committee voted late today to set the date of the Valley outdoor championship track meet back two weeks to May 20 and 21. The meet is to be held at Nebraska. The faculty members felt that June 3 and 4, recommended by the athletic directors, would conflict with final examinations.

ST. LOUIS COACHES WHOSE TEAMS WILL PLAY FOR '27 TITLE

BOB HIGGINS (above) football coach at Washington University, and Bob Mathews, athletic director at St. Louis U., will have a city championship game on the 1927 schedule to inspire their gridiron warriors. Since 1921, when relations were broken off, each season was just a group of games, but now each eleven will point for the Thanksgiving day feature, in which something will be at stake of interest to all football followers in St. Louis.

FIVE WESTERNERS ON ALL-AMERICA TEAM PICKED BY 100 EXPERTS

first team places over such all-around aces as Spears of Vanderbilt, Harry Wilson of the Army, "Wild Bill" Kelly of Montana and Frank Kirkleski of Lafayette.

It is noteworthy that three of the all-star ball carriers—Friedman, Kaer and Baker—occupied quarterback positions on their teams. Most of the critics, while favoring the Michigan captain as field general of the mythical aggregation, considered the all-around capabilities of Baker and Kaer valuable enough to shift them to halfback roles.

In the line, Frank Wickhorst, Navy captain, at tackle, and Harry Connaughton, Georgetown's 275-pound guard, were the most heavily favored. Close contests developed for all of the other positions, particularly on the ends, where an unusual galaxy of stars shone this year. Hanson, Syracuse leader, and Hoyt Winslett, outstanding player of Alabama's Southern championship team, gained the wing posts by narrow margins over Ted Shipkey of Stanford, Hal Broda, of Brown, Benny Oosterbaan of Michigan, a 1925 All-American, and Bacchus of Missouri.

End Who Can Handle Ball.

Observers stressed the point that in Winslett and Hanson, the mythical team's attack would have two men with ball-carrying abilities almost on the par with those of the backs. In addition, they possessed defensive qualities well adapted to supporting a line that averages 220 pounds from tackle to tackle.

Formidable as were such unbeaten teams as Alabama, Brown, Stanford, Navy and Army, none came within striking distance of Dartmouth's record of putting three stars on the 1925 first team and four altogether on the three-team squad.

Seven of the 26 institutions on the 1926 list shared the distinction of having two men named. They were Michigan, Army, Navy, Brown, Stanford, Pennsylvania and Ohio State. Dartmouth incidentally, failed to place a man among the 33 picked.

No More Captains.

COLUMBUS, O.—Ohio Wesleyan has passed a rule to abolish the football captaincy. Hereafter, the coaches will select the leader for each game just before the team goes on the field.

Women Bowling Stars Will Compete in Handicap Singles Tournament With Men

Novel Event, Three Games Total Pins to Count, Will Be Rolled Next Saturday and Sunday.

Something novel in the way of bowling tournaments will be inaugurated at the Washington alleys next Saturday and Sunday. It will be a handicap event in which both men and women tenpinners of the city are eligible to compete. It probably will be the first time anything like it has been attempted.

Otto Stein Jr. thinks it will be a go. He points to the fact that in several mixed doubles events women tenpinners have outscored their men partners.

The scratch figure will be 200 and handicaps will be allotted on the 60 per cent basis, with the management reserving the right to accept or reject averages turned in by bowlers. The event will be three games, total pins to count, with tenpinners changing alleys after each game. The entry fee will be $2, with bowling extra. The prize list will be arranged according to the entry.

Peterson Classic Next.

The second annual individual classic tournament will be held on Peterson's alleys next Saturday and Sunday. More than 100 tenpinners will compete for the prizes. All of the city's leading pin topplers are entered in the competition. The entry list closes today. Jerry Ameling and Frank Heidel are in charge of the tourney.

Another Classic Arranged.

Another individual classic has been announced and will be held on the Schaefer Delmar Recreation alleys, Dec. 18 and 19. The meet will be eight games, total pins to count, with an entry fee of $10. There will be six prizes, in addition to high single game awards and a good-fellowship prize. It also was announced that a four-game classic would be held in January, followed by one of eight games, with an entry fee of $15.

Lambert Beats Schaefer.

Wooster Lambert defeated Ed Schaefer by five pins in a 10-game total pins to count match on the Delmar Recreation Alleys. Lambert counted 2000, for an even 200 average, while Schaefer had 1995. Lambert won the contest in the final game when he totaled 234 to Schaefer's 204. The two will meet in a 21-game match this week, with seven games to be rolled on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Karls and Whitehead Lead.

Roy Karls and Oscar Whitehead are still leading in the Greater St. Louis two-man league with 17 victories and 10 defeats. In the matches at the Washington alleys tonight, the pacemakers will face Baker and Heibert. The remaining schedule is as follows: Hager and Kuhl vs Nelson and Deen; Wilson and O. Stein vs. Roth and M. Stein; Skinner and McElhinney vs. Bolin and Kuhnert.

Karls and Whitehead have a high average of 395 and a high single game of 475. Karls is high average man with 201, followed by Deen, 197; Whitehead, 195; M. Stein, 194, and Heibert, 193.

Roy Nelson, who is leading in the Greater St. Louis individual league, with a 239 mark, has an average of 210 for the season. Hap Vierheller has a 203 average for 24 games, while A. J. Beckler, the Rochester star, has one of 202 for 32. In addition to the regular matches this week, a postponed contest between Vierheller and Muenninghaus will be decided.

The standings:

The E. A. Schaefer team took the lead in the five-man sweepstakes tournament at Schaefer Delmar Recreation Alleys last night, rolling the fine score of 3047. The leaders shot 1033 the first game and came back with the same total the second game and finished with a count of 981.

Harry Summers was the big noise, rolling games of 244, 207 and 213 for a total of 664. Harry Deen hit for 620, E. A. Schaefer 609, A. Almquist 599 and John Smith 555.

John Ott, the man who has the form of Skys Thoma of Chicago, the Peterson Classic winner, rolled 559, Peppery Christ Sottrell hit for 533, captain Dr. Swoboda had a bad night rolling 519 and Henry Klare, the veteran slow ball star, scored only 477.

Schaefer and Zappala Arcade got the fourth best total 2696. Joe Rigoni was the only member in form. Joe hung up a count of 580 with 206 for top count. The strong Greenfield Brothers team was away off form except in the second game when they counted 962, thanks to a count of 234 by Ed Heuermann. The five finished with a count of 2682, Heuerman topping the five with 566.

The Fothergill team rolled 2618, a couple hundred pins shy of the figure they should turn in on form. M. Purpura was best for the five rolling 547 for the three games. The Pontel Cleaners, Roberts Undertaking and West Ends will take the drives tonight at 6 o'clock.

M'TINKLE, BY DRIVING FINISH, OUTCLASSES FLORENCE MILLS

LONG SHOT PAYS $68.20 ON $2 TICKET

George DeMar Races From Last Place to Take Third; Old Slip and Stirrup Cup Decisively Vanquished.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—C. T. Worthington's 3-year-old, McTinkle, a rank outsider, flashed back to his finest form to triumph in a driving finish over G. W. Carroll's Florence Mills in the Bienville Hotel Handicap, feature of this afternoon's program at Jefferson Park. The race had its decision over a distance of one and one-sixteenth mile, and Jimmy McCoy hurried the winner to the judges with a scant head to spare over the tiring Florence Mills. The two dominated the running the full course with George De Mar racing from last place in the concluding four furlongs to be third.

Among the decisively vanquished were Old Slip and Stirrup Cup, which attracted most attention in the speculation upon the outcome. Both had their chances, but were unable to compare performance with the more successful ones and no excuse for their failure could be advanced.

Florence Mills had the most speed of the field of seven, and L. Craver rated her nicely several lengths clear of her rivals until in the final quarter of a mile where the ultimate victor sowly moved to the leader, and in the end mastered her after a sharp drive all during the last furlong. At the finish, George De Mar was racing stoutly after having raced around four opponents to get out of his rearward place.

Pays Investors $68.20.

The winner missed the track standard of 1:45 1-5 by the narrow margin of three-fifths of a second, and his backers were rewarded with $68.20 for each investment of $2 to win.

The afternoon was much the warmest of the season and the attendance narrowly missed being the largest of the meeting. Speculation was the heaviest recorded this winter.

With the exception of the opening race, an allowance affair for nonwinners of all ages, the supporting numbers were claiming affairs but three of the five were given over to platers of the better grade and they provided much interesting sport.

The best field of the platers made the running in the third race at six furlongs and M. Lowenstein's David L. had to race the distance in 1:13 1-5 to overhaul the leading Gad in the late stages of the dash. The latter raced Big Sweep into defeat during a head-and-head struggle for the lead in the first five furlongs and weakened sharply in the last 30 yards, in which the winner gained command. Opperman, one heretofore given over to racing over a longer course, was a fast closing third, while Big Sweep and Rag Time, well supported, were among the nine unplaced.

Hawk God Scores.

C. Ferraro's Hawk God gave another impressive effort to score over Fourteen Sixty, Swizzle and four other 2-year-olds at five and one-half furlongs in the fourth race. H. Richards rushed the successful Son of Star Hawk into safe command soon after the splendid break affected by the starter and he was never extended as he led the entire distance, winning well in hand by two lengths. Fourteen Sixty was in closest pursuit of the winner virtually the full route, where Swizzle had to outgame Sparkling Water for the third in the drive that ensued the entire final quarter of a mile.

Glenning proved best of a field of 11 maidens brought under colors in the opening dash, the Glencairn 2-year-old defeating Fire Dog another 2-year-old, by a nose. War Grail, which ran coupled with Palatine Lad, as the favorite, made it a clean sweep of the placings for the youngsters by gaining third. Five of the eight unplaced horses were 3 years old or older.

Chick Up's Easy Victory.

The second race brought one of the easiest victories of the meeting with Chick Up the fortunate one. He led 11 other platers by a wide margin for the one-mile distance and his winning margin of two lengths might have been much greater if D. Emery, his rider, had elected. Chief Tierney finished second and Reveillon saved third from Royal Charlie.

Lester Beattie, John Downey, Joe Specht and A. Latimer embarked for Havana this morning.

The big band of horses Kay Spencer will race here this winter for Montfort and B. B. Jones is now intact in one of the new barns at the fair grounds. The stable was completed with the arrival of a delayed shipment from Lexington yesterday and Jockeys Willie Crump and L. Fischer are here to do the riding.

C. E. Rowe's highly rated Dr. Washington, for which the owner is said to have refused offers of $50,000 several times, died this morning of pneumonia contracted en route here from Lexington, Ky. The colt was intended to be a starter in the $50,000 New Orleans Handicap, and also in the Louisiana Derby.

Missourian on Roper's All-Time Team

Slagle Called the Greatest Half Back

Bluck of Tiger Eleven of 1909 Selected as One of Best Tackles Ever Developed—Keck His Running Mate.

Jim Thorpe, Heston and Eckersall Chosen With Princeton Star of 1926 to Form Backfield of Mythical Grid Machine.

BILL ROPER.

CHAPTER VIII.

"MY 25 YEARS ON THE GRIDIRON."

By W. W. "Bill" Roper.

AT the outset I realize I am up against an impossible situation in trying to select an All-Time All-America team. It is a hard job to pick a college team, and about a million times harder to guess at an All-Time team. But as I said I would do it, here goes.

My choice of our ends are Hardwick of Harvard, and Muller of California. There have been many great ends including Frank Hinkey, Garry Cochran, Neil Snow, Dave Campbell, John Kilpatrick, Heine Miller, Tom Shevlin and a host of others.

Hardwick could do everything. He could interfere, tackle, run with the ball and catch passes. He was a demon down field and when he hit a man "he rocked him and socked him." I have never seen Muller but Al Witmer, who is coaching with me at Princeton, played with him in a charity benefit game at Columus, O., and from what he tells me I feel confident he is the peer of any end the game has produced. Both Hardwick and Muller have the added advantage of weighing over 180 pounds.

Missourian Named.

THE two greatest tackles I have ever seen play are Bluck of Missouri, and Keck of Princeton. My selection of Bluck may be a surprise to many but I know it will not be to those who saw the Kansas-Missouri game at Kansas City in 1909. In that game Bluck made gain after gain through the Kansas line with the entire team on his back. Missouri was out-weighed at least 20 pounds per man. Bluck was the only man on the Missouri line the equal in weight or size of the Kansans. On defense not a first down was made on his side of the field and when the rival quarter-back realized the impossibility of gaining anywhere near him he shot his plays at the other side of the line. Bluck left his position and slid around to back up the other side. I can see him now watching the quarter-back as he called his signals and leaving his own position when he was sure the play was going somewhere else, as it usually did. It may have been unorthodox but it was mighty effective. Toward the end of the game the Kansas quarter-back was trying to guess where Bluck would not be.

Keck and Bluck were of the same build. Both weighed over 200 pounds and neither stood over five feet ten inches in height. Keck is the greatest interferer I have ever seen. When Don Lourie made his famous 50-yard run against Yale in 1920 Keck took out three Yale men. He did the same thing for Ralph Gilroy in 1921 against Harvard. On offense he had a charge like a bull. Last fall in practice it would take half the Princeton line to hold him. There are legions of good tackles in addition to these two.

Greatest Guards.

THE guard positions are comparatively simple. I think it is generally conceded that Heffelfinger is the greatest guard that ever wore the moleskin. At 50 years of age he could handle any guard on the Yale squad. Keene Fitzpatrick who was at Yale in the fall of 1896, tells how Heffelfinger, who was coaching the guards, would refuse to ride to town in the bus and after a strenuous afternoon at the field would jog into the Yale gymnasium, about five miles away, and he would beat the bus in, too.

Truxton Hare of Pennsylvania makes a good running mate for guards back he never failed to gain with the ball. In those days the Heffelfinger. In the days of the Penn guards protected the flanks. Hare was a wonderful open field tackler and would have shone in the present game.

For center I am taking Adam Walsh, a member of the Notre Dame team made famous by the Four Horsemen. He was the greatest all around center the game has produced. McMillan of Princeton and Schulz of Michigan were great centers, but not the equal of Walsh.

Eckersall at Quarter.

I WILL never forget Eckersall and how he played against Michigan in 1905. He could run and kick and, had the forward pass been used in those days, I am sure he would have been just as good a passer as he was a kicker and runner. Eckie was a great man in the open field and he would be my choice at quarter-back.

Keene Fitzpatrick and "Hurry Up" Yost claim that Heston was the greatest ball carrier they have ever seen. I have great confidence in their judgment. Yost can talk about Heston and his allround prowess by the hour. There is no one better qualified than they are to tell a good player so I feel sure Heston was all they claim for him.

Thorpe was one of the athletic marvels of the age. He could play any game, but he excelled in football and surely deserves a place.

I have seen Jake Slagle break up championship games and run like a man inspired. He could kick and pass as well as he could run. He is, in my opinion, the greatest half-back the game has produced.

The strength of this backfield lies in its all around ability. Every man could run with the ball and interfere as well.

While I could write a book about the great backs of football, I cannot refrain from mentioning Ted Coy of Yale; Eddie Mahan of Harvard; George Gipp of Notre Dame; Ernie Nevers of Stanford; Chick Harley of Ohio State; Oberlander of Dartmouth; Maury Trimble of Princeton; Ducky Pond of Yale, and Tom Davies of Pittsburg—all of whom would fit into any backfield at any time.

White Banners To Test Wellston Eleven Today

Soccer Team Rebuilt by Tate Brady Has Shown Steady Improvement.

Unless all signs are wrong, a new soccer star is about to sweep the firmament. We shall know, perhaps, after today's game whether it is a shooting star, doomed to fade out almost as quickly as it appears, or a permanent thing.

Tate Brady's Wellston team is the club that is attracting the attention of those fans who attend the St. Louis Soccer League games at Sportsman's Park. Today, they oppose the White Banners in the second game of the double-header at Phil Ball's stadium. In the opening match, the Ben Millers oppose the Raticans.

Brady Rebuilds Team.

The reason for the sudden interest aroused in the Wellstons is the steady improvement of the team's passing of the ball. Manager Brady, himself one of the greatest players and most popular stars ever developed in St. Louis, has shown excellent judgment in his selection of new men to fill gaps left by the departure of those former heroes, Cliff Brady, Allie Schwarz, Charley Bechtold, Emmett Mulvey, Len Zeuschel, Tommy O'Hanlon, George Bentley, Jimmy Brannigan, and Dutch Oellermann. Never, even in their heyday did the Scullins, forebears of the present Wellston team, boast a more consistent halfback than Bill Lehman and the success of the present team is largely due to Bill's unusual skill. His goal from outside the penalty line last Sunday against the Raticans was a reminder of Billy Quinn's best in the days of Cardinal Field soccer.

Raticans Weakened.

Harry Ratican, trimmed down to a graceful 185 pounds, will do his bit at center forward for his own club this afternoon against the Ben Millers. Ratican's failure to win games this season may be attributed to the loss of Eddie Menke, star halfback, Joe Sprintz and Joe Rodriguez, halfbacks. The team has not been hitting on all cylinders this season.

Jim Burke, whose leg was broken last Sunday, will be replaced by Chartrand at center forward for the White Banners, according to present plans.

The first game will start at 2 p. m. and the halves will be of 35 minutes each.

Joe Dundee Is Knocked Out

Conqueror of Mickey Walker Loses in First Round to Roberts.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—Eddie Roberts, sensational welterweight of Tacoma, Wash., today scored a technical knockout over Joe Dundee of Baltimore, rated as one of the greatest 147-pounders in the country.

A stunning fusillade of punches toppled Dundee from the heights he had risen to by knockouts over Mickey Walker, former welterweight champion, and a host of other sterling performers. The fight was over barely after it started. Three times Roberts' smashing rights and lefts sent Dundee to the canvas.

The first time the Baltimore boy stayed down for the count of nine. He came up only to tumble again for the count of three. As he arose the third time, Roberts shot over a vicious right to the jaw which tumbled him for another nine count. Dundee got up again, but was staggering against the ropes and Referee Toby E. Irwin stopped the battle and awarded the decision to Roberts.

The result was a stunning upset as Dundee, with his impressive record, was a three to one favorite to come through for a decision.

In the preliminaries Vince Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, defeated Bobby Burns of Oakland, and Jimmy Moore, a Negro middleweight boxer from Cincinnati, won the decision over Ray Still of Sacramento, at the end of a four-round session.

I could see with certainty that I was growing. I knew that I soon would weigh 185 pounds for my contests, and that was the weight I regarded as necessary to whip Dempsey. Harry Greb came back for another whack at me in Cleveland, two months after I had defeated Carpentier. We fought 10 rounds, no decision, and I was the winner by a decisive margin.

Starting slowly, I made little effort to outdistance Greb during the first four or five rounds. After that, I began battering him severely about the body. Every time he led, I smashed my right to his short ribs and, coming out of close quarters, I would hook my left to his liver and then shoot short rights and lefts to the middleweight champion's stomach. In the tenth, I thought I had him all but out.

The Pittsburg gamester was not convinced that I was his master. Greb is a hard man to convince. He sought a fifth contest with me. This bout occurred in St. Paul, Minn., March 27. It was a no-decision battle of 10 rounds duration.

St. Paul is the home of Tommy Gibbons, and I had been trailing him right up to his front door. Jimmy De Forest, one of the greatest of trainers and then matchmaker for the Polo Grounds A. C. in New York City, had accompanied Billy Gibson and myself to St. Paul. Jimmy was armed with contracts for a Gibbons-Tunney match. But Tommy refused to sign. He wanted, I presume, to take a peek at me against Greb before committing himself.

A Show for Tom Gibbons.

WHEN I climbed into the ring that night, I saw the well-rounded pate of Gibbons in the press row, right below my corner. I paid little attention to Tom then, but went after Greb in a hurry. After three rounds I returned to my corner and said to Gibson:

"I can knock Harry out in a couple more rounds."

"O. K.," Gib replied, "go ahead, my boy, and do that thing."

I tossed caution aside in the fourth and ripped rights and lefts into Harry's body. Suddenly, half way through the round, I heard Gibson yelling:

"Be careful of your hand, Gene! Be careful of your hand."

This puzzled me, for my hands were in great shape and there was slight chance of hurting them in punching Greb about the torso. I figured Gib must have some hidden

Bears Will Open Season Dec. 18

Rolla to Be First Opponent for Washington Basketball Team.

The opening game of the Washington U. basketball season has been postponed until Dec. 18, Coach Donald S. White announced yesterday, after a request from Rolla authorities had been received by Bear officials. The original date was Dec. 11.

The extra time will give White a chance to sift his squad of 24 players. While three positions are seemingly in the hands of the regulars from last year, players of equal merit are fighting for the other berths. Because of this, little effort has been made to send a varsity five through formation drill.

At center George Duncan, a recruit, is pushing Garrett Pipkin, last year's reserve player, for the position. Richard Heinrichs also has shown well.

Cured His Rupture

I was bad ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 279 N. Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

CHAPTER XXV.

ROUNDING out that banner year of 1924, I stopped Ray Thompson in two rounds, Harry Foley in one, and Buddy McHale in two. I beat Joe Lohman. These were more or less "warming" uts for me. My eyes were pointed toward Tom Gibbons, who had ucceeded in staying 15 rounds with Champion Jack Dempsey at Shelby.

I could see with certainty that I as growing. I knew that I soon ould weigh 185 pounds for my ontests, and that was the weight I regarded as necessary to whip Dempsey. Harry Greb came back r another whack at me in Cleveland, two months after I had deated Carpentier. We fought 10 ounds, no decision, and I was the inner by a decisive margin.

Starting slowly, I made little eft to outdistance Greb during the rst four or five rounds. After at, I began battering him severey about the body. In the nth, I thought I had him all but ut.

Show for Tom Gibbons.

WHEN I climbed into the ring that night, I saw the well-rounded pate of Gibbons in e press row, right below my corer. I paid litle attention to Tom en, but went after Greb in a rry. After three rounds I rerned to my corner and said to bson:

"I can knock Harry out in a uple more rounds."

"O. K.," Gib replied, "go ahead, boy, and do that thing."

I tossed caution aside in the urth and ripped rights and lefts to Harry's body. Suddenly, half ay through the round, I heard bson yelling:

"Be careful of your hand, Gene! e careful of your hand."

This puzzled me, for my hands ere in great shape and there was ight chance of hurting them in unching Greb about the torso. I gured Gib must have some hidden reason for his caution, so I slowed down.

When I returned to the corner, Bill said:

"Don't knock out that fellow. Give him a sound beating, but don't crock him. Tommy Gibbons is sitting here, watching you carefully. If he sees you stop the man who whipped him, he's never going to agree to fight you."

Thereafter, I hammered Greb, but refrained from sending over the crusher on his jaw. Gibbons was not overly impressed and the next day he consented to do battle with me. Greb, however, was more than impressed. Harry came to my dressing room after the match and exclaimed:

"Say, Gene, you've convinced me you're a great fighter. You've improved wonderfully and you can lick any man in the world. That goes for Dempsey, Gibbons and Wills."

Harry didn't change his mind, either. I understand he had a good bet on me when I met Gibbons and also wagered I would defeat Dempsey. What a truly remarkable battler Greb was! Consider that I outweighed him by many pounds in all our encounters. Consider, too, that a majority of his opponents outweighed him from 10 to 30 pounds. But he met them all and never backed up and never showed anything but flaming courage.

"Ranking" of Opponents.

I HAVE been asked to rate the boxers I have met in regard to their various characteristics. Here is my list:

The greatest—Jack Dempsey, also the hardest hitter.

The gamest—Bartley Madden.

Most colorful—Georges Carpentier.

Most versatile—Harry Greb, also the roughest and toughest.

The craftiest—Jeff Smith.

Best boxer (defensive)—Tommy Gibbons, Battling Levinsky.

As to Jack Dempsey, I sincerely believe he can whip any man in the world today, excluding myself. He would have toppled Wills over inside of three rounds. He hit me the hardest blow I ever received, and I don't think that even Fitzsimmons, Langford or Jeffries could have punched harder than Jack did. Dempsey, with possibly one exception, took better care of himself than any other heavyweight champion. I have seen him in his dressing room, after exhibition bouts, DOING EXERCISES for his back and lying on a rubbing table while trainers held his feet and he rose to a sitting posture and back a hundred times in quick succession. He didn't and doesn't drink, smoke or hit the Primrose Path, and it is my opinion that WE WILL FIGHT AGAIN. I hope so.

Bears Will Open Season Dec. 18

Rolla to Be First Opponent for Washington Basketball Team.

The opening game of the Washington U. basketball season has een postponed until Dec. 18, Coach onald S. White announced yestery, after a request from Rolla auorities had been received by Bear fficials. The original date was ec. 11.

The extra time will give White chance to sift his squad of 24 ayers. While three positions are emingly in the hands of the reglars from last year, players of ual merit are fighting for the oth berths. Because of this, little fort has been made to send a rsity five through formation drill.

At center George Duncan, a reuit, is pushing Garrett Pipkin, st year's reserve player, for the osition. Richard Heinrichs also as shown well.

The backguard berth, left vacant by Ted Winkler, is being sought by Ralph Kurz, husky football star; C. Heinrichs and John McCarroll, 1927 football captain. If Kurz displays enough ability in taking shots off the backboard, it is believed by members of the squad, he will be the regular. This would give the Bears the fastest defensive department the five has had in several seasons.

Lorraine Eckert appears assured of the position at running guard. Both Stanford and Hutton, forwards, are light, fast men, and White will have an opportunity this year to throw a whirlwind attack against some of the more stolid Valley fives. A majority of the new candidates are green.

Following the Rolla game, the Bears will rest up until New Year's eve, when they meet the Missouri Tigers in the Washington field house. The Tigers will be playing under a new coach, George Edwards, who, while at Westport High School, Kansas City, developed a series of national interscholastic champions.

MOTOR BOAT INTEREST INCREASES 40 PER CENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. — Sporting interest in the pleasure boat increased 40 per cent this year over the preceding year. This cold turkey fact is revealed in the demand for space in the twenty-second annual motor boat show in New York. Last season two floors of the Grand Central Palace were required for this show. This season already three full floors have been sold. So rapid and so insistent has this demand for space been that Secretary Ira Hand has been required to cut down the size of the requests so that there will be room for all hands to have a representation. With the opening day, Jan. 21, more than six weeks away, the 40 per cent increase in interest is maintained. It even threatens to be exceeded before the end of this month.

Dempsey's Legs, Not His Stomach, Failed in Fight

Chief Camera Man, Barred From Rope Skipping Exercise, Got Real Tip.

By Sparrow McGann.
(Copyright, 1926.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Jack Dempsey was not doped before his fight with Gene Tunney. Jack's troubles were in his legs and not in his stomach.

When the newspaper correspondents were excluded from Dempsey's workouts a few days before the fight at Philadelphia, a feeling against the then champion was aroused.

Capt. Mabbutt, the big fellow who acted as a sort of aide-de-camp to Dempsey—he was responsible for the "poison" yarn—seemed eager at that time to give the impression that Jack had nothing to hide and that the reason for his wish to work out privately was to avoid the annoyance of uncouth remarks by spectators.

But this was not the reason. Dempsey was not physically right and he did not want it known. He did nothing that escaped the photographers who were taking movies of Dempsey and Tunney's training camps among whom was Bert Conn, chief camera man.

Conn's Dope Was O K.

Bert wanted to film Dempsey in the act of skipping rope and Jack would not perform for him. Conn thought this was very strange. His opinion was that the title holder's legs were not right and that Jack did not wish this fact known.

How well Conn doped it out was shown by Dempsey's actions in the ring in the battle with Tunney. It was only to apparent that his legs had lost their resiliency and that they were dead on him after the first 30 seconds of every round.

Dempsey says he was not drugged and he ought to know. Men who watched him closely testify he did not appear to be nervous as he taped his hands before the fight. He was steady, cool and collected as he wound the thin gauze around his hand and bright eyed as well.

And get this tip: Whether or not Jack returns to the ring will depend upon the condition of his legs. If they snap back into shape he will fight again, if they don't, he wont.

THE HUNTING CALL

By ALEC MERMOD

HIGH water still prevails at nearly all of the best private and public "ducking" grounds, consequently shooting has not been very good.

Shooting pens along the Illinois River which have been open to the public at so much per day, have not been able to give their patrons a great deal of good shooting, for the blinds and pens, which, under normal conditions are high and dry, are now under several feet of water, so that style of shooting had to be abandoned, and there is so much feed in the cornfields, which cover a big territory, the ducks are hard to decoy.

Along the Illinois River, the ducks may be seen by thousands, but instead of dropping into a few decoys, the new flocks coming in drop among the big bunches of wild ducks.

Some of our hunters have taken the time to locate a favorite feeding ground, and built blinds and set out a large number of decoys, as many as a hundred "blocks," and these men have reaped the benefit of this method.

While to most hunters all spots in an overflowed cornfield look alike, there are certain spots which appeal to the ducks and it is these spots that pay the hunter for a little study and work.

The rice fields near Stuttgart, Ark., have, for years, been a paradise for the duck shooter, but this year the shooting has not been up to normal because the bottoms have been flooded.

George Bilgere, just back from a trip to this resort, says he saw great flocks of ducks that were constantly moving from one spot to another, but it was difficult to get within shooting distance.

Both quail and rabbits are scarce in many localities where in former years they have been plentiful and the disappointments met with by shooters has dampened their enthusiasm to such an extent that they have "parked" their guns for the rest of the season.

A good bag of rabbits was made by a party last week, the shooters averaging a dozen "bunnies" to the gun. This killing was made in Lincoln County. F. O. Buckley was one of the party.

The Clumber Spaniel.

THIS breed has never been popular in the United States. As a show dog he is a beauty, with his pure white coat of lemon or orange markings. As a companion for children or grown ups he is hard to beat, and as a rule shows more intelligence than any other dog of the spaniel family.

He has a keen nose and is a fine hunter and retriever, has a splendid chest and quarters which give him wonderful endurance. His body is long and well ribbed and while his legs seem short, he does not appear to be at all out of proportion. His head is large and is similar to the St. Bernard's, which by many is supposed to enter into the production of the original Clumber.

Ammunition.

DURING the last 25 years there has been a vast improvement in ammunition, both for the rifle and shotgun, which accounts in part for the improvement in scores at the traps and on the rifle range.

There has always been a decided clamor for shotguns and ammunition that would increase the killing range and gunmakers and ammunition companies have strived to satisfy this demand and give the shooting public a gun and load that would increase the killing distance The gunmakers failed to make any notable change, but several years ago one of the ammunition companies brought out a special load and made certain claims which were doubted by shooters, but these claims were substantiated, and now this concern has hard work to keep up with the demand for this particular load.

Other concerns began experimenting and now all have added to the list a long range load but the trick of the original long range load is still a secret, for the company mentioned has invented the only device for measuring the length of the shot column, which was shortened by almost half as compared to the regular loads.

Many shooters have an idea that when a gun is fired the shot go out in a bunch, which is not the case, as the charge strings out several feet. Shooters when experimenting with shot patterns would draw the outline of a duck (full size) on a sheet of paper and, at 40 yards, might place 15 or 20 pellets in this outline, then would wonder why they could not place the same number of pellets in a live duck flying past them, the reason is that by the time the head of the shot column hits the duck he has flown by the center and tail of the string of shot.

A good many shooters make a mistake by using the long range heavy loads on all occasions and suffer the effects of excessive recoil when it is not necessary; when shooting over decoys the lighter ordinary loads are to be preferred.

Butch-Morris Bout Thursday

Ten Round Go Headlines Program at Avenue Theater, East St. Louis.

George Butch, local weatherweight, and Battling Morris, of Duluth, Minn., fight 10 rounds to a referee's decision in the bout which features a boxing program at the Avenue Theater in East St. Louis Thursday night under the supervision of the State Athletic Commission.

Morris is to arrive Wednesday morning from Chicago where he is now training for the bout. Butch is working at a local gymnasium. The weight agreement is 126 pounds at 3 o'clock the afternoon of the bout and neither is expected to have any trouble making the beamage.

Johnny "Red" Byrd and Jimmy Dugan, East St. Louis middleweights, fight in the six-round semifinal; George Ketchell, local flyweight, meets Clifford "Digger" Nelson of Granite City, in the six-round second preliminary, while Nathan Wolff and Mike Michaelson, St. Louis bantams, furnish the action in the four-round curtain-raiser.

Man Who Spends Rockefeller's Millions on Education Tells Teachers What and How to Teach

Abraham Flexner, Director of General Educational Board, Would Do Away With Latin and Greek and Revise Methods in Literature and History.

Time at School Could Profitably Be Shortened by Two Years and Include No Subject Without Definite Later Value, Notwithstanding Tradition to Contrary.

By WILLIAM F. ALLEN,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

"THE fact is," Mr. Flexner said, "that we shall probably be building high schools in which we will segregate the mentally proficient as we now build separate high schools for the mentally deficient."

Mr. Flexner was talking about the allopathic gobs of education with which school pupils are being dosed without regard for their individual requirements or individual capacities for assimilation. He was referring to the classroom in which Henry, John and Sue get the same books, the same tasks therein, the same somewhat superficial instruction and the same standardized daily diet of so-called knowledge. In spite of the fact that Henry may be "bright," John's mind may wander from X plus Y equals Z to radio wave lengths, and Sue may be a dullard.

He was discussing, in general, the mess in which modern education finds itself in a day of tremendous public expenditure in the business of jamming X plus Y down John's throat whether or no and bring duller Sue up to the mental plane of "bright" Henry—the business of cultivating the youthful mind and bestowing upon it intellectual capital for the problems of living.

He was talking of revolutionary upheavals in curricula, burying Latin and Greek, proposing the shortening of 16 years of general education to 14 or less and kicking about the pet, archaic theories of circumscribed schoolmasters in general.

And when Abraham Flexner talks, the most fossilized of the pedants cocks an attentive ear. Mr. Flexner happens to be the director of the General Educational Board and, as such, is the man who plunges his hand into John D. Rockefeller's fathomless right hand pocket and from it scatters about the scholastic map countless millions of dollars for the transformation of educational methods.

In other words, here is one man who possesses the authority and means to bring his thoughts to reality. His talk of segregating the bright pupil from the commonplace so that the keen mind will not be retarded to the pace of the sluggish mind is not idle talk. Recently the General Educational Board handed over to Swarthmore College a sum sufficient for it to divide its student body, according to mental capacity, and to experiment for a result over five years.

Tradition Rules Most Subjects Taught.

Mr. Flexner came to St. Louis last week with a group of distinguished medical scientists and teachers, and while here gave to the writer some of his ideas upon education which have crystallized into conclusions and referred him to others which have been reduced to written discourses. From these the following were deduced as Mr. Flexner's most pointed thoughts upon modern education:

Generally speaking, it may be safely said that the subjects commonly taught in schools today, the time at which they are taught, the manner in which they are taught and the amounts taught are determined by tradition, not by a fresh and untrammelled consideration of present values.

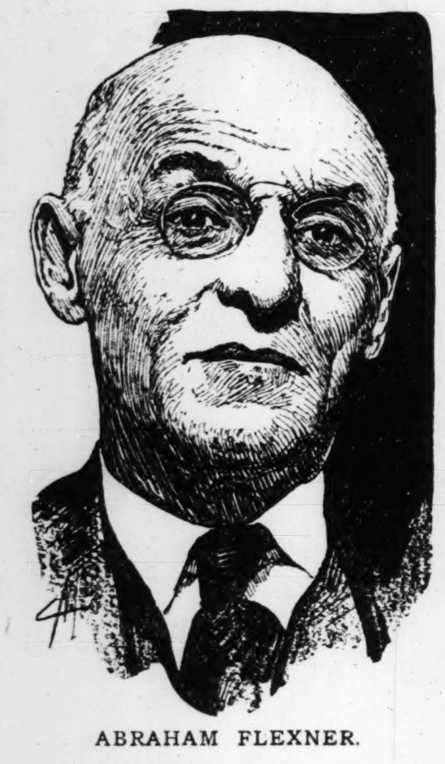
Not only do American children, as a class, fail to gain knowledge or power through this traditional curriculum, but they spend an inordinately long time in failing. The period spent in school and college before the student begins his professional studies is longer in the United States than in any other Western country.

We go on teaching this or that subject in this or that way for no better reason than that its ineffectiveness or harmfulness has not been established.

We select a subject now because its uselessness or inutility has not been conclusively determined. Rather no subject should be included for which a definite value cannot be made out. This would likely retire Latin and Greek from the modern curriculum and elevate modern languages.

We offer the high school student a vast assortment of studies, classified only loosely into courses. And the student from year to year is permitted to jump about among these studies at random, the only goal being a specified number of credits for graduation.

This hit-and-miss superficial conduct of the school should be replaced with sharply drawn courses to one of which the student should be committed and made to adhere.



ABRAHAM FLEXNER.

Definition of an American University

NO COPYRIGHT protects the use of the term "university." A chaotic mixture of primary, intermediate, industrial and theological classes; an educational department store containing a kindergarten at one end and Nobel prize winners (or as good) at the other, with all possible varieties of schooling and training, practical and professional, between, and a mail-order annex besides; finally a college with a graduate school overlapping and a group of organically connected professional schools.

A president with large executive powers, a squad of deans who serve as lieutenants, not to speak of a host of other officials with similar major or minor functions; central offices with accounting systems and records; requirements—entrance, curricular, graduation—worked out with mathematical precision or the semblance thereof; courses, units, credits that are all, for the purpose of accounting, treated as if they were as definite in value as a foot-pound; advisers, vocational guiders, psychological testers, personnel managers, coaches—all engaged in policing a variegated undergraduate body, in keeping them off the grass, out of the water, in the middle of the road, to the end that in due course, with character unsullied, diploma in hand, they severally may be returned to their mothers or landed in a congenial job.—From Abraham Flexner's paper, "A Modern University."

Aside from simply instrumental studies—reading, writing, spelling and figuring—the curriculum of the modern school could be molded into four main fields—science, industry, esthetics and civics.

A Modern Method of Teaching Science.

Mr. Flexner thinks the present, incoherent courses lead nowhere; that the present graduate emerges upon the world with little net learning that will be useful. He is quite ready to expand the four fields or courses which he proposes.

"In science," he says, "children would begin by getting acquainted with objects. They would learn to know trees, plants, animals, hills, streams, rocks and to care for animals and plants. In the next stage they would follow the life cycles of plants and animals and would piece out the processes in inanimate things. They would begin experimentation—physical, chemical and biological. In the upper grades, science would assume more systematic forms. Here would come understanding of scientific theories upon which the camera, the radio and other phenomena are based.

"This, of course, is merely grazing the outline of the scientific course. However, the average high school boy who now begins a course of physics or chemistry without the previous training above described lacks the basis necessary to make the study real to him. The usual textbook engulfs him in the beginning in a world of symbols and definitions as abstract as algebra."

Mr. Flexner rates science as of most importance and industry next. Industry and commercial processes can easily capture the attention of the beginner in this course. He would found the pupil first in the general facts relating to every-day industrial life, transportation, public service companies, manufacture, including the source of materials and the processes of their finishing.

Such a foundation would not only illuminate the pupils everyday life, but would offer him problems for original thought.

He would include under esthetics, literature, art, language and music, and pauses to reflect upon literature as it has come down traditionally to the present-day classroom.

"It is partly obsolete," he says, "partly ill-timed, rarely effective or appealing. Nothing is more damaging to ultimate good taste than unwilling, spasmodic attention to selections because history and tradition have stamped them as respectable or desirable. Nothing is so futile as trying to compel worship of 'classics' from which pupils rebel because they are not fitted to their interest. The development of the habit of reading is the end to be sought and the pupil's interest should be challenged with realistic treatment of his real interest in romance and adventure, or what not. Appreciation ultimately of the masterpieces that have stood the test of age then will come normally, without the artificial stimulus we now give.

"Likewise history. Schools should summon the courage not to go through the form of teaching children useless historical facts simply because the children of a past generation learned and forgot them, and because tradition has established the learning as a sort of good form.

"History is a part of the study of the fourth division of the curriculum, civics, which includes also present day institutions and current happenings.

"The study of mathematics offers peculiar difficulty. Waste here is greatest and failure most striking. The study of both algebra and geometry in their present form is largely historical.

"No more algebra and geometry should be taught than needed to elucidate other studies being pursued simultaneously. Geometry might be reduced in time consumed by about two-thirds or three-fourths and the remainder radically modified. Recently it has been suggested that algebra should be given for one year, not so much because of its inherent value as to determine the aptitude of the pupil for further mathematical study.

Formal Grammar and History Are Wrong.

"This proposed curriculum is quite as important from the standpoint of its omissions. Formal grammar would disappear. There is much evidence of the futility of formal grammar as a guide to correct speaking and writing. Much of history as now parcelled out would disappear also. In its stead might come the more intense interests, such as the history of modern England or of New York City.

"Latin and Greek would be dropped. For most pupils no positive benefit can be pointed out. The literary argument fails because blundering through a few patches of Latin classics does not establish a knowledge of Latin literature. Students who have studied Latin in high school, even into college, in later life have difficulty making out a Latin document or translating a simple phrase. If practical mastery is desired, the study of Latin may be postponed until the need actually appears.

"The first teaching job I ever held was in my native city of Louisville. One of my classes was a senior class in Greek. It took me a week to discover that no member of the class had even approached a sound foundation in Greek grammar.

"I proposed to teach the class grammar. The principal was astounded—humiliating fourth-year students with a first-year study. 'Very well,' I said, 'the alternative is to flunk the whole class,' and I did. Among those who failed at graduation was the son of the president of the School Board and a great hub-bub arose, but I stood pat.

"I mention this simply to demonstrate the smattering character of high school instruction in dead languages. The fact is that the classics and formal mathematics have declined in relative importance in school, as science, history and modern languages have gained."

Endowed Private School Testing Theories.

It is interesting to observe that Mr. Flexner has not let his theories in this respect lie idle, either. With funds of the General Educational Board he has established in New York the Lincoln School, embodying in its curriculum virtually all the ideas he has enunciated. He says it is encountering difficulty in finding the proper textbooks, but is creating them, and he hopes in a few years that he may be able to report to the country, out of the experiment, a definite beacon for future education.

Mr. Flexner has quite as minute and definite ideas for revamping the modern university and for compressing a rather wasteful system of 16 years devoted to elementary and secondary education into 14 or less. He is not ready to say whether the first two years of college should be lopped off and given to the high schools. But he is quite certain that in this stage of education there is tremendous waste of energy and purpose and an overlapping that retards the issuance into life of the American boy and girl.

He does not despair of the situation. He does not condemn with a devastating sweep the whole system of American education, but he does believe that the nation could free itself from the clutches of tradition and do some original thinking as to how it can stimulate its youth to more earnest profitable work.

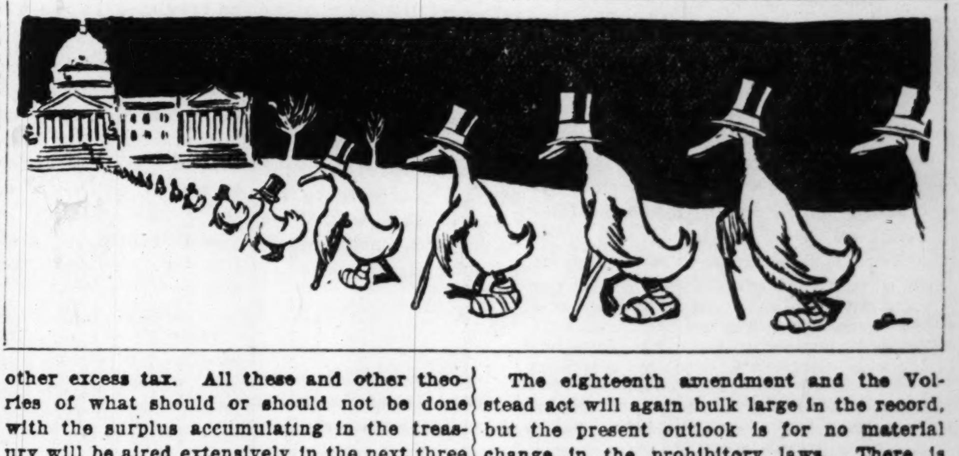
REED COMMITTEE TO REPORT

"Lame Duck" Session Certain to Defeat Coolidge Tax Rebate Plan, With Strong Sentiment Favoring Reduction.

Wets, With Morale Heightened by Election, Will Oppose Bills Designed to Strengthen Volstead Act.



By CHARLES G. ROSS
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The short, or "lame-duck" session of the Sixty-Ninth Congress will open at noon Monday and continue a scant three months, to March 4, 1927. The popular name for the session is peculiarly appropriate in this instance, for owing to the heavy casualties among senators at the last election, the number of those who will continue to make laws after their repudiation at the polls will be unusually large.

It is this session which Senator Norris would abolish by constitutional amendment; three times the Senate, by a top-heavy majority, has voted to submit his proposal to the States, and three times the submission has been prevented by the House leadership. Unless President Coolidge calls an extra session, which is unlikely, the new members of the House and Senate, except those senators who were chosen to fill out unexpired terms, must continue to "cool off" until December, 1927. The exceptions are Senator Hawes of Missouri, Senator David I. Walsh of Massachuetts, Senator Stewart of Iowa and Senator Gould of Maine. These four take office at once.

Stewart succeeds the late Senator Cummins and will sit only until March 4, after which the seat will be taken by Senator-Elect Brookhart, who was chosen for the long term. Hawes, who displaces George H. Williams, comes in for the short term ending next March and for six years thereafter, while Walsh, the victor over National Republican Chairman Butler in Massachusetts will fill out an unexpired term ending in March, 1929. Gould, a Republican, has just been elected to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Fernald.

The names of all the items on the legislative program of the short session have a familiar ring. Tax reduction, Muscle Shoals, radio regulation, farm relief, rivers and harbors, alien property, prohibition—none of these identifying tags will have any novelty for the reader who followed, however casually, the proceedings of the first session. Some of the issues which they represent may be settled, but the great majority of contentious questions, it is safe to predict, will be no nearer a solution on March 4 than they are today.

Thumbs Down on Tax Rebate

What concrete measure, if any, will emerge from the recent welter of talk about tax reduction and tax rebates cannot be foretold, but is certain that Mr. Coolidge's suggestion of a rebate on the taxes being paid this year will get nowhere.

Taxes, with the elated theme of the anticipated treasury surplus for the current fiscal year, will of course continue to be the subject of extensive debate. Democratic spokesmen have announced that they will champion a general downward revision. The treasury opposes this. The most that it is willing to recommend—and it recommends this only as a workable substitute for the inept Coolidge plan—is a rebate on the taxes to be paid next year. What the treasury really favors is the application of the surplus toward the reduction of the public debt—a plan which commends itself to some senators, like Norris, who ordinarily are strongly opposed to treasury policy.

Senator Shipstead, the lone Farmer-Labor member, who is being courted assiduously by the Republicans, has suggested that the surplus be used to erect needed public buildings throughout the country. A strong body of opinion has grown up in favor of reducing the corporation income tax, which in the last tax bill was raised from 12 to 13 1-2 per cent, and eliminating the automobile and other excess tax. All these and other theories of what should or should not be done with the surplus accumulating in the treasury will be aired extensively in the next three months.

In view of the conflict of opinion and the shortness of the session the best guess is that tax revision will go over to the next Congress. The same prophecy may safely be made with regard to the Democratic plan for tariff reduction.

Stalemate on Shoals and Farm Relief

Muscle Shoals will again be up for discussion. But with small prospect of a settlement of the problem at the coming session. There is pending the report of a joint congressional committee recommending the leasing of the shoals to 13 Southern power companies. Senator Norris, leader in the fight for Government ownership and operation of the shoals power and fertilizer project, is confident that he can muster sufficient votes to defeat the committee plan, though he entertains no hope of getting his own accepted by this Congress. The shoals fight, barring unexpected development, will remain throughout the session in a stalemate.

There will be the usual pother over farm relief. Senator McNary of Oregon, who is slated for the chairmanship of the Committee on Agriculture, plans to introduce in simplified form his bill which was defeated at the last session. The measure again will embody the principle of the "equalization fee" on certain farm products. That this or any other farm relief bill will get through the session is highly unlikely.

The Senate has two fixtures on its calendar. On Dec. 13, in pursuance of its order at the special session of Nov. 10, it will meet again as a court of impeachment to receive the report of the House managers in the Judge English impeachment case. The managers in the meantime will have laid before the House their recommendation that the case be dropped because of the resignation of the Judge. There has been no hitch in the plan to discontinue the impeachment proceedings.

On Dec. 14, under a special order made just prior to adjournment last July, the Senate will begin consideration of the rivers and harbors bill, which already has passed the House. This measure carries an item for the purchase of the Cape Cod Canal as recommended by the President. The proposed canal purchase has been characterized by the opposition as an effort to put the Government into an unprofitable business, in contrast with the effort to get the Government out of the potentially profitable Muscle Shoals enterprise.

Mexican Relations to the Fore

In the field of foreign relations, the Senate will have before it the Lausanne treaty, with Turkey, which Senator Borah has announced he will seek to call up after the Christmas holidays; the perennial Mexican problem and the French World War debt agreement. The last named, however, will probably not be taken up for action so long as it remains unratified by the French Parliament. In view of the unwillingness of other nations to accept without change the Senate's reservations to the World Court protocol, there is a marked disposition among Senators to let the court problem rest.

As to Mexico, there is likely to be a flare-up of discussion at any time. The Post-Dispatch exposure of the manner in which the State Department "planted" an alarming story of an alleged Mexican effort to "bolshevize" Central America will undoubtedly figure in the debates. No Senator thus far has publicly lent any encouragement to the apparent effort of the department to prepare the public mind for a break with Mexico.

The eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act will again bulk large in the record, but the present outlook is for no material change in the prohibitory laws. There is no chance for any wet measure. The best the wets can hope for is to keep the drys on the defensive—a position to which they were plainly relegated by the last elections—and to prevent the passage of further arid measures. Such is the heightened morale of the wets and such the tendency among many of the drys to keep the issue under cover, that the chances favor the sidetracking of the various bills for "putting teeth" into the Volstead act. The drys, however, would undoubtedly be able to put these measures over if they could be brought to a vote.

There is a genuine chance that the session, in response to a widespread public demand, will adopt some measure of radio control. Two control bills were passed last session, one by the House and one by the Senate. The House bill would vest authority over radio licenses, wave lengths, etc., in the Secretary of Commerce, while the Senate bill provides for control by a commission. Conferees of the two houses were in the midst of their effort to iron out the differences when the session adjourned last summer. They will resume their deliberations with opening of the new session.

Some of Bills Which May Succeed

Hearings by the House Ways and Means Committee on proposed legislation for the disposition of alien property have been in progress for the last two weeks. It is possible that a bipartisan measure, seeking to do belated justice to those whose property was seized during the war, will be passed.

Another bill which appears to have a fair chance to make the grade is the McFadden Branch Banking bill which has been kicked from pillar to post through several sessions.

The long-suffering migratory bird bill, proposing the establishment of bird sanctuaries, may be taken out for another airing.

The Reed bill increasing the salaries of Federal judges, which the Senate passed last May by a vote of 66 to 8, is expected to be called up in the House.

Senator Johnson of California will press for consideration of the Boulder Canyon dam bill and Senator Moses of New Hampshire hopes to get the approval on the Senate steering committee for a bill to reduce the rate interest on the Government's loans to the railroads.

Various investigations are proposed in resolutions pending in the Senate, among them an investigation of the so-called bread trust.

One of the highlights of the session will be the submission of the Reed reports on primary election corruption in Pennsylvania and Illinois. Senator Norris has promised to bring the story of Pennsylvania down to date with a recital of evidences of corruption in the November election. Though the two Senators-elect who are affected by the charges, Vare of Pennsylvania and Smith of Illinois, will not present themselves to take the oath until the beginning of the Seventieth Congress, it is likely that the question of their eligibility will be the subject of much debate in the forthcoming session.

A large part of the time of both houses will be taken up with the passage of the supply bills. Hearings on these measures have already been started by the House Appropriations Committee, which plans to have the Treasury and Postoffice appropriation bills ready for consideration as soon as the House meets.

The suggestion has been made that the Democrats in the Senate may combine with the Republican insurgents to hold up some of the necessary supply bills and thereby compel the President to call the new Congress into extra session. This is a possibility, but a possibility only. It is certainly not in the cards at the present.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"A New Cause for Hope."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IF every American newspaper had long ago taken the attitude which you have taken in this Olds' case, American democracy might, today, be in a healthier condition.

What is the purpose of a "free press" if Government officials are to be permitted to use it to spread propaganda? American newspaper men have long expressed contempt for the European journals which are used by European politicians for their own purposes. They are used by Europeans through venality. It appears that they have been used in America through stupidity.

There have been many reasons to despair about the condition of the American press in relationship to the fundamental principles of this country. By your courageous action you have given new cause for hope; new occasion to believe that there is vigor and life among American newspaper editors.

I thank you and trust that all understanding Americans will also thank you.

A Big Difference.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

A STRIKING new lesson in the enforcement of the law has been given. A man while driving an automobile killed two women in the last 20 months. His total punishment was in agreeing not to drive his own car for one year.

If his car had contained a small amount of whisky the car could have been confiscated and sold. He could have been tried on a charge of illegal transportation and possession and been given a year or more in jail, and then could have been tried again and given another sentence by the State.

In other words, the penalty for having a flask of whisky or beer is more than to kill one or more people.

Proposition No. 4 was beaten by a large majority. Let us ride and sing.

Has Reed Talked Too Much?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MAY I offer a reply to the letter of Paul Anderson, Washington, D. C., one of your correspondents who takes exceptions to my criticisms of his friend Senator Reed? Mr. Anderson makes a poor defense, indeed. The ability of Mr. Reed as a speaker and debater is readily admitted. I never questioned it at all. He probably is a better speaker than the illustrious Webster and Calhoun, about whom Senator Walsh knows so much—from hearing them, presumedly. But Mr. Anderson does not reply to my questionnaire of what Reed has really done as a Legislator, a law-maker, an outstanding character in the affairs of the country. What good Legislation, laws, etc., has he offered, fathered, put through? These are the questions I asked. Ability to talk, to orate, to debate, is positively no criterion of a man's ability to govern his country. Lincoln, Roosevelt, Cleveland, Wilson, were not orators but they have decided places in the country's history as outstanding Presidents. That the Senate Club should think Mr. Reed a good orator is natural. The objection to Mr. Reed is that he has been more of an orator than anything else. You know, one can orate too much, and I am one of many who believe that Mr. Reed does just this one thing—he talks too much.

Mendicants.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HOW can Government aid be extended to the farmers without working injury to everybody who is not a farmer? The McNary-Haugen bill proposes to appropriate a quarter billion dollars to set up the export machinery to handle surplus crops. This money must be taken from those who are not farmers and given, not to farmers, but to owners of farm land, for if the measure in any way stimulates agriculture, farm land will increase in value. Under the hallucination that government is omnipotent, we are fast becoming a race of mendicants. Manufacturers and big business cannot exist unless protected by prohibitive tariffs. Laborers will starve to death unless organized to compel employers to pay higher wages than they would pay in a free market. And now comes the farmer. If he is to be helped at our expense, some of the rest of us will need Government aid. Where will this end? Instead of supporting more leeches, let us get rid of those who are now sucking the blood of the rest of us, including the farmers. Abolish the tariff. Abolish all taxation. Collect for public purposes the full annual rental value of land. If we do this, there will be no need for additional machinery to handle surplus crops. Exports will increase as imports increase. It will not longer be necessary for labor to organize, as there will be work for all at the highest wage. Even agitators will have to go to work producing wealth.

Let us have an end of pussyfooting and face this problem like men.

CHARLES A. GREEN,
Secretary Commonwealth Land Party of Missouri.

BILL OF RIGHTS—1927 MODEL

In all the bewailing about the current plight of our over-burdened Federal courts, no attention appears to be given to one of the greatest obstacles to their business-like procedure. We refer to the inability of the Federal judiciary to comprehend the exact present meaning of the first, fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth, ninth and tenth amendments to the Constitution. This is not the fault of the jurists who sit upon the Federal benches, because neither the Supreme Court nor any other authority has ever attempted to express these amendments accurately as they exist at the present time. The consequence of this dereliction is that the judges, whose dockets are overloaded with cases which involve reinterpretation of these amendments, are presented with a predicament which amounts to a practical impasse.

In the hope that we may be aiding the judiciary in again achieving a notable degree of efficiency, we suggest the following redefinitions. It will be observed that, in the left column, are to be found the parts of the amendments in dispute as adopted by the founding fathers, while, in the right, are to be observed the same articles as they exist at the moment:

ARTICLE I. Congress shall make no law abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.	ARTICLE I. Congress shall, except in time of war, make no law abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.
ARTICLE IV. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated.	ARTICLE IV. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, except when it shall be suspected by an official that a person, or persons, may possibly be violating some Federal law.
ARTICLE V. Nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb.	ARTICLE V. Nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb, unless the offense be one prohibited by both State and Federal law, even though the offense be the same.
ARTICLE VI. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed.	ARTICLE VI. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a trial at such time as shall suit his prosecutors, and by a jury of whatever state and district said prosecutors believe most likely to convict him.
ARTICLE VIII. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.	ARTICLE VIII. The amount of bail required, the fine imposed, and the punishment inflicted, shall be at the discretion of the court.
ARTICLE IX. The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.	ARTICLE IX. The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to guarantee these rights to the people, nor shall it be construed to suggest that the people have any rights whatever which Government is bound to respect.
ARTICLE X. The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.	ARTICLE X. The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are to be considered as innate powers of the United States.

We make no claim of infallibility for these redefinitions, according to contemporary rulings, of our so-called fundamental rights. But we do believe, as we have intimated, that if each Federal judge would frame them and place them above his bench for convenient reference, he would find his duties considerably lightened and his business dispatched with much greater speed.

SHOCK.

Assuming the truth of the statement that Samuel Hopkins Adams' "Revelry" is a scandalous, muckraking kind of novel, a great many of those who confess themselves shocked by it exhibited no sense of shock whatever over the events Mr. Adams seized upon to dramatize. After all, "Revelry" is only a book. It is not an act of governmental corruption.

HIC!

The insects of Germany have hit the skids and are engaging in all the wild revelry of the jazz age, and bug collectors are contributing to their delinquency. Bug collectors go forth at night to paint trees with a delightful liquid whose main ingredient is alcohol. As the insects gather, imbibe and pass out, they drop into the cyanide bottle and are heard no more.

The ant, ordinarily a sturdy householder, cannot resist the appeal of the scientific speak-easy. That is also true of the blithe cicada and the phlegmatic beetle. No sooner is one of these night clubs of the forest set up than it is filled with gangs of roisterers, who make the night hideous with their raucous noises. A cicada quartette putting on "Sweet Adeline" while in their cups is a cacophonic triumph.

Not knowing the meaning of temperance, however, the insects reap the full measure of punishment. One good stew and the buzzer and stinger become Exhibit A and B on the specimen card. Even so, this debauchery is depressing. When the future sluggard goes to the ant, he's likely to find him piped to the gills in some den of Bacchus.

MUZZLES FOR FEDERAL TEACHERS.

We are informed that when Gen. Fries complained of Prof. Flury because of his prize-winning definition of socialism in a monthly magazine the Washington (D. C.) Board of Education promptly replied to him:

> The board is unanimously of the opinion that it will not tolerate in the public schools of the District of Columbia any utterances or communications to the pupils therein which are seditious, disloyal or disrespectful to the Government of the United States or its Constitution or which are subversive of the ideals which lie at the foundation of the Government, and any employe of the Board of Education, who either in classroom or outside of the classroom, by direct communication to the pupils of the public schools or indirectly by any means which are likely to be brought to their attention, undertakes to violate either the language or spirit of this position, will, after due proof thereof, be subjected to disciplinary action.

It appears from this that Gen. Fries won a sort of victory, too, and by studying this pronouncement we will get an idea of what Federal control of education would do to us generally in this country, if it is ever put over. Of course, seditious utterances are out of place in a schoolroom and everywhere else, as long as the ballot is free. But what are "disloyal" utterances and utterances "disrespectful to the Government of the United States or its Constitution"? Is it disloyal or disrespectful to say that the eighteenth amendment is a despotic provision, wholly abhorrent to the spirit and purpose of our Constitution; that the Volstead act is a piece of tyranny, and that its attempted enforcement has created an abominable system of terrorism and corruption? Is it disrespectful to say that our constitutional immunities against governmental power have become so weakened through usurpation of power, sustained by the Supreme Court, as to warrant no confident reliance upon them?

According to the degree of subserviency of the Federal Board of Education, these utterances would be considered disloyal and even seditious, in spite of their truth. Yet no Federal teacher dares say so, if he cares for his job.

The right of free criticism of our institutions and of innovations practiced upon them is the very essence of free speech, and the only means by which we can hope to escape complete subjection to government. And so long as our respective states cling to their separate school systems we shall retain some independence of thought among both teachers and pupils, nor will any corrupt administration at Washington be able to place muzzles upon them.

THE HEROIC PSYCHIATRIST.

A German psychiatrist, testifying in a motor fatality case where a woman was the defendant, said women should not be permitted to drive automobiles because their "nervous systems are so keyed that they cannot react quickly and rationally in times of danger." We believe the psychiatrist is mistaken. Observation convinces us that, like men, there are capable women drivers, reckless women drivers, speedsters and incompetent drivers. Perhaps some statistician will gallop gallantly to the rescue by quoting the comparative percentage of women drivers that figure in accidents. But while the German psychiatrist is probably wrong, his courage is magnificent. He is of the stuff of heroes, this chap.

COUNTY HOSPITALS.

Missouri might heed with profit the voice of Dr. Dean Lewis, professor of surgery in Johns Hopkins University, who, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter, published Tuesday, suggested the establishment of county hospitals when no single community in the county can afford a first-rate hospital. Dr. Lewis pointed out that the county hospital idea is spreading, particularly in Indiana. Just as the township high school has supplanted the numerous small and low-grade high schools, so must the county hospital eventually become a reality in the rural districts. The marvelous facilities of science for restoring health are only available to the farms and small towns when they co-operate to pool all their resources in one central institution, perhaps located at the county seat.

Another distressing outlook for the rural centers is the unpopularity of country practice among young physicians, who usually prefer to locate in cities. The lure of a practice in the big city is just as tempting to the young doctor as the lure of good wages and good times are for the boys and girls who desert the country for the factories and bright lights. Maintenance of at least one modern, efficient hospital plant in each county will encourage ambitious young doctors who heretofore could find nothing in the country—not even a decent laboratory—to hold them.

In counties with insufficient means to establish hospitals, it may be possible to obtain aid from the Commonwealth Fund, founded by the late Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, with an endowment of $38,000,000, the object of which is to aid in the erection and equipment of rural hospitals all over the country, where communities are willing to bear part of the cost and the maintenance thereafter. The office of the Fund is in New York City.

Arky, who has become rich as a professional bondsman, has a bad record. He is at present in default on two $1000 bonds. He has signed bonds in the past without owning a cent's worth of visible property.

Judge Hogan was right. Sam Arky should have no standing in any court. The wonder is, considering the shenanigans in which he has been exposed, that he should have the temerity to enter a courtroom.

NO LACK OF MEDICINES.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

NOT IN THE CRIME CATEGORY.

WALTER LIPPMANN in December Harper's Monthly.

WE must examine Prof. Fisher's claim that the Volstead act should be enforced. The question is: can it be? What do we mean by enforcement? We do not mean the absolute disappearance of all liquor. No law is enforced absolutely. The penal law is broken by murderers and thieves. The tariff law is broken by smugglers. The commercial law is broken by swindlers. The tax laws are broken by tax-dodgers. Is a breach of the Volstead act in the same category of law breaking? Well, Harper's Magazine does not publish articles by murderers, thieves, smugglers, swindlers, and tax-dodgers discussing the policy of the law they break. The opponents of capital punishment do not form associations of murderers. The free traders do not hold banquets attended by smugglers. The Secretary of the Treasury does not make speeches to tax-dodgers. But Cabinet officers, Senators, Congressmen, Governors, Mayors, Judges, Chiefs of Police, bankers, editors and other pillars of society are openly convivial with men who make no bones about their defiance of the Volstead act. Now a law which can be violated openly and without shame by men who are normally law-abiding may fairly be called a law which is not enforced.

Such a law is obviously in a different category from a law which is poorly enforced. The income tax law is, I believe poorly enforced in the sense that many people liable to pay do not make returns, and that many who make returns cheat the law. But who ever heard of a tax-dodger saying, as Mr. Jerome D. Greene does in the Atlantic Monthly, that "disregard of the law" should be openly approved and encouraged by those who oppose in principle the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act?

A GOOD WORD FOR OUR GIRLS.

HENRY FORD in the World's Work for December.

WE take no stock in this talk about boys and girls having degenerated. They are no crazier today than they ever were—it maybe that they have more sense than they used to have. Certainly the girls have more sense, for they have more freedom and thus greater opportunity to gain sense. Some people seem to think that they dress queerly and act queerly. We think they are dressing sensibly and that they are brighter and more able to take care of themselves than ever they were. Employers in general unconsciously recognize this by giving more and better opportunities to girls than we do to boys. It is easier for a girl to get a respectable job than it is for a boy to get one.

MODERN SALESMANSHIP.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE New Jersey Supreme Court has just set aside a verdict obtained by a housewife against a salesman. In his persistency to have her buy a household device, she said, his conduct and threats brought an attack of apoplexy upon her.

Modern salesmanship now employs everything in emotional and stage repertory to put its goods across. But nervous shocks are not good propaganda, unless the agent is the victim. Perhaps it might be dramatic for him to suffer a stroke as the result of his surprise at hearing his prospective customer finally refuse to make a purchase. A "fall" like that might bring down the house, as they say in the greenroom.

BORAH'S WAY, NORRIS' WAY.

From the Milwaukee Journal.

NEITHER Senator Borah nor Senator Norris can believe in the Vare business in Pennsylvania or the Smith business in Illinois. Senator Norris made his opposition felt by going into Pennsylvania and campaigning against Vare. The overturn there nearly unseated the Philadelphia boss.

Senator Norris said of the Pennsylvania case: "If we had had half a dozen speakers of the caliber of Borah on the stump against Vare and one newspaper in Pennsylvania like the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Vare would have been beaten."

But Borah wasn't there. He was out making party speeches, like any Old Guarder, somewhere else. Borah's stand on the Vare and Smith cases is that the Senate has not authority to exclude these men on account of anything done in their primary campaigns. They must be seated and then if two-thirds of the Senate so decides, can be expelled. Which means of course that they can vote in organizing the Senate.

For think what would happen if the Republicans could not organize the Senate. The committee chairmanships would go to Democrats. The nation's loss would be tremendous; for Senator Borah is chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. It is a position he enjoys and takes very seriously. For he stays away from Europe and tells his countrymen all about it.

Not through Borah's counsel will the Republicans fail to organize the Senate. A little thing like his supposed objection to the things Smith and Vare stand for does not disqualify them from coming in and voting. Borah's theory of the way for the Federal Government to control primaries for Federal offices does not include any possibility of depriving Senator Borah of his committee chairmanships.

But unless you eliminate sad and unnecessary statistics, w shall organize a Society for the Prevention of Useless Statistics.

THE WORLD'S WORST POEM.

Sir: May I suggest for the world's wors poem:

Verses (sic)

Supposed to be written by Alexander the Gre—I mean Selkirk, during his solitary bode on the Island of Juan Fernandez.

I am monarch of all I survey;
My right there is none to dispute;
From the center all round to the sea
I am lord of the fowl and the brute.
O, Solitude! where are the charms
That sages have seen in thy face?
Better dwell in the midst of alarms
Than reign in this horrible place.

And so on, including this, which you robably have forgotten in the time sin our school days:

Society, friendship and love,
Divinely bestowed upon man,
O, had I the wings of a dove
How soon would I taste you again!
—William Cowper.

ISSUANCE OF $100,000,000 MORE STATE ROAD BONDS FAVORED BY HUGH STEPHENS

Member of Highway Commission Would Speed Up Completion of 7640-Mile System Now Half Constructed.

Issuance, or at least authorization, of $100,000,000 additional in State road bonds, to complete the 7640-mile State road system of Missouri in about four years, instead of more than twice that time under the alternative "pay-as-you-go" plan of financing, was advocated by Hugh Stephens of Jefferson City, a member of the State Highway Commission, in an interview here.

The system has been half completed at a cost so far of $106,000,000, and its total cost now is estimated at $212,000,000. The suggested additional bonds, Stephens said, would not increase automobile registration fees nor the 2-cent gasoline tax.

Some action to speed the road-building program may be taken by the Legislature, which convenes in a month, and it may consider a bond issue. Stephens made it plain that in answering questions about financing the program he spoke for himself and not for the commission, but that there was no dissension within the commission, which, he said, was united in the desire to complete the system as projected. He declared he would co-operate in any policy on the matter the commission might adopt.

No Plan Yet Decided Upon.

Contrary to an impression that has spread, the commission, when it met in Kansas City recently, did not approve the idea of the alternative plan of pay-as-you-go for roads from revenue, after the $60,000,000 bond-issue fund made available in 1922 is exhausted in 1928. Existing law provides only for this plan after exhaustion of the $60,000,000 bonds. Asked to explain the situation, Stephens said:

"The report of the commission prepared for the Legislature has only one paragraph bearing on our future financial policy, which accompanies a review by the commission of the present status of the highways and the length of time the chief engineer estimates it will take to finish the State system, as follows: 'If a speedier State road program is demanded, the commission will give out what in its judgment is the wisest and best method of carrying it out.'

"This leaves the question to be decided by the people for whom the roads are built and by whom they are paid for, where I think it properly belongs, and without recommendations from the commission until we can determine what is the true sentiment upon that subject, that is, whether the roads shall proceed on the pay-as-you-go plan or be speeded by the issuance of bonds.

Pay-As-You-Go Plan.

"In either event, the roads can be finished with the present automobile registration (producing license fees) and rate of gasoline tax, the pay-as-you-go plan taking longer than the other. It is estimated and shown in the report of the commission that on the pay-as-you-go plan the 7640 miles of the present State system probably can be finished in eight or nine years.

"I incline to the feeling it will take longer because the estimates of our chief engineer do not take into account any changes in the present system of roads or types of pavements, or the widening of pavements near large cities, which has been found necessary in many states, nor roads to State parks. I think one additional demand we will have to meet is the dust treatment of some of our gravel roads on which is heavy traffic.

"There will be four or five sessions of the Legislature during which changes in the laws may be agitated and efforts made to alter the program. While none of these contingencies may have to be taken care of, they are liable to delay completion o. the work."

Awaits Public Demand.

Asked if he intended to advocate a new bond issue, Stephens said: "I have not presented the matter to the commission at any time and have no intention of doing so unless a public demand should make such action advisable. I believe a view, he continued:

"Roads in Missouri are of so many types and are built under such different conditions in various parts of the State that the magnitude of the work can only be considered in terms of money. Past estimates of the cost of our roads show that figures have increased with each calculation of the engineers. We first started with $60,000,000 in bonds for the 7640-mile system. Subsequent estimates showed the cost of these roads completed would be $187,000,000.

"In the report we are now making to the Legislature the cost is estimated at $212,000,000. This will give some idea not only of the extent of the undertaking but of the gradually expanding appreciation of its cost. It shows how far the public misjudged the job in the beginning. It is remarkable that Missouri should have so enthusiastically supported this tremendous enterprises for the past four years.

"Enthusiasm for good roads in Missouri has not been due to a pay-as-you-go policy thus far pursued, but to the heroic voting of $60,000,000 in bonds, which have been supplemented by $11,500,000 in local bonds voted just prior to 1922 and to $22,000,000 of Federal aid.

"Only $17,000,000 of the $106,000,000 already expended has been derived from automobile registration and gasoline tax. These are the sources to which we would have to look for support of a pay-as-you-go program, aided of course by about $2,400,000 of Federal aid per year, which the national government has appropriated for the years 1926, 1927 and 1928 but which is not assured beyond that time.

"Two years ago the commission announced it was then ready to handle economically a program of 1000 miles of road building per year, at $28,000 per mile. At this cost per mile, average cost of our system would be $28,000,000 per year, on the 1000-mile basis. We have built or committed in the last two years $25,000,000 worth of roads per year. Half of the system is finished.

Statement of Problem.

"If we go on to a pay-as-you-go plan we will have in 1928 about $11,000,000 for construction, including $2,400,000 of Federal aid, and probably some increases in subsequent years. If we are now able to spend economically $25,000,000 per year and the job is only half finished, the question arises whether we ought to continue until we finish the system or drop down to a smaller program, because less money necessarily means less roads.

"Whether our highways are paid for out of incoming revenues or out of the principal of bonds, the public is not affected, except it can get a connected system in about four years with bonds, which would take at least eight or nine years to finish pay-as-you-go. Bonds for $100,000,000 can be issued without any increase in the present automobile registration fees or gasoline tax.

"There is, of course, the item of interest and this should be added to the bonds. From issuance to maturity, the cost of interest has been estimated at from $39,000,000 to $67,000,000, according to length of time the bonds new, on the basis of a $100,000,000 issue, which is the least I think should be considered. FAVORS NEW BOND ISSUE FOR ROADS

HUGH STEPHENS.

FAVORS ISSUANCE OF $100,000,000 MORE ROAD BONDS

ures used for this purpose, the automobile owners of Missouri would save in the shortened period for completion of the system in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, which would be more than enough to pay the interest on the bonds from their issuance to maturity. This is supposing the roads could be completed on the pay-as-you-go plan by 1935, as estimated by our engineers, or by 1931 with the aid of bonds.

"The estimate of present saving to automobile owners on a half-completed system in Missouri is $20,000,000 per year. This does not take into consideration at all the additional money which may be received from tourist traffic or the economic advantage of farmers and business houses using the highways for freight and passenger traffic, nor the advantage which would accrue to Missouri through a completed system over one more or less disconnected throughout the State, nor the increase in cars due to the use of a finished system.

"It has been said in opposition to a bond issue that it would pledge revenues of the State for many years to come. The fact that issuance of bonds would definitely commit road monies to completion of the State system is, I think, one of the strongest arguments in its favor. This is the best way to prevent dissipation of the money.

Allowance for Maintenance.

"Ample allowance can be made to set aside each year, over and above the cost of interest and sinking fund, money for maintenance, administration, cost of collecting revenue (gasoline tax) and a more liberal allowance for extra maintenance, dust treatment and emergencies than we can possibly enjoy under restricted operation of the pay-as-you-go plan. Furthermore, there would still be many millions available for further road building after the 7640 miles are completed.

"While there has been objection offered to increasing our debt, we should not lose sight of the fact that debts for road-building purposes are not analagous to debts for other improvements, because they do not increase taxes on property, but immediately create a revenue by which they are automatically retired. In a sense, good roads are not altogether a tax even on the automobile user. The saving which he realizes is greater than the tax he pays.

"Some few states are building roads on the pay-as-you-go plan, but it will be found that as a rule their State income in supplemented by large bond issues by counties. In Wisconsin, for instance, no State bonds are being used for building roads. In 1925 that State had for construction about $7,000,000, but it had in addition $32,000,000 derived from county bond issues.

Funds in Other States.

"Long before Missouri started building highways, pretty complete systems had been built in some other states, and yet it is interesting to see the money those states had available for road construction in State and county funds for 1925. Here are a few: Pennsylvania, $113,000,000; New York, $97,000,000; New Jersey, $57,000,000; Illinois, $49,000,000; North Carolina, $48,000,000.

"In Missouri there has not been a single county bond issue for roads since the centennial road law was passed in 1921. Practically all the money we have to support the pay-as-you-go is from automobile registration and gasoline tax, supplemented by Federal aid, permanence of which is not assured."

Stephens asked in conclusion: "Do the people of Missouri want to travel detours for the next 10 years or get rid of them as soon as possible?"

"Road work should not slow down while the momentum is up," he added. "Bonds would be sold not all in a lump, but gradually, as in the past, so as to keep the rate of construction up to 1000 miles a year, the mileage our organization is built to take care of. If our income from automobile registrations and gasoline tax should increase beyond our present expectations, the amount of bonds necessary to be sold would of course be reduced. It is, therefore, impossible to say at this time how large a bond issue would be needed, but I think $100,000,000 is the minimum that should be authorized."

Destroys 8 Slot Machines.

Sheriff Schnipper of Belleville Friday destroyed eight of the 27 slot machines which he is holding as evidence against persons arrested in St. Clair County for operating slot machines which are classed as gambling devices.

Axes were used in demolishing the machines after County Judge Weber had entered a court order for the destruction of the machines which belonged to persons who have pleaded guilty to the charges of operating slot machines.

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat and chest.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pinex and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, bronchitis, and hoarseness.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ST. LUKE'S CLINIC PAVILION COMPLETED

Newst Addition to Hospital Is Gift of Edward Mallinckrodt.

The Rev. Rufus D. S. Putney, superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital, announced yesterday that the new $15,000 clinic pavilion addition to the hospital, completed last week, is the gift of Edward Mallinckrodt, president of the Board of the hospital, who has made many gifts to the hospital.

The clinic pavilion includes a number of rooms for the out-patient work of the hospital, which will relieve the congestion of the hospital and add to its community service program. A porch, 120 feet long and 16 feet wide, over the pavillion, is part of Mallinckrodt's gift.

The pavilion includes the social service section of the hospital, occupational therapy workshop, out-patient medical and minor surgery rooms, eye, ear and throat clinic, offices for Dr. Harvey G. Mudd, chief of staff, and Dr. Krause, hospital physician, and private rooms for patients of staff physicians.

Patients suffering from ailments which can be treated in daily visits to the hospital, others needing minor operations and emergency relief, members of families who are advised and aided in problems arising from the illness of hospital patients, come through the clinic. In addition, many come for diagnosis, referred by churches, welfare agencies or physicians, who must enter the hospital for longer treatment. Furnishings were provided by gifts from Mrs. Newton Wilson and the late Mrs. Fanny Carr.

CANCER SUFFERER KILLS SELF

Franklin B. Flower Found Beside Gas Stove.

Odor of gas from the flat above caused Mrs. Franklin B. Flower of 4116 Wyoming street, Friday afternoon to call Miss Bertha Setzer, a teacher from the Oak Hill School, who resided upstairs with her father, Theodore Setzer, 67, a retired photographer.

They found him dead in the kitchen, with a blanket over his head and four jets of the gas stove turned on. Mrs. Setzer said he was suffering from cancer and in pain following recent extraction of teeth.

Charlie Chaplin Awoke at 3 A.M.

The row between Charlie Chaplin and his wife seems to have started at 3 A. M. when the racket his wife's guests were making awakened Charlie from his slumber.

Perhaps the jamboree gave Charlie a pain. Whether of the heart, of the head, or the stomach—the press is curiously silent.

Eyestrain headache pains leave all others in the lurch, however, when it comes to real suffering, and it is all so unnecessary, as proper Glasses will promptly relieve these headaches—Glasses designed solely to correct the particular vision defect that is the source of the trouble. Guilbault Scientific Method of Testing Eyes has proved uniformly successful for the past 25 years in over 30,000 cases. A single moderate charge covers both Eye Test and Glasses.

$500,000 ESTATE OF NATHAN ROUNDS TO HIS FOSTER SON

Only Exception Is $17,600 Specifically Bequeathed to Employes of Firm of Which He Was Officer.

DESIRES THAT HEIR, 12, SHOULD TRAVEL

Money to Be Held in Trust —Boy Will Receive All of Principal When He Is 35.

Except for $17,600, the $500,000 or more estate of Nathan Rounds, treasurer and a director of the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., will go to the 12-year-old Nathan Rounds Jr., who 10 years ago was adopted from an orphanage. Moreover, the dry goods man instructed that the child be educated with extensive travel, particularly in the Western part of the United States, the section in which his foster-father had his business activity.

Mr. Rounds' will was filed yesterday shortly after funeral services for him had been held in the St. Louis Cathedral, preparatory to sending the body to Portland, Ore., for burial beside that of his wife, who died in 1924.

He named Walter W. Lorch, the dry goods company secretary, as guardian for the boy and left this specific instruction regarding him:

"It is my desire that my said son shall have the benefit of the broad experience to be obtained from travel, and especially in the western part of the United States. To that end I direct my trustees to give him ample opportunity to travel, and, if necessary, to engage a competent tutor to accompany him on the trips, in order that his travels may be of the greatest advantage to him.

To Charities in Event of Death.

"It is my will that, if in the judgment of the trustees the net income is insufficient to give to my said son these advantages, they may encroach upon the principal of surpus of said trust estate in a sum not to exceed $2000 in any one year."

Personal belongings and jewelry of Mr. Rounds are to be turned over to the son. The estate is placed in trust and the net income is to be used for his maintenance and education. At the age of 25 he is to receive one-fourth of the principal, at the age of 30 he is to receive one-third of the remainder, and at 35 he is to get the rest.

In the event of the death of Nathan Jr. before receiving the principal, the son's widow, if any, is to get one-fourth of the principal, with the other three-fourths going to charities. If no widow, charities are to get all. The charities named are Bethesda, Big Brothers, Children's Home Society, Father Timothy Dempsey's charities—hotels for working men and women, a day nursery and an emergency home; Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, Children's Aid Society, Children's Hospital, Protestant Orphans' Asylum and Frank Wyman Outing Farm for Children. Trustees and executors are the Mercantile Trust Co. and Lorch.

Employes Are Remembered.

Employes of Ely & Walker are among the beneficiaries of specific bequests, which are:

J. J. McElroy, St. Louis, $5000; J. M. Buckly, Denver, $5000; Robert R. Richter, St. Louis, $1000; James Nathan Brown, Holdredge, Neb., $1000; Bonner F. Bell, St. Louis, $5000 to be held in trust until he reaches 40, income to be paid to him in meantime; $500 to cemetery in Portland, Ore., for care of lot, and $100 to cemetery in Wallingford, Vt., for care of lot.

Rounds died last Wednesday of diabetes at the age of 65 years. He was widely known through his peculiar qualities of successful salesmanship.

"Certain Conditions" Attached—Dismissal Followed Heckling of Spectators at Football Game.

Harry Crane of 2530 Clifton avenue, a junior in the Washington University law school and business manager of The Hatchet, student annual, who was suspended indefinitely from the university about three weeks ago as a result of an incident at a football game, has been reinstated, effective last Thursday.

Certain conditions were attached to the reinstatement, which Crane declined to make public, and which university authorities said were for him to announce or withhold. He will have the privilege of making up lost time in his studies by arrangement with individual instructors.

PUG NOSE LEADS TO ARREST OF YOUTH FOR ROBBERY

Paul McCune, Who Served Term at Boonville, Identified as Highwayman by Store Manager.

Paul McCune, 20 years old, of 3952 St. Ferdinand avenue, released a year ago from the Boonville Reformatory after serving 28 months of a four-year term for highway robbery, was arrested after an armed youth held up and robbed a Kroger store manager of $12 at Cora and Kennerly avenues at 6:30 a. m. yesterday.

The victim, William Brown, was walking from his home, 4762 Cupples place, to the store at 4564 Kennerly avenue, at the time. He told police that the robber had a pug nose, and Capt. Salon Sets New Motor Car Beauty Standards

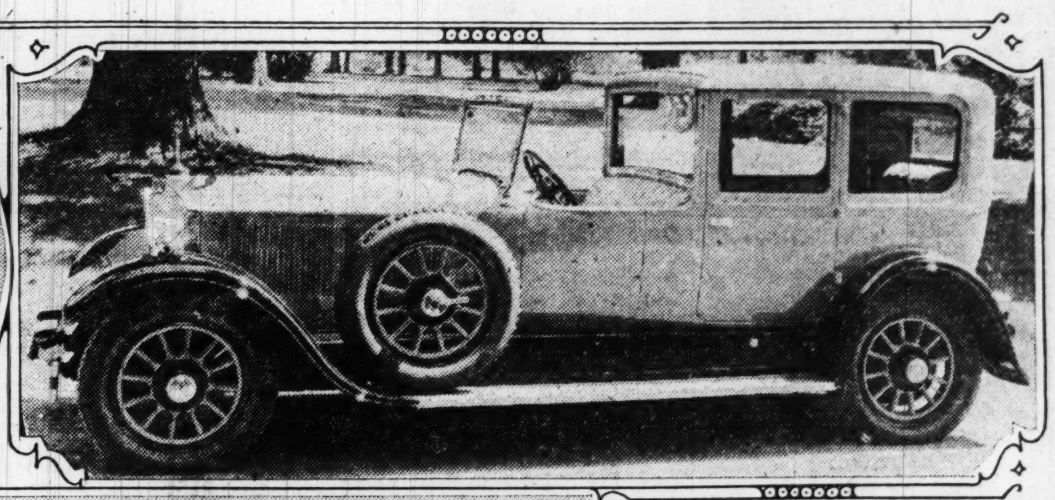
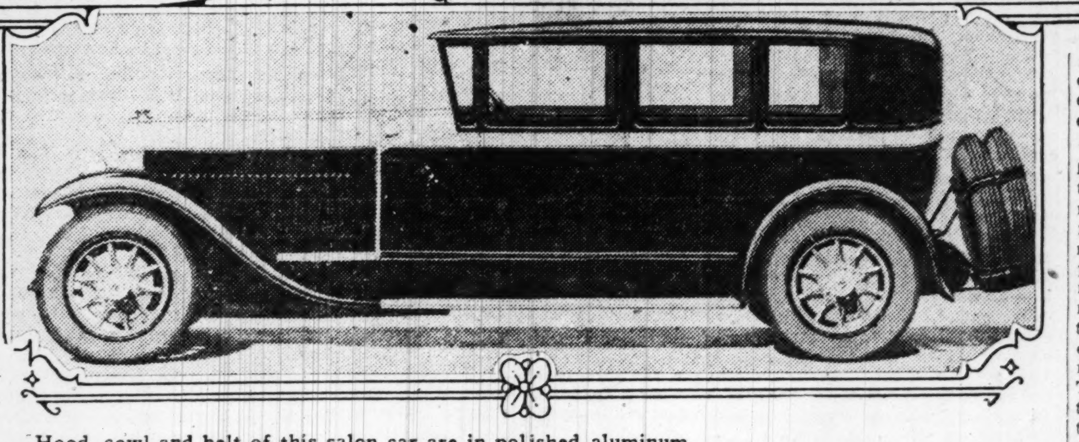
"Cobra" roadster, with damaskeened aluminum hood, designed by the late Rudolph Valentino on the Isotta-Fraschini eight chassis. A star exhibit at the automobile salon.



American-built cabriolet body on the 140 horse-power supercharged Mercedes. Another salon exhibit.



Hood, cowl and belt of this salon car are in polished aluminum.

By JAMES S. CAULFIELD.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.

WITH the largest and finest display of custom built motor car coach work ever assembled and nearly a score of the world's most famous chassis on exhibition this week, brilliant colors are the rule at the automobile salon in the Hotel Commodore. Harmonizing and contrasting colors are freely used, not only for exterior, but for interior finish and upholstery. In the latter case the selection of materials, weave and design, the last often in needle point, only play a part in this display of luxuriousness. Fittings are treated with rare skill and the hardware is invariably gold or silver plated or in bronze. Costly inlaid woodwork is freely used. Polished aluminum hoods and cowls are conspicuous.

Period Designs May Set a Style.

One of the notable features is the period art designs in a group of Lincoln cars. Twelve of the outstanding periods in the history of the world's art have been selected as the motifs for the type, style, colors and upholstery of these cars, ranging from the early Chinese period through the Egyptian, Roman and Louis IV, down to the present day.

This idea is one of the most original and practical in the history of motor coachwork and makes possible a high degree of artistic treatment and individuality. It will have a far-reaching effect on the future of the carrosiers' art.

Valentino Designed "Cobra" Car.

A car at this salon which attracts the immediate attention of the visitor is the "Cobra" model of the Isotta-Fraschini eight. It is a runabout which was designed by Valentino when making the picture "Cobra." It derives its name from the emblem on its radiator cap—a hooded cobra. The hood and body and body fittings, which are of polished aluminum, carry out the motif with curved lines. The polished aluminum parts are damaskeened to give a snake skin effect.

The motor is an eight-in-line with dual carburetion, and develops 115 to 145 brake horse power and was built to make 100 miles per hour. The wheel base is 145 inches. The upholstery is of bright red leather. The car is priced at $17,800. Capt. Ugo D'Annunzio, son of Italy's poet-general, is in charge of the affairs of the Isotta-Fraschini company in America and at the salon.

The Isotta Co., for $17,500, will duplicate the special limousine it presented to Queen Marie of Rumania. This car not only has a complete dressing and vanity set, but has gold plates, gold door handles and an electric telephone to the chauffeur. This company also shows a car which has the appearance of a sedan, but can be converted into a cabriolet, or, if one desires, a few knobs can be twirled and the car is changed into a touring car.

Sport Sedan for Man Has a Bar.

A car which exemplifies the last word in design for men is a Minerva chassis with body by LeBaron. It is called the "gentleman's sport sedan." The interior has a double lounge seat within convenient reach of a miniature bar made of solid mahogany, containing a small icebox, space for bottles, a cocktail shaker, a set of gold plates, cocktail cups and even a copy of the "Bartender's Guide." This fitment alone is attracting much attention to this model.

All Minerva cars have a power plant of six cylinders of the Knight sleeve type. They develop 110 horsepower and can speed up to 75 miles per hour on regular gear ratio. However, a special gear ratio is fitted which enables the car to travel up to 90 miles per hour. Vacuum four-wheel brakes are used on all Minervas.

The Panhard is another European car which is attracting attention. This car is powered with the first straight eight Knight engine shown in this country. It can do 5 to 100 miles per hour. The upholstery in this car is superb, and the decorations are in Italian walnut with ivory inlay. The chauffeur's compartment contains a map board which drops down and permits the driver to watch the route by merely glancing at the map. A small closet, built under the cowl, contains an electric beverage shaker. The bottles are mounted under the map board. The Panhard has another innovation in a large trunk mounted at the rear. This trunk opens up to disclose three large suitcases which can be lifted out.

The Rollston Co., custom coach maker, is exhibiting a special touring body on a Minerva chassis with metal-frame windows that are mounted on top of the doors, eliminating side curtains. These windows, when not in use, are stored in a special compartment in the driver's quarters.

Renault is displaying an inside drive sedan that is convertible into

PLANS FOR MUCH PAVING OF ROADS OUT OF ST. LOUIS

Projects for Which Bids Have Been Asked to Be of Benefit to Motorists of City.

Bids for concreting and graveling important sections of State highways out of St. Louis are to be received by the State Highway Department at Jefferson City on Dec. 13.

Five miles of 18-foot concrete are to be laid on highway No. 47, which branches off U. S. No. 66 (the road via St. Clair and Rolla to Springfield and Joplin) at Villa Ridge, goes to Washington, Mo., and, after crossing the Missouri River by ferry, runs north to a junction at Warrenton with No. 40 (the air line route to Kansas City).

About seven and one-half miles of concrete are to be laid in Jefferson County to extend the pavement on No. 30 (formerly the Gravois road) beyond Fenton to House Springs.

Five miles of concrete are to be laid on No. 21 between the pavement on No. 66 (the St. Louis-Flat River-Cape Girardeau-Sikeston route) and De Soto.

Fourteen and a half miles of gravel are to be laid on No. 21 between Potosi and Caledonia. This provides for making No. 21 all-weather to Arcadia, except for the approaches to the Big River bridge.

Nearly 12 miles of concrete are to be laid on U. S. No. 63 between Columbia and Ashland. This will all be on the road between Jefferson City and Columbia.

MOTORING ROUTE TO GULF CITIES IS ALL-WEATHER

Trip From St. Louis, via Memphis, to New Orleans, Biloxi and Mobile Outlined.

By ROBERT HENRY HALL
Press Bureau Automobile Club of Missouri.

Probably nothing has even done more toward welding North and South together than the flow of northern tourists southerly in recent years. The South is waiting for the motorist who wants a trip that will be "different."

Motorists from St. Louis and vicinity yearly make this part of the United States their winter Mecca, and more than in past years the Touring Department of the Automobile Club of Missouri has been called on to furnish information regarding the motor routes to the South, especially to New Orleans, seat of Old World culture and other Gulf coast cities likewise possessing an atmosphere never encountered in the North.

All-Weather Route to New Orleans.

Tourists making the Gulf port cities their winter objective would better travel south from St. Louis over the all-weather highway through Memphis to New Orleans. This route, 892 miles in length, is for the most part of gravel with long concrete stretches between St. Louis and Memphis.

This route leads out of St. Louis over Federal Highway No. 61, through Flat River and Cape Girardeau to Blytheville, Ark., whence it meanders south to Memphis, Tenn., Clarksdale, Yazoo City and Jackson, Miss., to Hammond, La. From Memphis south through Mississippi the route is not marked as Federal Highway No. 61 and the motorist must be guided by the trails marked through the various cities.

From Hammond, the route turns east on Louisiana State Highway No. 7 to Covington, La. From this point highway No. 34 is followed around the east end of Lake Pontchartrain to Slidell. At Slidell the Rigolets, two water chutes leading out of Lake Pontchartrain and into Lake Borgne nearby, must be ferried. The first ferry is known as Rigolets ferry and the other is Chef Menteur ferry. Immediately after the latter ferry Chef Menteur is entered.

Quaint Old Houses.

From Chef Menteur, the route goes west on State highway No. 2 to New Orleans.

Interest in New Orleans never lessens. The city is the second largest port in the United States, handling an enormous world commerce. Great levies, in some places 20 feet high, protect it from the Mississippi River in flood time. There are really two New Orleans—the modern industrial city, which is like many others, and the French city, like no other in the world.

In the French quarter are quaint old houses in the architecture of the Creole people; old shops once frequented by the heroes of another day; a convent dating from 200 years ago. The Place d'Armes has been renamed Jackson Square, but to the lover of Creole history it will always be Place d'Armes, where New Orleans welcomed her heroes, held her important meetings, and gathered for her celebrations.

The Cathedral, Cabilda and Presbytere Building face the square. The Cathedral is one of the most historic churches in the United States. The Cabilda was once the Spanish Court Governor's residence, and is now the Louisiana Historical Museum. The Presbytere, former home of Capuchin priests, serves as the Museum of Natural History.

The Absinthe House, not far from the square, is over a century old, and was the favorite haunt of Pierre and Jean Lafitte, pirates of the early eighteenth century.

"Riviera of America."

After exhausting their allotted time in New Orleans, many motorists will wish to visit other Gulf cities, such as Biloxi, Gulfport, Pass Christian, Pascagoula and Mobile. These cities, too, have not lost the charm which was theirs in the small-town days. Their streets are shaded by rows of dignified old trees, and there are always parks and monuments and beautiful drives, and great mansions surrounded by semitropical trees and sweet-scented flowers.

Biloxi, especially, is of interest. To the migrating tourist it is known as "The Riviera of America" and is one of the most popular winter resorts in the South. Gulfport, Pass Christian and Mobile, however, are as esteemed by tourists as is Biloxi.

From New Orleans to any of the other gulf cities Louisiana State Highway No. 2 is retraced ot Slidell, whence the motorist continues east to the Mississippi State line where the Gulf of Mexico is paralleled through Pass Christian, Gulfport, Biloxi and Pascagoula to Mobile. The highway is concreted almost in its entirety.

HE WILL DIRECT BUICK POLICY AS CHIEF EXECUTIVE

EDWARD T. STRONG.

FEDERAL ROUTE NO. 40 NOW SIGNED THROUGH ST. LOUIS

better condition this week. The cinder one-way road alongside the newly laid concrete just west of Gray's Summit, as stated by the Automobile Club last week, permits use of No. 66 through Gray's Summit and eliminates the Labadie detour. The cinder roadway is becoming hard packed by heavy traffic and is all-weather. Occasionally a large truck experiences difficulty on it and as a result passenger vehicles are delayed until the State Highway Department pulls out the truck with a caterpillar tractor, which is stationed at this point.

The three-mile stretch west out of Gray's Summit, which was prepared for concreting just before the first freeze, has dried until chains are not necessary. Although it is very rough, all types of vehicles traverse it without difficulty. In case of thaws, rains or more snow, however, chains will be necessary, as there is about six inches of dirt on the hard bed of the road.

E. T. STRONG APPOINTED AS BUICK PRESIDENT

General Sales Manager Promoted in Recognition of Sales Record He Made.

Announcement by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors Corp., that Edward T. Strong has been appointed president of the Buick Motor Co. is accepted in automotive circles as an expression of appreciation of the work Strong has done in his 15 years with Buick, the last 10 as general sales manager.

Strong has been responsible for the sale of 1,500,000 Buick cars, a volume which for nine years in succession has placed Buick at the head of all companies belonging to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in value of product marketed. He is also credited with building up the present Buick dealer and authorized service organization from coast to coast and in many foreign countries.

Went Up the Line Rapidly.

Of the 1,750,000 cars which Buick has built and marketed, 1,500,000, or about six-sevenths, were sold during the 10 years in which he was sales manager. Sales in 1926 will total 250,000 cars. In 1924 Buick sales were about 169,000 cars and in 1925 the total was 200,000. About 80,000 of the present Buick models have been delivered in the three months since their introduction Aug. 1.

Strong started as an expert at setting up farm machinery, then turned to selling. His company amalgamated with another which brought the I. H. C. gasoline engine into the market, and Strong was one of those selected to exploit the new product. Soon he was selling I. H. C. delivery cars, and in selling them to others he sold himself on the possibilities in the automobile field.

He soon found it with the Buick Motor Co. which had already won a strong position through its now famous valve-in-head engine. Success as special traveler brought him promotion to branch manager at Buffalo, job of manager, then to manager of the Indianapolis branch.

His next promotion was to manager of the Chicago branch. In a short time the Chicago branch was a model and was being used as a training school. Finally the chance came for the big step upward, and again Strong's record showed that he was the man to go up. The next 10 years gave Strong, as general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co. unlimited opportunity. It took no longer than the summer of 1918, less than two years after his appointment, to demonstrate his ability.

Builds Up Organization.

The annual award by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce of first choice of display space at the national automobile shows was, and still is, a prize coveted by all members of this body. It goes annually to the member company which does the greatest volume of business in the preceding year. Strong and his sales organization won this honor for Buick, in the second year of his sales managership, for the 1919 shows. Buick has won this honor every year since.

Such consistent sales leadership required a dealer and service organization of high quality, and Strong is given credit for building it to its present state of efficiency. There are now about 4000 authorized Buick service and dealer stations throughout the country under distributers and factory branches in key cities from coast to coast. Even the most remote service station is within 24 hours of a factory branch. The branches carry a complete line of Buick parts.

a touring car and also a graceful cabriolet. It also is showing on its record-breaking 45-horsepower chassis an aristocratic own car with a six-fender body and on the baby Renault chassis an all-weather body. The small Renault is the only four-cylinder car at the salon. One of the big Renaults has been driven 108 miles per hour for 24 hours.

New Things in Rolls-Royce Cars.

Brewster is exhibiting on Rolls-Royce chassis eight models ranging from sport couplet and phaeton to smart cabriolet and town car. Special features of these cars are the replacing of vanity cases by a single French bevel plate-glass mirror which slips unostentatiously into a side slip pocket, and discarding of electric cigar lighters in favor of a plain box of safety matches. Silver-plated ash trays are countersunk at a convenient angle in the long, wide lolling arm rests.

Microphonic speaking tubes are not found on this year's models. In their stead, a bell buzzer has been installed beneath the instrument board.

Marqueterie and broad lace are no longer found in these Rolls-Royec interiors. Simplicity is the keynote of Rolls-Royce interior decoration. Several of the Brewster bodies have panels of soft brown vici kid. One or two are magnificently hand-tooled which, in addition to bringing out all the natural lustre of the leather, produces a pleasing effect. Four or more interior lights have given place to a single bright dome light. Many of the Brewster models have no head lining, but show the highly finished bows of the skeleton roof.

Interesting Packard Coach Work.

Dietrich has built on the Packard eight chassis an all-weather town car which has a detachable solid extension for use in the driver's compartment, and glass lowered into the front doors and controlled by regulators so that this model can very easily be converted into a sedan. A Packard coupe with collapsible top, in balmy weather, may be transformed into a sport roadster.

Dietrich is exhibiting for the first time on an American chassis the Packard eight, the cabriolet de ville. A feature of this car is the windows in the doors operated by regulators. These windows, when closed, transform the car into a completely closed one. The interior of this car is exquisitely and tastefully designed.

Rollston has built on the Packard chassis a five-passenger inclosed-drive model with clear vision posts of unprecedented lightness of construction. A disappearing arm rest in the center of the rear seat is a feature.

The Deerham Body Co. has constructed on the Packard eight chassis a racy looking five-passenger sport sedan with a horseshoe mould running around the rear of the cowl. It also shows a graceful sport cabriolet with high sides and short coupling. A feature of this model is the sunken paneling with offset margins.

In a Holbrook quarter window Packard stationary cabriolet, the hardware belongs to the Renaissance stage of art and is all gold-plated with inlaid walnut panels and smoking and vanity sets to match. The colors are Ditzler's Princess Louise Lake and Ronan's Miami brown. The interior trimming is a Wiese broadcloth with medallion embroidery on the rear seat backs and broadlaces.

Cadillacs in New Colors.

Twelve new body creations represent the handiwork of five master body designers who have utilized the Cadillac chassis. They include Brunn, Holbrook, Willoughby, Fisher and Fleetwood.

Noticeable even among the galaxy of color in this year's salon, are two new shades in the Cadillac exhibit. These are topaz and rubra which are used on a Holbrook seven-passenger, non-collapsible cabriolet. The paint was especially prepared by Ditzler and the upholstery cloth especially dyed by Wiese. The body upper works are in topaz as well as the moldings and the usually black standard outside chassis parts. The remainder of the car is painted rubra, with a striping of robin's egg blue. Topaz is also used as the color of the leather upholstery in the front seats and the leather of the roof and rear quarters.

The interior is upholstered in a combination of topaz and rubra cloths. Narrow broad lace, especially woven by Wiese, is used for paneling the doors. Interior hardware is a special Holbrook Tilbury design finished in French bronze.

Cars which may be converted from closed to open are another feature of this year's salon and in the Cadillac exhibit, this is borne out by a two passenger coupe by Fisher. The body, hood and fender sets are finished in ivory duco with black stripings and the chassis and wheels are black. The upholstery and trimming are of special glove finish leather.

Cadillac is showing a very speedy looking car with a Fisher body called the Commodore. It is strictly a touring car. The body is polished aluminum and the upholstery is a light, tan, pigskin. A massive trunk carrier is on the rear and is finished in pigskin to match the interior.

Pierce-Arrow Custom Bodies.

Holbrook has designed on the Pierce-Arrow Series 80 chassis a non-collapsible, all weather cabriolet with luxuriously and tastefully fitted interior.

Judkins is exhibiting on the same type Pierce-Arrow chassis a six-passenger brougham with metal paneled rear quarters and upper back.

Chrysler by Fleetwood.

Fleetwood has chosen the Chrysler Imperial "80" chassis on which to fashion a town car type known as a "stationary cabriolet." The colors are in two-toned gray styles respectively "Presidio" and "Peerless" with black striping. Full varnish finish is used.

The upholstery likewise in toned gray, is grained leather in the driver's compartment and gray broadcloth in the tonneau.

Two Interesting Marmons.

Willoughby has built a four-passenger sport sedan on the Marmon chassis with clear vision pillar construction as a special feature.

It also is exhibiting a two-passenger collapsible coupe with sporty lines. This car is powered with an eight-in-line Marmon engine. This particular model is finished in biege.

Weyman Fabric Body on Stutz.

In the Stutz exhibit is a departure in bodies. This is the Weyman, an imported fabric product, which is used extensively abroad. Two cars with this body are shown. Both are four-door sedans finished in desert gray and upholstered in gray whipcord. The interior is skeleton with enameled pillars and all hardware is enameled the same color as the body. The Stutz exhibit includes two Le Barons, a "Prince of Wales" and a cabriolet, also a cabriolet by Fleetwood and a collapsible coupe, known as a "soldier," by Hume. This car has a rumble seat and several other new features.

According to Herman Steinbrugge, a member of a Paris banking firm, here to attend the Salon and to assist in organizing an American Weyman Co. more than 70 per cent of the cars manufactured in France use the Weyman body, while at the London Olympia almost all makers exhibited at least one car with a Weyman body. In this country, the Weyman is to be referred to as a "flexible body," rather than a fabric body.

Selecting at random, a berline by Judkins may be taken as an example of the period design Lincolns. Earthy hues, mellow tans, reds, yellows, greens, which predominated in the days when Cleopatra ruled the Nile, make up the color ensemble of this car. The exterior finish is in Cleopatra green with the upper works and body mouldings in black. Top material of tan harmonizes with the Carmelian red striping on the body and wheels. The interior is striking. The lotus blossoms and the papyrus done in needle-point by Wiese on a warm-toned broadcloth comprise the key to the decoration.

The Roman period is typified in a convertible roadster by Dietrich, the Gothic in a limousine by Willoughby and so on through history down to the period of today which is also a roadster by Dietrich finished in two-toned palmetto green set off with a piping of Miami orange while the seats are upholstered in hand crushed leather with orange leather piping.

Prince Visits Automobile Factory

Prince Nicolas of Rumania was an interested visitor to the Indianapolis factory of the Stutz Motor Car Co, upon the occasion of the royal party's recent visit to the Hoosier capital. President F. E. Moskovics, to the left, is shown explaining to the Prince a special machine used in the manufacture of the new safety Stutz.

RECORDS BROKEN IN CHEVROLET CONTEST

Total of 702 Cars of That Make Sold in St. Louis in November.

The "turkey and beans" contest among Chevrolet dealers and salesmen in the United States resulted in the sale at retail of 702 Chevrolet cars in St. Louis in November, breaking all records for that month and approaching the local best month record.

The metropolitan Chevrolet dealers were pitted against one another in the contest. The winning dealers and their salesmen will eat turkey while the loser eat beans, at a dinner scheduled for the evening of Dec. 8 at the Buckingham Hotel. Winners will sit on one side of the table eating their turkey dinner while on the opposite side will be the losers trying to look happy over their plain fare. The losing dealers will pay the cost of the dinner.

With a total of 78 sales in the month, the South Side Chevrolet Co. led the dealers, defeating its opponents, the Standard Chevrolet Co. and the Gilliam-Epstein Co., by 10 cars.

The Flint Chevrolet Co. sold 75 cars against 71 for the Big Four Auto Co.

The Wells Motor Co. sold 37 against 35 for the MacCarthy-Pardue Motor Co.

The Orthwein Motor Corp. sold 42 against 39 for the Hilmer-Belcher Chevrolet Co.

The Harding Chevrolet Co. sold 29 against 14 for the Reichardt Motor Co.

The Allen-James Motor Co. and the Century Auto Co., combined, sold 51 against 42 for the Gravois Motor Corp.

The Craft-Merello-Warner Co and the Mangle-Gillis Chevrolet Co. sold 53 against 42 for the North Side Chevrolet Co. and J. H. Brown & Son.

Reports are that the contest resulted in sale of around 71,000 Chevrolet cars in this country in November.

728,000 CHEVROLET CARS MADE IN YEAR

Again breaking all production records for three-speed automobiles, the Chevrolet Motor Co. on Tuesday closed its greatest year with an output of 728,697 cars, an increase of 209,637 cars, or more than 40 per cent over its own record of 1925, when 519,060 units were produced.

Factory wheels turned at a record clip throughout the year building a Chevrolet car every 12 seconds of each working day. Daily production averaged 2450 cars and reached a high monthly level in September when daily output averaged 3381 units.

In September 81,158 Chevrolet units were produced. This achievement followed several months of record-breaking production. April, May and June, with respective production of 71,157, 74,617 and 77,241 units, established successive records. July production was restricted somewhat to permit tooling and other changes necessary to effect several improvements in Chevrolet models. August production went to 76,551 units, only 690 fewer cars than were built in June, which stood as Chevrolet's high record month until out-distanced by September.

With production capacity for 1927 greater than ever before, Chevrolet, next month, enters on what promises to be a new record year for the world's largest manufacturer of three-speed transmission cars.

SELLS TIRES FOR 26 YEARS

John Glenn, owner of the Glenn Tire Co., Pine street at Grand boulevard, will complete on Dec. 23 his twenty-sixth year in the tire business in St. Louis.

JOHN GLENN.

Glenn recalls that he was the first man in this city to sell and install a solid tire. He sold it to the James Wright & Sons' Carriage Co., which at the time was at Nineteenth street and Washington avenue, and put it on one of the "storm buggies" which were then popular.

He says that in those days owners of vehicles were more than skeptical about the practicability of rubber tires, and so he experienced all kinds of difficulty in getting his tire business under way.

Liquid In Tube Repairs Punctures.

An automobile tire with inner tube immune to perforation by nails has been perfected, according to the rubber section, Bureau of Standards. The intertube tire contains a liquid which repairs the puncture instantly.

3400 ST. LOUISANS MAY GET G. M. C. INSURANCE

Group Policy Totaling $3,500,000 May Be Written on Employes in City.

Between 3400 and 3500 St. Louis employes of the General Motors Corporation, almost all of them in the Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants, are eligible to $1000 insurance each under a group plan which is expected to result in the writing of $100,000,000 insurance on the lives of 100,000 employes of the corporation and its affiliated companies. The total of insurance that may be written on General Motors workers in St. Louis under the plan is around $3,500,000.

The cost to an employe for the $1000 policy will be only 50 cents a month, or $6 a year, as the project is co-operative, corporation and employes sharing the cost. To get the plan under way promptly, the corporation will assume all cost for December. No medical examination is required, but employes who do not take advantage of the offer within 30 days must submit to examination at their own expense if they desire to take advantage of it later.

The $1000 will be paid immediately at death to the beneficiary. Or if the employe is permanently disabled before he is 60 years old the amount is to be paid to him in 20 installments of $51.05 a month after a three-month wait.

An employe can convert the insurance without medical examination to a standard form of policy if he leaves the employ of the company. He retains all rights under workmen's compensation laws.

"It is needless to emphasize the economic wisdom of life insurance," said Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, urging employes to take advantage of the plan. "A feeling of security, both at work and at home, goes hand in hand, with proper insurance protection. Group life insurance is co-operative. Its provisions are liberal. Its operations are free from red tape. The cost in this case is unusually low, due to the large number of employes and because the company shares the cost."

The policy, written by the Metropolitan Life Co., covers employes in General Motors plants in 36 large industrial centers in this country and Canada and in 17 citie over seas.

Seckman Hill in High by Packard 8 at 9 M. P. H.

New Model Also Does Same Grade in High So Fast Engine Hasto Be Shut Off on Curves.

By JIM LANCE.

One of the new Packard straight eight touring cars, driven by George M. Berry, head of the Berry Motor Car Co., last Saturday morning climbed the hill out of Antonio on the old Lemay Ferry road in high at three to eight miles per hour, climbed Frisco and Seckman hills so fast that its engine had to be shut off on the curves, then did Seckman hill high at nine miles per hour. The increase in bore of the engine of the Packard eight and improvements in its cylinder head carburetion and other things, have given this car the power to perform in an astonishing manner.

What It Did on the Hills.

The Packard was taken out the Lemay Ferry road, leaving the concrete on the old gravel road through Maxville to Antonio, where it was turned around. Berry started the car in high at five miles an hour at the foot of the long, steep hill out of Antonio, gradually increased the speed until the car was doing 10 to 12 miles per hour, then dropped to eight on the first pitch. Then he slowed to five miles per hour, once to four and again to three, then held a steady five miles an hour pace clear to the top of the hill. Thewriter got out and paced the car, walking beside it without any effort. The thousands of St. Louis motorists who drove the hill in the old days will appreciate what an almost unbelievable feat this was.

The Packard was sent up the notorious Frisco hill in high gear in an effort to see how fast itcould clim b the grade. But it picked up such speed and ran with such power that several times it was necessary to ease up on the accelerator, lest car and all go over the bank.

The same was true on Seckman hill, most widely known of test grades in this part of the country. The Packard went up so fast in high and gained such momentum that it was necessary to shut off the power entirely as it rounded two of the curves, then pick up again. It went over the top at 37 miles per hour.

Does Stunts on Seckman Hill.

Then the car was sent down the hill again as far as the store, and swung off on the road that enters the grade opposite the store. Coming out of this side road, the Packard had to be slowed to 15 miles per hour as it rounded the sharp curve onto the hill, then picked up to 35 miles per hour, held that pace over both the bad pitches and topped the hil lat 38 miles per hour. The writer has seen only one other car make the run out of this side road and up Seckman hill on high. The Packard, despite its 136-inch wheelbase and 42 pounds weight, bettered considerably the performance of that other much lighter car.

Again the Packard was driven down Seckman Hill to the store, where it was turned around. Too short a turn was made, so it was necessary to back up, which, of course, necessitated going through the gears to get going again in high. From a speed of five miles per hour at the store the Packard slid up to eight miles per hour in high and went up the hill with every indication that it would hold that speed to the top, when Berry dropped the speed to six, then to five miles per hour. It continued to climb, so he took a chance on dropping to four miles per hour. This was too much even for the Packard and he had to go into low.

Again he swung down the hill, made the turn at the store in high and started up again in high, picked up to a speed of eight to nine miles per hour and held that speed steadily without a quiver clear up the hill and over the top. Seckman Hill in high, with driver and a passenger, at nine miles per hour—a real feat!

Up the Illinois Bluffs.

To make the Packard's triumph complete, Berry drove to St. Louis, crossed the Free Bridge and followed Highway No. 3 beyond Dupo to a point four and four-tenth miles beyond the Cahokia Creek bridge. Here a road turns sharply to the left, with a washed-out pitch within the first 100 feet or so, and then climbs four-tenths of a mile up to the top of the bluffs, with two very bad curves and two evil pitches. This hill, while not so well known as Seckman, has foiled numerous attempts to make it in high. The writer has been told that one car made it in high after having been stripped for the occasion.

Anyway, the Packard climbed it in high with such a rush that Berry had to shut off the power on the two worst curves, lest the car leave the road. Whenever it was possible to press down on the accelerator the car shot up to 25 to 30 miles per hour.

The car fairly soared up any grade, no matter how stiff or rough, on which it was possible to "give it its head." It held the road with noticeable steadiness at all times, squatted down on the curves remarkably well and steered and handled as easily as a medium-sized car. This was due, to a large extent, to the smoothness and power of its Bendix four-wheel brakes.

It may be said that this car runs very sweetly at 50 to 55 miles per hour, the smoothness at this speed being, at least, partially due to the fact that it is capable of 35 to 40 miles per hour faster speed. It is very easy-running and riding at 65 miles per hour, and at 73 miles seems to be going around 50, with a lot in reserve.

There would seem to be little need to use second gear with this car, but, to show what it could do in second, Berry made it climb one grade in second at 51 miles per hour and did 52.5 miles per hour in second on the level.

CHANGES NAME OF COMPANY

F. S. Wiemeyer, who purchased the Lesser Motor Top and Body Corporation has changed the name of the company to the F. S. Wiemeyer Co., Inc., of which he is president. This company also has been appointed distributer of the Monroe hydraulic shock absorber, by the manufacturing company at Monroe, Mich.

The Wiemeyer company also handles a number of accessories for automobiles. It expects to move early next month into its new building, being erected at 2625 Locust street.

SEES 8 DOMINATING FIELD ABOVE $1500

Hup President Says Market of 100,000 Awaits This Type of Multi-Cylinder Car.

Shortly after 18 months it is likely that the motor car market above $1500 will be dominated by eight-cylinder cars, says Dubois Young, president of the Hupp Motor Car Corp. "There is a market of at least 100,000 ready to adopt the straight eight as its car just as quickly as those persons realize the facts," he declares.

He sees three fundamental reasons why this change in the market is bound to occur: "First, the inexorable law of human choice; second, the continued and continual seeking of the American public for something better, and third, the history of the motor car industry."

Of the third reason he says: "The six is passing through precisely the same process as the four. It sold for years at the highest prices. Then, like the four, it began to recede from its pedestal at the topmost class to the middle class, then a little lower, and finally, within recent months to points as low in some cases as the four itself."

AUTOMOBILE BUSINESS BECOMING INVOLVED

Insight Into Problems of Dealers Given by Tate Co., Dodge Distributer.

An insight into the involved character which the business of an automobile dealer has assumed is afforded by a summary of the experience of the Tate Motor Co., Inc., Dodge distributer, in the first 10 months of this year.

"In the first 10 months of 1926," said Frank R. Tate, head of the firm," from January including October, we have delivered 1824 motor cars and trucks. Of this number 405 were settled for cash, 436 by trade and balance in cash, 450 on regular time-payment terms of part cash and the balance on terms, and 533 by trade with balance in terms."

Another interesting feature is the fact that 365 were sold to perons who had never owned or driven any make of car, 568 to persons who had never owned Dodge cars, but had owned cars of other makes.

In the 10 months, 496 Dodge cars were traded in for new Dodge cars, and 473 cars of other makes were traded in for Dodge cars, which made a 53 per cent trade in disposing of this number of cars at retail.

Total delivery of used cars by the firm to Oct. 1 was 1163. This figure, compared with the 969 cars mentioned above, would indicate a reduction and turnover of second-hand cars carried over the first of the year.

A remarkable feature for the 10 months is that 1824 deliveries were made out of 1958 orders taken, leaving a cancellation for various reasons of 134 orders. There was also included in this figure 198 used cars traded on other used cars of lesser value, which seems to be quite a growing thing in the handling of used cars.

PEERLESS MOTOR CO. MOVES

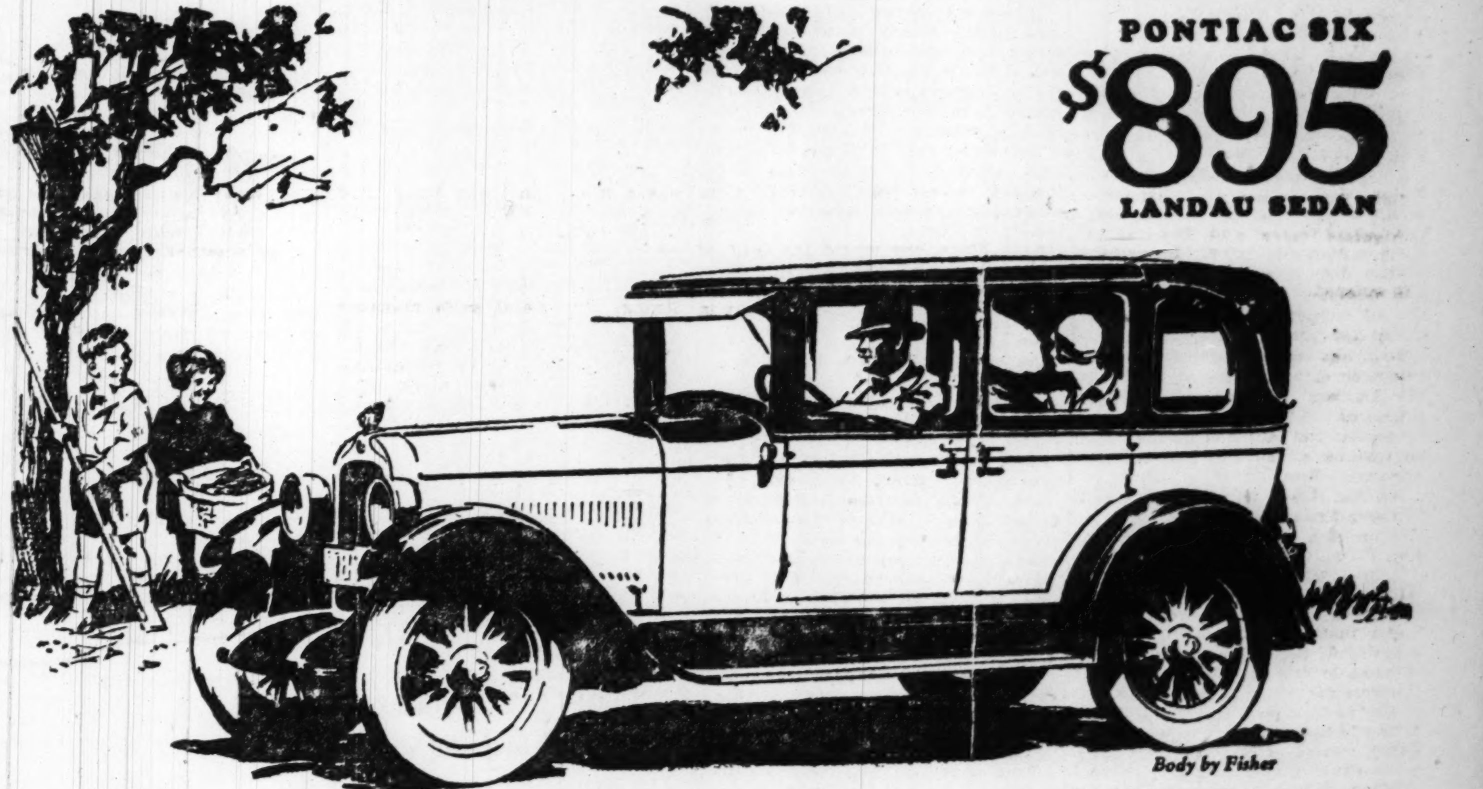
PONTIAC SIX
$895
LANDAU SEDAN



Body by Fisher

Qualities You cannot find in any other Low-Priced Six

The spectacular success of the Pontiac Six is based on a simple set of conditions:

Thanks to the type of car it is, to the years that were spent in its development, and to the gigantic resources of General Motors employed in its manufacture—

—Pontiac Six provides certain definite, desirable qualities, at a price unequalled elsewhere in the industry!

Search where you will and as long as you like—and you cannot duplicate Pontiac power, speed, stamina and comfort at Pontiac prices. Nor does any other six in its field provide the beauty, distinction and staunchness of Bodies by Fisher—for Pontiac Six is the lowest priced Six offering bodies of Fisher design and construction.

That is why the number of Pontiac Sixes you see on the road is increasing with incredible speed—

—why the number built in the past ten months more than doubles the full year record ever established by any other new make of car.

Pontiac Six Sedan or Coupe, $825. Oakland Six, companion to Pontiac Six, $1025 to $1295. All prices at Factory. Easy to pay on the liberal General Motors Time Payment Plan.

110 SERVICE MANAGERS AT MEETING OF BUREAU

R. E. Lee Warns Members to Not Handle Dealers' License Plates Carelessly.

The meeting of the Service Managers' Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at the Claridge Hotel Friday, Nov. 26, was the most largely attended ever held by the bureau. There were 110 service managers presented representing as many automobile firms.

George H. Niekamp, president of the Automotive Accessory Association and vice president of the Beck & Corbitt Iron Co., spoke on "The Sale of Automotive Accessories and Adornments for Motor Cars by Service Managers and Shop Foremen." He said that the service department was the best place about an automobile establishment for the easy sale of accessories to a motor car. He cited many in his own knowledge of service managers who had built up an important accessory business through the proper display and presentation of various items for the completion of automobiles belonging to customers who had come in for repairs. He also warned against the sale of cheap or "gyp" accessories because of their non-satisfaction to customers, stating that items for the embellishment or completion of an automobile should be sold for their utility rather than at a price.

Rbert E. Lee, manager of the bureau, warned the service managers against the careless handling of dealers' license plates. He said that he had returned, during the last ten days, nine license plates from the police department lost on the streets because attached to cars by twine strings or thin wire. He also warned the service managers against permitting cars sold to private individuals to go out of their shops with state "in transit" signs on them. These "in transit" signs, he explained, are by law, limited to the movement of automobiles from factory to dealers or warehouse to dealer or from distributor to dealer.

R. C. Pitzer of the Willis-Jones Machinery Co., Seattle, Wash., showed the proper method of reconditioning valve seats and valves, demonstrating the use of his company's precision tool.

B. L. Smith, sales manager of the Standard Oil Co., discussed the possibilities of motor car engine lubrication and told why certain oils fall down in efficiency. Then he told of the discovery by the engineers and chemists of the Standard Oil Co. of a new long life motor oil called Iso-Vis.

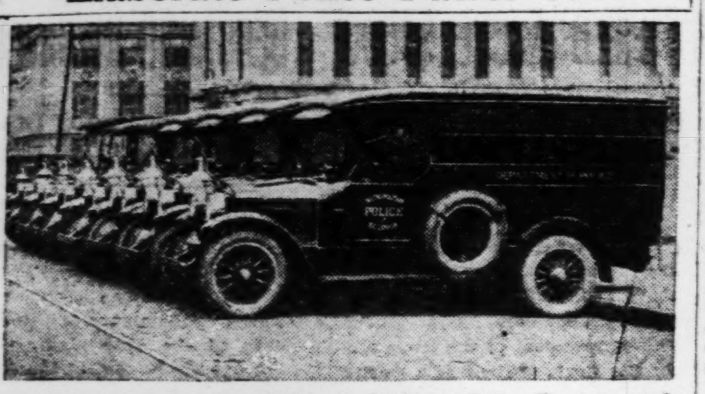
Lynn M. Shaw, assistant general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, spoke in praise of the benefits to be derived by service managers from meetings so instructive as the one he was now attending.

W. G. Miller of the Stewart-Warner Products Co., chairman of the bureau, presided at the meeting.

AUBURN EXPORT INCREASE

An increase of 400 per cent in exports of Auburn cars to Central Europe is reported by the Auburn Automobile Co. More than 1170 Auburns were sold in Europe in the first six months of this year, R. S. Wiley, head of the company's export department, states. He predicts a 500 per cent increase in Auburn exports before the end of the year.

Elaborate Police Patrol Cars



Fleet of patrol cars made for the St. Louis Police Department by the Anheuser-Busch wagon shops.

A. A. A. ROAD SCOUT LOGGING HIGHWAYS IN MISSOURI

Charles G. Gale, field representative of the National Touring Board of the American Automobile Association, is in St. Louis with one of the transcontinental scout cars of the A. A. A.

Gale, who is allotting authorized A. A. A. hotel appointments and logging roads, will use the Automobile Club of Missouri, 4228 Lindell boulevard, as headquarters for several weeks in Missouri. He will operate under the direction of Matt F. Morse, general manager of the State organization, in appointing official A. A. A. hostelries.

LOVE-JOHNSON MOTOR CO. COMPLETES NEW BUILDING

The Love-Johnson Motor Co., authorized Ford dealer at Natural Bridge and Union avenues, has completed a new building containing approximately 10,000 square feet of floor space adjoining its present location on the east. The new building fronts 70 feet on Natural Bridge avenue and across the front is a showroom in which a complete line of Ford trucks and truck bodies is being displayed. The rear of the building is used for service and for storage.

COMMERCIAL CAR BUREAU TO MEET TOMORROW NOON

A special meeting of the Commercial Car Bureau at the Claridge Hotel tomorrow noon, has been called by Manager Robert E. Lee. Clyde Erskine of the Mack-International Motor Truck Corp., is chairman of this bureau, which is a branch of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association. The meeting is to discuss repossessions and purchase and sales of used trucks.

SERVICE FIRM LEASES BUILDING

The DeVoy Chevrolet Service Co., Inc., has acquired a seven-year lease on a new building at 3739-47 Page boulevard where it opened a Chevrolet service and Duco station.

The building has an area 100x125 feet. The DeVoy company will sublet three stores at the western end of the front of the building and occupy the eastern portion of the front, which includes a 22-foot driveway and an office, waiting room and parts stock room, and the entire rear portion of the building. An L-shaped alley at the rear provides a through driveway to Evans avenue on the north. The building is fireproof, with brick and terra cotta front.

The DeVoy company has arranged with the St. Louis Chevrolet factory branch for genuine Chevrolet parts and the shop is equipped with all Chevrolet special tools. Harry C. Hill, who was service manager of the Chevrolet retail store, is service manager of the new station.

LUXURY CARS IN POLICE PATROL

Involuntary guests of the St. Louis Police Department will hereafter receive one fling of luxury. They will be transported from the point of capture to the nearest police station, thence to police court or jail, in a highly polished, leather-upholstered patrol car, equipped with cots and other emergency conveniences.

Seven de luxe patrol cars have just been put into service by the Police Department.

The patrol cars were built, except for the chassis, in the Anheuser-Busch wagon shops. The brass bells, mounted over the radiators of the patrol wagons, are surmounted with a specially designed eagle. The folding cots are concealed under the leather-upholstered seats. The bodies are mounted on G. M. C. chasses, and are built for security.

NEW CABRIOLET ROADSTER ON MOON LIGHT SIX CHASSIS

In announcing a Moon 6-60 cabriolet roadster of 110-inch wheelbase, the latest addition to its light six line and listing at $1195, the Moon Motor Car Co. emphasizes its policy of presenting a complete line of Europeanized cars.

This new model has a one-piece swinging windshield operated mechanically by a crank in the center of the cowl bar, the center mechanism being concealed in the cowl bar and front body pillars. Through use of this device, the windshield is always rigid whether in partly closed or closed position. The driver can open or close the windshield with a few turns of the handle—an advantage over the old windshield device which made it necessary for the driver to take first one hand, then the other, from the wheel when driving to tighten or loosen the wing nuts controlling the windshield.

Another feature is a sliding handle type of rear window regulator by moving the handle about six inches from left or right the rear window is opened or lowered. Both of these devices are exclusive Moon innovations, having recently been developed by its engineering department.

The 6-60 cabriolet roadster is available in Rolls Royce blue; Ocean blue and Sea Fog blue; Seattle blue, striped in straw color and Ambatto green. The hardware is in colonial style. Upholstery is in gray leather. Instrument board is walnut finished.

STUDEBAKER LOCK CONTROLS IGNITION AND STEERING WHEEL

The coincidental lock on all Studebaker automobiles, that controls both ignition and steering wheel by pressing a small lever, answers one of the problems of the Underwriters Bureau in curtailing automobile thefts.

Studebaker engineers anticipated this need more than a year ago when the coincidental lock was adopted. This is on the steering post. The owner of the car can make his vehicle thief proof by pressing a small lever and removing the key. That operation locks the steering wheel in a fixed position and shuts off the ignition. There is a separate ignition switch to allow the ignition to be turned off and on, if desired, without affecting the steering wheel lock. The lock is easy to operate, easy to find, and is practically impossible to break.

The same key that unlocks the steering wheel and ignition opens the doors of the car and controls the lock on the spare tire carrier. Thus the owner need carry only one key.

WORKING TO CLOSE LIMITS

The making of the Oldsmobile oil pump-driven gear shaft, which is one of the smallest moving, precision-made parts in the car, requires 15 separate operations in four departments. It is one and five sixty-fourths of an inch long and its diameter is .67 inch.

Bars of tested cold rolled steel are cut into sections long enough to make two finished gear shafts. Each bar is washed, then inspected for flaws. The ends are ground to a smooth finish and the bearing surfaces carbonized at 1700 degrees Farenheit. It is then air cooled for 12 hours. The smaller, or neck end, is then formed, this same operation being repeated on the opposite end of the bar.

After another inspection, the bearing ends are case hardened to a depth of one-sixteenth of an inch by heating to 1450 degrees Fahrenheit and quenching in water. This gives a glass-hard finish. Wedge-shaped holes in the ends are finished with an emery drill and the diameters carefully ground. The bar is then halved, forming two gear shafts and the severed ends ground smooth. A final inspection checks all operations.

WHIPPET RUNS 500 MILES IN 10 HOURS 23 MINUTES

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 4. — With throttle wide open, "Chick" Murray, known from coast to coast for the economy records he has made with Overland Whippets drove a stock Whippet, fully equipped even to spare tire, 500 miles in 10 hours, 23 minutes, 14 seconds in a speed and durability test at Rockingham Speedway, Salem, N. H.

Murray drove most of the race in a 50-mile gale and the Whippet's performance was declared by observers equal to that of many $15,000 racing cars. Not once did the car put into a pit for repairs or tire change. It finished the test with a perfect score.

To Attend Meeting at Toledo, O.

The entire personnel of the wholesale department of the St. Louis branch of the Willys-Overland Co. will leave here Dec. 12 to attend the annual meeting at the factory in Toledo, O., Dec. 13 to 15. Policy for 1927 will be one of the subjects to be discussed at the session.

HUDSON CLAIMS $3,000,000 SAVING YEARLY FROM SCRAP

One reason why 1927 motor car prices can be maintained at low levels is indicated in a statement by Hudson Motor Co. executives that the company's net returns from scrap savings is now running at the rate of $3,000,000 a year.

Through intensive study Hudson-Essex has gone into every possible item of scrap.

Scrap lumber is made into boxes, with the tail-ends from this operation ground into fuel. When oil has been used once it is reclaimed and put through a refiner that makes it as good, or slightly better, than when new. Scrap steel is baled and sold at highest market prices; so are all brass, aluminum and iron shavings or borings throughout the plant. If steel shavings are oily from the machines, the oil is removed from them by a centrifugal process. The oil is then refined for reuse, and the steel shavings bring a higher price because they are clean.

The rags once considered necessary for wiping machinery, etc., totaled a cost of 25 cents a car. Through a program which reduced waste at every step and provided for the laundering of all old rags, this cost has now been reduced to one cent a car.

1926 Again Chevrolet's Greatest Year

In 1925 Chevrolet astonished the automotive world by attaining an annual production never before reached by any manufacturer of gear-shift automobiles.

Yet, so spectacular has been the increase in demand for Chevrolet cars, that a new and even more brilliant record is the climax for 1926.

Thus, for two years in succession, Chevrolet has broken all its previous records and has set a new mark in automotive history.

This splendid achievement results from a steadfast adherence of the fundamental Chevrolet policy of building a car of the finest possible quality to sell at a low price.

That the vast majority of buyers now demand a car of this type—and that Chevrolet has been successful in building such a car—possessing the highest degree of smooth performance, smart appearance, and economical operation—is proved by Chevrolet's success during the year now drawing to a close. Come in and see this record-breaking car.

LE SAYS HUP PLANS NO CHANGE IN CARS

w General Sales Manager Indicates Increasingly Aggressive Campaign.

R. S. COLE.

DETROIT, Dec. 4. — Continnce of Hupmobile's aggressive npaign for more intensive develpment of its aler organizaon is announced Rufus S. Cole, w general sales nager of the pp Motor Car rporation, apnted to sucd O. C. Hutchon, who resign Oct. 28. This mpaign, gradlly growing to tensity, has reted in sales Hupmobiles to te this year aldy exceeding a considerable amount sales in e largest previous entire year in e company's history.

There will be no changes in Hupp licies toward its distributor and aler organization or toward the blic, Cole said, unless it be that ose followers of the automobile dustry discern in the company an en more aggressive attitude in e conduct of its business and les of its product.

No changes in its line of cars e contemplated, he added.

Hutchinson is retiring to devote s time to his personal affairs. He s been general sales manager ce 1919, following several years special factory sales and execve work in various parts of the untry, notably Washington and w York. He has been a Hupp cutive since 1915 when he joined the company, which at that time had an output of less than 10,000 cars a year. He has directed its sales growth to its present annual volume of 50,000—a figure that is expected to be raised by approximately 50 per cent in 1927, according to plans already under way.

His successor, Cole, first joined the Hupmobile organization in 1915, serving as sales manager for the Orient.

ANSWERING QUESTION AS TO PROFIT PER AUTO MADE BY THE FACTORIES

THE question, "What is the unit profit on various lines of automobiles?" is answered by figures just made public.

During the first three-quarters of this year the per unit profit of General Motors Corporation amounted to approximately $149. This compares with $132 for the same period of 1925.

Dodge Brothers profit per unit was $71, against $104 last year; Hudson, $39, against $86; Willys-Overland, $60, as against $68; Chrysler, $97, against $133; Nash, $132, against $148; Studebaker, $130, as against $135; Packard, $424, as against $491, and Hupp, $77, as against $102.

EIGHT MILES OF CONCRETE PLANNED FOR ROUTE NO. 53

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Dec. 4.—A contract is to be let soon for 8½ miles of nine-foot concrete, with seven-foot gravel shoulder on Highway No 53, between Poplar Bluff and Black River. This is about half of the mileage between Poplar Bluff and the Dunklin County line. This road is under construction, the grading being nearly completed. It is one of the important roads out of Poplar Bluff, leading to a wealthy farming area in Dunklin County and Northeast Arkansas.

MOBILE BAY BRIDGE TO BE FINISHED SOON

It Will Save Motorists Using Southern Routes Much Time and Money.

Much time and an expensive ferry charge will be saved for motorists using the Gulf Coast route between St. Louis and Florida, and between New Orleans and Florida, by a bridge across Mobile Bay that is scheduled for completion next month.

When bridging Mobile Bay could not longer be postponed and legal restrictions prevented prompt construction with public funds, Mobile citizens under the lead of John T. Cochrane, then president of the Chamber of Commerce, financed the construction for $2,500,000, organized a company with Cochrane as president to build the bridge and arranged with the County Board for its operation until the nominal dollar toll pays the cost, after which the bridge will be free. The Chamber of Commerce has named the structure "Cochrane Bridge."

The Old Spanish Trail officials say its opening in January assures an opened highway by spring of 1927 from Florida to California, for over $10,000,000 of other construction now in progress will be completed by then, making a total of $62,000,000 of completed road and bridge construction across the continent on this highway.

CHRYSLER "70" PHAETON CURTAINS OF NEW TYPE

One of the features of the new Chrysler 70, recently announced, is the distinctive type of curtains on the phaeton. In addition to the ordinary use of curtains with the top up, these can be used with the top down.

It is predicted that Chrysler motorists will drive more with tops down and curtains up than has been the custom with the top extended over the head, as in the ordinary type touring car.

The curtains are mounted with special door irons. It requires but a few seconds to install them. Front curtains are fitted with spring-closed doors to permit signaling the car in the rear from both sides.

When not in use, the curtains stow away in a compartment back of the rear seat

REO FACTORY MAKES PROFIT OF $4,257,919 FOR YEAR

The Reo Motor Car Co. closed its fiscal year Aug. 31 with net profit of $4,257,919, as against $5,422,182 in the preceding year. The company's balance sheet, issued in conjunction with the earnings, shows an increase in assets of $413,000.

The greatest increase in the assets was in accounts receivable. This stood at $7,637,580 on Aug. 31, as against $5,097,935 at the end of the previous August Inventories also gained, figures for the two years being $9,865,663, against $9,571,503 in 1925. Offsetting this to a degree was the reduction in cash from $7,906,386 to $5,040,292. Other items on the asset side on the balance sheet showed lesser gains. The property account rose to $7,965,065 and investments to $127,001. Deferred charges decreased materially, as did sight drafts.

In the capital structure there was no change, 2,000,000 shares of $10-par representing the entire capital obligation. Notes and accounts payable, however, fell from $2,360,610 to $1,768,157. Accrued payrolls, miscellaneous payable and deferred credits all gained slightly.

These Improvements are Important

There are two general classes of motor car improvements. Those made primarily for their effect on the public—and those made primarily for their effect upon the car.

You will perceive at once that Dodge Brothers new five-bearing crankshaft, two-unit starting and lighting system, air cleaner and other recent improvements, are the sort that represent genuine value.

They are sound and substantial betterments, producing definite and marked results, and as such they are typical of Dodge Brothers methods and product.

DISTRICT SCOUT COURT TO AWARD BADGES

Change From Present System to Be Inaugurated Early Next Year.

A radical change in the present system of the St. Louis Court of Honor, which awards merit badges and confers the honor ranks of Eagle, Life and Star Scout upon Boy Scouts of the St. Louis Council, has been authorized by the local executive council, and will be put into practice next year. Instead of the present single court for the city, presenting all awards, each of the four districts of the council, the North, South, West and Suburban, will have a district court of its own, meeting seven times a year, but awarding only the merit badges. The Honor medals and Eagle, Life and Star ranks will be given by an all-city court, held twice a year, and of which the chairman of each district court is a member.

The district courts will meet on Monday nights during the months of January, February, April, May, October, November and December, the north district holding court on the first Monday, the south on the second, the west on the third and the suburban on the fourth. A scout will normally receive his merit badge from his own district, but he may receive it from any he desires if he notifies headquarters of his wish one day in advance. The place of meeting will be left to the district courts, which are now being organized.

The city court will meet in March and September, the latter being the most important, as awards won at Camp Irondale and elsewhere throughout the summer will be presented at this court. Its personnel will remain the same as at present, with the addition of the chairmen of the district courts. There are 10 members on the court at present. The district courts will be composed of five to ten men influential in their district, but not at present connected with scouting.

The reason for the change, according to William Puffer, educational director of the council, is the enormous growth of the scout movement in St. Louis since the organization of the council five years ago. There are at present between 5000 and 6000 boys registered in the city and suburbs, all awards to whom were presented by the one court, meeting four or five times a year. The result was a wholesale presentation, with little time for ceremonies or programs of interest to the audience of parents and friends.

It was also becoming increasingly difficult to obtain a hall large enough to accommodate everyone and the distance necessary for some scouts to come to the court was a drawback.

"The district courts, by meeting in the scout's locality, and more often in a year, will do away with most of these difficulties," said Puffer. "Large crowds will not have to be handled, the boys will have a shorter distance to go, and, attracted by these shorter distances, more parents will attend. And the interest of the parents is as necessary as that of the boy."

Boy Scout Notes

Patrol Leader Herbert Miller, who has been with Troop 1, Overland, since its inception, was elected senior patrol leader last week. Jim Patterson was elected patrol leader of the Wolf patrol, and Frank Shuttleworth to lead the Moose patrol.

Troop 1, Rock Hill, is laying plans for collecting food and distributing Christmas baskets to needy families Christmas day. Although this troop has only eight boys registered, Scoutmaster Louis Gutman, who has just taken charge, reports an attendance of 20 at the last meeting.

A review of Tenderfoot tests and the playing of new games formed the program of the meeting of Troop 1, Maryland Heights, Nov. 27, under their new scoutmaster, Kenneth Lloyd.

The patrols of Troop 3, Webster Groves, are each making a relief map in concrete of an assigned area. When completed the maps will become part of a troop museum.

Scouts of Troop 6, Webster Groves, are repairing and repainting old toys to distribute to poor children Christmas. The work is being done on a patrol competition basis.

North District.

Troop 40 of the Third United Presbyterian Church held their first reorganization meeting under their new scoutmaster, Roland McCoy, last Friday evening. The troop will attempt to bring its membership up to 25 by registration time in January.

Troop 42 of the Zion Evangelical Church is gathering and repainting old toys for the Niedringhaus Mission to distribute Christmas. This is an annual good turn for the troop.

Troop 64, one of the oldest troops in the North District, reregistered last week.

Committee Chairman A. H. Foote presented Troop 72 with a silk American flag on behalf of J. C. Smith, the donor, last Wednesday evening. LeRoy Dillander's Cobra patrol put on a campfire scene at the meeting. Assistant Scoutmaster Ayres and Patrol Leader Clyde Turnbeau of the Eagle patrol hiked to the Lions' Den Reservation, a distance of 18 miles, a week ago Saturday, starting at 9 a. m. aand arriving at 2:15 p. m. Three recruits, Ben Katz, Wilson Schair and Gorman Barton, who joined the troop recently, have passed their Tenderfoot tests.

The Raccoon patrol won the December monthly inspection of Troop 92 last Wednesday evening, scoring the highest total in drilling, appearance, and first-aid contests. Field Executive Jack Wright acted as judge.

Troop 127 of the Bowman M. E. Church will hold a Parents' Night Friday evening. Moving pictures of the last scout circus will be shown, and the troop will give a scouting demonstration. Wilburt Budde is scoutmaster of 127.

Troop 130 of the Zion Evangelical Church reregistered last week for its third year of scouting. Scoutmaster Ehrhardt will again lead the troop.

Troop 151 of the Jennings Union Church will hold a Parents' Night and troop demonstration tomorrow evening. Field Executive Jack Wright will be the guest of honor.

Troop 184 of the Divoll School held its first meeting since reorganizing under Deputy Commissioner Nathan Wolff and Assistant Scoutmaster Charles Bennett last Friday evening.

South District.

Ferdon Reeves was elected Senior Patrol Leader of Troop 36 last week, and Paul Butler was elected to Junior Assistant. Joe Hedge became patrol leader of the Flying Eagles and August Krustin patrol leader of the Wolf Patrol.

Scoutmaster H. R. Turner of Troop 36 is acting as scoutmaster of Troop 100, of the Peabody School until the committee obtains a scoutmaster. Troop 100 is sponsored by the South Side Lions' Club.

William R. Vickers has resigned as scoutmaster of Troop 104, of the Carondelet Presbyterian Church, his place being taken by D. Moody. Senior Patrol Leader Robert Drury and Scout Howard Gill are to be made junior assistants. Drury took charge of the last meeting of the troop to enable the new scoutmaster to become acquainted with its program.

As a Thanksgiving good turn, the scouts of Troop 198, of the St. John's Episcopal Church, gave a banquet and entertainment to 24 boys of Troop 249, of the Sunshine Mission, 1509 Market street, Nov. 27. The entire program, including the cooking and serving of a complete meal, and the giving of songs, stunts and story-telling was the work of the host scouts.

Troop 198 makes a practice of doing a special good turn every Thanksgiving and Christmas. Several baskets of food and toys were distributed to needy families last Christmas, and plans are now under way to repeat this good turn this year.

West District.

Troop 14 is staging a membership drive to reach a quota of six full patrols. The end of the drive will be celebrated with a banquet in honor of the new boys.

Twenty-six boys from Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., conducted a model Tenderfoot investiture ceremony at the fifth meeting of the scoutmasters' training course at the Bryan Mullanphy School last Tuesday evening. Senior Patrol Leader Dave Priever was in charge, in the absence of the scoutmaster.

Troop 70, of the Jewish Community Center, took a truck trip to Nelson's farm last Thursday evening. An outdoor meeting was held around a campfire, and wieners were roasted.

A formal inspection of Troop 71, of the Maple Avenue M. E. Church, was held by the Troop Committee last week. After the inspection each patrol gave a demonstration of scout work. Refreshments were served by the wives of the committeemen. The committee is composed of the Rev. R. L. Tucker, J. W. McCarthy, W. E. Lawry, C. B. Still and E. A. Crowder.

Julius Green was elected Senior Patrol Leader of Troop 75, of the Washington School, at an election held last week and Dick Osborne became scribe. Joe Franzel, William Sours and Charles Rasbraw were elected patrol leaders. Scoutmaster Osborne has left the city and Mike Maldafsky is temporarily filling his place.

Membership in Troop 79 of the Union M. E. Church is increasing under the new scoutmaster, Charles Gorley.

Instruction in tracking and the making of casts of animal tracks was given the scouts of Troop 90 of the Temple Share Emeth by Scoutmaster Burgheim last Tuesday evening. A number of casts were made.

Five scouts and Scoutmaster L. Lorenz of Troop 106 took a 20-mile hike Thanksgiving day. Two of the boys, Tenderfeet, started work on their second class tests.

Suburban

Richard Kotovsky's Owl patrol finished first in a two-mile code message hike held by Troop 11, Webster Groves, at their last meeting. Thirteen messages, giving directions in various codes, had been placed along the route of each patrol. It was necessary to translate one before the next could be found. At the end of the hike the winners found a "treasure," in the form of "eats."

December being the reregistration month for Troop 15, Webster Groves, the scouts held a birthday party a week ago yesterday evening. Chairman E. J. Kelley of the Troupe Committee spoke to the boys. Most of the boys have already registered.

Scouts of Troops 1 and 2, Overland, acted as ushers at a presentation of flags to the Ritenour High School last Tuesday evening. The boys also showed the emergency uses of the scout neckerchief and the uses of field signals, before an audience from the five schools of the district.

GIRL SCOUTS TO SING CAROLS AT DOLL SHOW

Exhibit at Scruggs' Will Include Nearly 1000 Dolls Dressed by Members.

A Christmas note will be given the atmosphere of the Doll Show, to be held by St. Louis Girl Scouts in the music room of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, Wednesday to Saturday of this week, by the singing of Christmas carols. Girl Scouts will sing every afternoon except Thursday, when the Hosmer Hall Glee Club will give two recitals, one at 1 o'clock in the main dining room of the store, and the other at 1:30 o'clock in the music room. The performance of the Glee Club was volunteered as a Christmas service. The singers will be either in the Girl Scout uniform or in costumes loaned by the Christmas Carol Association.

The Doll Show is the most elaborate annual activity of the St. Louis Girl Scouts. Nearly 1000 dolls will be dressed by 50 troops, each doll by one girl, and placed in troop exhibits representing a certain scene. The exhibits will be judged, and a cup awarded to the winning troop. After the show the dolls are divided among 20 charitable organizations, including the Children's Aid Society, the City Hospital, the Provident Association, and different orphans' homes, who distribute the dolls at Christmas to children under their care. Distribution is accomplished individually, each doll being selected for a certain child who has expressed her desire for that particular kind.

The show will close Saturday afternoon with a Girl Scout jubilee beginning at 2:45 o'clock. A Girl Scout chorus of 100 will sing carols, Troop 24 will dance a gavotte and Troop 39 will give an Italian folk dance. The tumbling act given by Troop 35 at the Girl Scouts festival last spring will be repeated, with additions. The final event will be the presenting of the loving cup by Mrs. Carroll Hill, chairman of the Doll Show, to the winning troop.

Mrs. Hill will also act as hostess for the show on Wednesday and Friday. Miss Elizabeth Tupper will be hostess Thursday, and Mrs. Guy Oliver Saturday.

Girl Scout Notes

Fifteen girls of Troop 4 spent the day after Thanksgiving dressing dolls for the Doll Show to be held by the St. Louis Council next week. They were helped by Mrs. Ehrenfest, the troop "grandmother," and Mrs. Muehlenbrock, captain of Troop 10. Troop 4, although one of the youngest troops in the city, now has 19 members, divided into four patrols, the Owls, Bluebirds, Eagles and Butterflies. Dorsetta Green, Lucille Kirk, Iola Halbach and Lucetta Drosten are the patrol leaders. Lillian Byrd is scribe.

The girls of Coenia Troop 56 are practising a play, "Sunbonnets," that they will give at the City Infirmary, Christmas week. The troop will enter an exhibit in the Doll Show, the girls meeting at Gertrude Reiser's house last Wednesday evening to dress the dolls. A hike was also planned at the meeting.

As a monthly troop good turn, the girls of Troop 10 will entertain all orphans from the Protestant Orphans' Home who have had a birthday in November, today. An entertainment and dinner, prepared by the girls, will be given. The troop gave a play, "How St. John Came to Bencer's School," Nov. 10, before an audience of 400. The receipts were nearly $85. The troop will enter 30 dolls in the Doll Show.

Troop 10 now has three patrols, the Water Bugs, under Ella Michael; Margaret Fischer's Owls, and Mildred Klick's Beavers. Elzora Gray, Evelyn and Ethel Reither, Aline Leutert and Mildred Klick have been promoted to Junior Leaders. Elzora Gray is to be married soon. She will be the first girl to leave Troop 10 for that reason.

SPECIAL AIRPLANE NEEDED FOR FLYING IN THE TROPICS

Hans H. Hoyte, Pilot of New Guinea Exposition, Made Statement Before His Death.

By the Associaed Press.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 4.—A special flying machine will have to be devised for exploring wild tropical countries, said Hans H. Hoyte, pilot of Prof. Mathew Stirling's New Guinea expedition, in an interview published in the Java Bode of Batavia, on the eve of his sailing for Europe.

Hoyte, a Dane by birth, was on his way to his family home at Lundby, Denmark, but was stricken with typhoid fever en route and died at Alexandria, Egypt. He had been employed for a number of years with the Jackey Aircraft Co. of Chicago.

Violent changes in climatic conditions such as experienced in New Giunea, Hoyte said, were fatal to any ordinary plane, although his machine had done great service on 30 flights, transporting men and material in sometimes very trying circumstances. Finally, he had to leave it behind at one of the bases, with its floats smashed.

10,000,000 British Women Voters.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The new register of voters to be published shortly will show a further increase of 35,000 in the number of women voters. This will bring their total to about 10,000,000, as against 13,000,000 men voters. The Conservative party has made plans to canvass this increased number of women voters through women speakers and workers. These will be coached in a special series of political correspondence The courses will include jects as empire develop cialism, trade unionism, and the British Constitution

Hupmobile has Swept to the Top of the Eight Market

Today the eight is the most wanted and the most talked about type of car in America.

This significant change — this swing away from the six of higher price—had its beginning two years ago, with the coming of the Hupmobile Eight.

For Hupmobile, as an Eight, was and is more than previous eights had been, and more than the six—by reason of its different principle—can hope to be.

To the smoothness and ease of the eight, Hupmobile added the super smoothness and ease of its own perfected straight-eight.

Hupmobile gave the eight an economy it had never known before—a generosity of gas mileage that surpassed even many sixes.

Hupmobile, with engineering and manufacturing sanity, built simplicity where had been complication before.

Hupmobile supplied an agility of getaway, a swift response to the throttle in any gear, that instantly makes it dear to the heart of the motoring veteran.

Hupmobile gave its smoothness not only to the normal driving speeds, but to all its speeds, up through the highest.

These things Hupmobile did, and is doing, and the motor car market responded with a rush.

It quickly swept Hupmobile into place as the largest-selling straight-eight in the world; and Hupmobile found itself at the front of the nation's third momentous motoring evolution.

First, the four supplanted the early one-cylinder and two-cylinder types. Then, the six came into wide favor. Now, the process is repeating itself with the Hupmobile Eight.

To the individual buyer, these things are paramount as pointing his next motor car investment.

To the motoring public as a whole, they mean that Hupmobile has overthrown the last barrier that separated them from the ultimate type of motoring enjoyment and satisfaction—the eight.

Pluto works because it washes—it washes because it is a water.

This marvelous water physic gives you action usually in 30 minutes to 2 hours. It contains no drugs, therefore can leave no dangerous drug deposits in its wake.

Give yourself just one internal bath with Pluto Water and nothing less than a water physic will ever interest you again. All druggists sell the genuine Pluto Water from French Lick Springs. Try a bottle. Physicians prescribe it.

This handy reference directory idea, with all offers carefully grouped and classified, has still further popularized the Want Ads with Post-Dispatch readers. The growth in numbers has made the Post-Dispatch Opportunity Directories bigger and better from year to year.

Many thousand St. Louisans regularly use Post-Dispatch "Wants" to fill their needs.

When Mrs. B— needs an added income she tidies the spare room and "rents it to a young man attending school," using a Post-Dispatch want ad to find the young man.

When Mrs. C— decides "to do plain or fancy sewing" to give her the additional finances needed to educate her boy, she makes her desires known through a want ad and leaves it with her druggist to be telephoned to the Post-Dispatch—or if more convenient phones it direct to the Post-Dispatch office.

Each of the offers coming to the Post-Dispatch is carefully indexed and with thousands of others are classified and appear in the proper columns. One under "Rooms For Rent—South," the other under "Dressmaking and Millinery."

So, too, the business men seek help or capital, buy, sell, and promote profitable investments.

More than two hundred classifications and subclasses appear in the Post-Dispatch Sunday classified sections. Post-Dispatch Wants are, and for years have been, serving both readers and advertisers "in more than a hundred ways."

The Post-Dispatch Places Classified Offers in approximately 200,000 St. Louis Homes every day. No other St. Louis Newspaper can give this service.

A new beauty still further above the commonplace

In its alluring smartness and beauty the new, finer Chrysler "70" forecasts the new vogue in motoring design even more definitely than the first Chrysler did three years ago.

Newer, more exquisitely graceful bodies—newer, more distinctive silhouette with military front and cadet visor (see illustration)—newer luxury of comfort—newer, greater riding ease—newer richness of upholstery—newer, finer hardware—newer refinements in controls and lighting—newer, more attractive color blendings far in advance of current harmonies.

And with this newer appearance is the famous chassis—unchanged save for valuable refinements—whose basic performance, dependability and long life have been proved for three years by hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic owners.

DAMROSCH TILTS WITH EAN NATHAN ON RADIO

ymphony Director, Who Will ecture on "Siegfried" From KSD, Answers Criticism.

"I have found that most persons ho object to radio don't take me to listen to worth-while broadasts," said Walter Damrosch, hose lecture-recital on Wagner's pera, "Siegfried," will be the feaure of next Saturday night's broadasting from KSD. He was comenting on published criticisms by eorge Jean Nathan of radio and roadcasting.

"Take a cheap radio set and une in on a second-rate station—nd even the most ardent advocate f radio admits that there are lenty of these—and the result may ot be music," Damrosch continued. "But neither is the village and music, and it's as fair to judge adio broadcasts with second-rate aterial as it is to judge anything ith second-rate material.

"George Jean Nathan's real business is to find something in America o object to, and the under-financed adio station coming into a home hrough a poor receiver is certain something to pick on.

"Now, liking music is largely atter of habit. At our concerts n New York we have some regular atrons who in the beginning did t care for symphonies or symonic music. They came to conerts once or twice because their ives or sisters or friends brought hem. But after becoming familiar ith some of the works of the reat masters a real appreciation as aroused. Then again, you ust remember, there are many eople with an inherent love for mphonic music that could not ve this satisfied by any other ans than through the radio.

"Many of those who wrote to me ollowing my first Balkite Hour oncert said that they had not an pportunity to hear such music for any years. There are only 12 arge symphony orchestras for our opulation of over 100,000,000. Naturally, the vast majority of our eople cannot go to the concert alls where these play. Broadasting of symphonic music will hange all this. It will not only ake the people like it, but will o bring it within their means.

Noted Soprano On K S D Tonight

Mabel Garrison Shares Honors in the Atwater Kent Hour With Eminent Hungarian Pianist.

MABEL GARRISON

ERNST VON DOHNANYI

The first Atwater Kent hour to be broadcast in December will bring to the audience of KSD the voice of Mabel Garrison, described as "one of the loveliest lyric sopranos before the public," and the art of Ernest von Dahnanyi, eminent Hungarian pianist, composer and conductor. The Atwater Kent Orchestra under the leadership of Louis Edlin will participate in this hour's Sunday evening radio program which goes on the air at 8:15 tonight.

Miss Garrison comes from Baltimore where she first studied the piano. Later she was graduated from the Peabody Conservatory of Music as one of the two vocal students ever given diplomas by that institution. Her career since has been a succession of triumphs. Her seven years as coloratura soprano with the Metro olitan Opera Company were but a reparation for her success' concert tours. So great is the demand for Miss Garrison in oratorio and recital that she stands today as one of the foremost American sopranos devoting herself entirely to concert work.

Her partner in this Atwater Kent Radio Hour, Ernst von Dohnanyi, was born in Pressburg, Hungary, in 1877, and like many other musical celebrities had his first musical instruction from his father. Carl Forstner, organist of the Pressburg Cathedral, was his first instructor in piano and in 1894 Dohnanyi entered the Royal Hungarian Academy of Music in Petrograd, where he first made his mark as a composer. At the age of 20 he won the King's prize with his "Symphony in F." Despite his auspicious start as a composer, Dohnanyi continued his pianistic work, studying with Eugene d'Albert. October 1, 1897, he made a concert debut in Berlin. From that day Dohnanyi has been conceded a place among the virtuosi. He is an artist of artistic restlessness and seems never to rest a moment from his composing and work at the piano.

The program this evening will be as follows:

a. "Scene and Gavotte" from "Manon" .... Massenet
b. "Je Dis que Rien Ne M'epouvante" from "Carmen"......Bizet
Mabel Garrison and Atwater Kent Orchestra.
a. Marche Humoresque, Opus 17, No. 1 ....Dohnanyi

FOLK SONGS OF NORWAY BY VIKINGS TUESDAY EVENING

Folk songs of Norway will be heard during the half-hour program of The Vikings to be broadcast Tuesday evening from KSD.

The program will be participated in by Greta Torpadie, coloratura soprano, who won such favor in the recent "Jinny Lind" program broadcast by The Vikings. Miss Torpadie has impersonated Jenny Lind on several occasions. The program will also bring Samuel Ljungkvist, dramatic tenor, before the microphone in The Vikings program for the first time.

Ljungkvist entered the Royal Academy of Music and the Royal Opera School at Stockholm, Sweden. He was graduated from this Academy in 1913 and made his first appearance on the stage of the Royal Opera of Stockholm as "Don Juan" in "Carmen."

In April, 1914, Ljungkvist sang the role of "Pinkerton" in "Madam Butterfly" at five gala programs in Finland. He arrived in New York in 1916, and has been in demand in the concert field.

KDKA OPERETTA TUESDAY

The first of a series of operattas and operas from KSD will be given at 8 p. m. Tuesday, Dec. 7, when "In Fairyland" and a group of German and French songs will be broadcast. Subsequently there will be "Il Trovatore," "Cinderella," "Aida," "Chimes of Normandy," "La Giaconda," "Morning of the Year," "Bohemian Girl," "The Persian Garden," "Faust," "Parquerette," "The Magic Violin," "Martha," "The Philosopher and the Lady" and others.

OPERA 'LAKME' FROM KSD TOMORROW NIGHT

Soloists of New York Company, Including Genia Zielinska, to Be Heard.

The grand opera, "Lakme," will be presented in tabloid form under direction of Cesare Sodero at 9 o'clock tomorrow evening, through KSD. Soloists of the WEAF Grand Opera company to be heard will include: Lakme, Genia Zielinska, soprano; Mallika, Devora Nadworney, contralto; Gerald, Giuseppi di Benedetta, tenor; Frederic, Carl Rollins, baritone; Nilakantha, Nino Ruisi, basso.

"Lakme," which was composed by Leo Delibes, consists of three acts. It was first produced in Paris on April 14, 1843. It has had notable revivals in late years, 1916 at the Metropolitan Opera and in 1917 by the Chicago Civic Opera company with Galli-Curci as the soloist. All of the scenes of the opera are laid in India.

The first act depicts a garden in India and a party of English officers breaking through the fence and making their way into the beautiful garden. One of these officers named Gerald is charmed by the spot and will not leave it despite the warnings of his brother officers that the spot is dangerous. While in the garden he sees the maiden Lakme, who upon seeing him falls in love. Knowing that her father would be exceedingly angry and would probably kill the officer if he found him in the garden she bids him flee before her father discovers him.

The second act shows an Indian street scene, in which Lakme is bidden to sing the song which the soldier heard in the garden, for her father has found out about his presence therein, in order that the stranger again hearing the song will reveal himself should he be at the fair. Lakme therefore sings the famous "Bell Song" but Gerald is not present. Later she again sings the song, which Gerald hears and reveals himself, upon which Nilakantha, Lakme's father, stabs him and flees.

Although it appears at the outset that Gerald had been killed, Lakme discovers that he was not fatally wounded and has him removed to a small cottage in an Indian forest where she nurses him to health. While at this cottage, Frederic, a brother soldier, informs Gerald that the army is being called to curb a native insurrection. Therefore Gerald prepares to leave Lakme and responds to the call of duty. Realizing that her hold over Gerald is broken, Lakme takes poison and dies in his arms.

Aerial Supports.

The halyards used to support the aerial should not be made of rope because this material shrinks when wet and puts a great strain on the aerial wires or supports, sometimes enough to break either of them. If the halyards are adjusted so they will not put a strain on the supports when they shrink, they will be too slack in dry weather and allow the aerial to wobble.

New York to London Radio Beam System Is Planned

Establishing One to Send Commercial and Press Messages, Said to Be Matter of Few Weeks.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Establishment of the Marconi beam system of transmission of wireless commercial and press messages between London and New York is a matter of weeks. That was the opinion today of radio engineers who have just completed a study of the system as operated at present between London and Montreal.

What effect it will have on cable and ordinary wireless transmission is problematical. Some engineers say it will mean simply an increase in the number of messages without detriment to present systems, just as was the case with airplane mail service. Other engineers believe it will result in lower rates. At any rate the cable and wireless companies are proceeding with programs of expansion of present systems.

Beam System Explained.

The Marconi beam system has been in operation between London and Montreal for one month. It has shown a speed of 200 words a minute without possibility of human error in transmission sent a distance of 3000 miles and recorded there in dots and dashes on an endless tape, from which it is transferred to message blanks as fast as relays of typewriters will permit.

In the month's test there has not been an hour when the system has not functioned perfectly, and in the last four weeks the volume of messages has doubled.

The beam system, still a mystery to many, is easily explained. By ordinary methods of wireless broadcasting, electrical oscillations are generated in an aerial system from which energy is radiated in the form of electrical waves which spread simultaneously in all directions. The energy of each wave or series of waves is thus dispersed more widely the further each wave travels, from its source. It is for this reason that reception of programs from distant stations on an ordinary receiving set is weaker than from nearby stations.

Energy Is Concentrated.

Through the instruments used in beam transmission, instead of the energy being distributed uniformly through the 360 degrees of a circle, it is concentrated into an angle of about 15 degrees by use of an electrical reflector, so that the distant receiving station located on the arc of that angle receives the signals 24 times more plainly than under the broadcast system. Thus a 10-kilowatt station projecting its radiation in a 15-degree angle becomes to all intents the equivalent of a 240-kilowatt station broadcasting in all directions.

There is also a similar reflector system at the receiving end by which the advancing wave front can be concentrated on the receiver so that with a 15-degree reflector at either end the energy is multiplied 576 times from what would be received in the ordinary way. Outside the 15-degree radius the signals cannot be heard at all, so practical privacy is obtained.

Preliminary tests between London and Capetown have proved satisfactory and this service will be in operation shortly to be followed by Canadian-Australian service early in 1927. All of these services are operated in connection with the British postoffice but the British Marconi Co. is now preparing to establish a similar system to New York. The English transmitting and receiving station is already under construction.

NEW AMPLION CONE SPEAKER DIFFERENT IN CONSTRUCTION

Among the talked-of loud speakers are the Amplion cone and the Amplion Patrician.

The Amplion cone speaker is wholly different from other speakers in design and construction. A precision of sound values—a mellow clarity—an entire absence of blurring and distortion or "chattering" are said to characterize it. It is exceptionally responsive to the weakest signals and reproduces the entire vocal and musical range with astonishing purity, it is said, and also takes any volume.

The Amplion Patrician is a richly carved cabinet model of the air column type of loud speaker. It is nondirectional and has that much desired, softly diffused mellowness of reproduction akin to that from a fine old violin.

HOW TO REPAIR CONE SPEAKER

Apply a small daub of rubber cement around the needle shaft of the cone speaker if it has developed a buzz or rattle that is especially noticeable on fairly weak volume. Use the kind of cement that remains semi-flexible after drying thoroughly, and place it at the point of connection of the needle shaft with the cone tip. On the front side, back off the small nut on the shaft end enough to allow the cement to coat its surface, and dry before tightening the nut, forming thus a rubber washer.

After tightening the nut, apply one more coating of cement over the nut and shaft end. Do not tighten the nut more than necessary, otherwise it is possible to cut through the first coating.

Acme K-1 Enclosed Double Free Edge Cone Speaker, (shown above). Diameter of Cone, 14 ins. Tan metal case. Price: $25.00

Acme K-3 Enclosed Single Free Edge Cone Speaker. Diameter of Cone, 11 ins. Green bronze metal case. Price: $18.50

Acme Enclosed Free Edge Cones and Acme Reproducing Units, (Designed for use exclusively with the free edge cone) eliminate resonance and preserve the tones, pure, round and clear. A fixed edge cone, to produce the same results, would have to be three times the diameter, too clumsy for your living-room. High notes are reproduced toward the center of the cone; low notes, toward the edge. The laws of vibration make it possible to produce low notes with a small cone, provided the edge is free and enclosed, and provided the reproducing unit is especially designed for use with a free edge cone.

Write us for circular describing full line of Acme products.

"We were never before so thrilled by radio reproduction!"

"...that's remarkable: of all the radio we've ever heard, we've never been so thrilled as today, when, with our new Acme Speaker, which daddy got us, we could plainly hear every instrument that was playing in the orchestra..."

The wonderful new Acme Loud Speaker successfully reproduces voices and music in your own home as clearly as they were originally created in the broadcasting studio. It reproduces the voice of the singer in all its thrilling, tender beauty. It brings out the different personality in each voice, so that you can tell one voice from another. It recreates orchestral music so clearly that you can hear each instrument playing. It reproduces low notes and tones as clearly as high notes and tones. You hear the bass and treble, harmony and melody.

All this was not done in a moment, Acme engineers worked five years and made 256 experimental speakers, before they arrived at the new Acme Enclosed Free Edge Cone and Acme Reproducing Unit, which together are responsible for this great increase in radio enjoyment.

NOTABLE PROGRAM ON WJZ AT 9:15 TONIGHT

Isa Kremer, Famous Singer, and Orchestra in Selections With Love Motif.

Isa Kremer, international balladist, regarded by many as one of the greatest singers of ballads and folk songs, will be the featured soloist of the concert to be broadcast by WJZ, WRC, WGY, WBZ and KDKA at 9:15 tonight. This concert may be tuned in on immediately after the Atwater Kent Hour on KSD. This will close a series of 10 concerts. A new series will start Dec. 12.

Isa Kremer was born in Russia and when 17 went to Italy, where she studied in Milan. Her first ambition was to enter the operatic field so she made her debut as Mimi in "La Boheme." She was called back to Russia and there sang the title role in "Yolanda," Tatiana in "Eugene Onegin"; Martha in the "Czar's Bride"; "Madame Butterfly," "Manon." In 1916 she abandoned opera for the concert field and made her debut as a concert artist in Moscow. In 1919, she left Russia, singing in many European capitals, and in October 1922, landed in America. Later that month, she made her first American appearance in Carnegie Hall, and was enthusiastically received. This was followed by an extensive tour of the United States.

Supporting Isa Kremer, an orchestra will play a complete concert of selections inspired by love—musical tales of famous love affairs, lovers serenades and love songs of all nations. One of the selections to be played in this concert will be the orchestral prelude to Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde," the musical drama of the two lovers, who were so much in love with each other that even death could not part their two souls for, so legend tells, from out their graves grew entwined an ivy and vine.

One of the outstanding features of the orchestral part of this concert will be the rendition of famous love songs from all nations, the famous "La Paloma" of old Mexico, 'Don Juan Minuet," which is Germany's musical interpretation of love, and 'Black Eyes," which, notwithstanding the title, is Russia's greatest love lyric. America has not yet found its outstanding love tune, so will be omitted. Another expression of love will be found in the rendition of the Indian Love Lyrics. Closing the program, the orchestra pr Leest, "Carmen" will be played. Meis- from

Establishing One to Send Commercial and Press Messages, Said to Be Matter of Few Weeks.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Establishment of the Marconi beam system of transmission of wireless commercial and press messages between London and New York is a matter of weeks. That was the opinion today of radio engineers who have just completed a study of the system as operated at present between London and Montreal.

What effect it will have on cable and ordinary wireless transmission is problematical. Some engineers say it will mean simply an increase in the number of messages without detriment to present systems, just as was the case with airplane mail service. Other engineers believe it will result in lower rates. At any rate the cable and wireless companies are proceeding with programs of expa sion of present systems.

Beam System Explaine

The Marconi beam sy been in operation betwe and Montreal for one has shown a speed of 200 words a minute without possibility of human error in transmission sent a distance of 3000 miles and recorded there in dots and dashes on an endless tape, from which it transferred to message blanks fast as relays of typewriter permit.

they learned that he had traveled all over the United States with the H. W. Savage Company, conducting the production of Puccini's "The Girl of the Golden West." For four years he was conductor of the well known Aborn English Opera Company, and was associated for a time with David Wark Griffith, taking charge of all musical features in connection with films Griffith produced. In addition, he served as musical director in Edison recording laboratories for 14 years.

His most recent success before joining WEAF was his direction of the open air performance of "Aida" and "Carmen" given at the Polo Grounds in New York City, the home of the New York Giants.

Must Condense the Operas.

The maestro is the composer of two grand operas in Italian, has served as the coach for leading singers for many years and was president of the Musical League of New York at the same time that the late Enrico Caruso was its honorary president. He first became associated with WEAF in 1925.

Associated with the program department at WEAF is the musical library through which most of the musical arrangements for the various presentations on WEAF'S programs are secured. In the case of the tabloid grand operas, it is the duty of those in the musical library to rent the various vocal and instrumental scores of grand operas from commercial musical libraries and in turn place them at the disposal of Sodero. The maestro informs the program department of their value for radio presentation in tabloid form and thus they are announced for a future Monday evening's program.

This procedure usually is started a month in advance of its radio performance as WEAF endeavors to "book" programs in detail for that period, thus enabling KSD and the other "network" stations and in turn, newspapers of the country to know of future broadcasting programs.

When the presentation is finally "booked" for radio the actual work begins. Here is where the remarkable musicianship of Sodero goes into action. It is he who must condense an operatic score, usually consuming three hours for a stage performance, to 55 minutes for presentation before the microphone, yet retain the most important musical "high spots" without spoiling the trend of the story.

With his musical ability and vast knowledge gained as a conductor he has proved that this can be done, as is evidenced in the success of the weekly grand operas which have been presented through KSD.

Interesting, from a musical standpoint, is Sodero's ability to read an operatic score, which often enables him to detect errors in the various instrumental scores which have been supplied for tabloid preparation which, if played before an average musician, would perhaps be overlooked.

"Dress Rehearsal."

Upon completion of the "cutting" of vocal and instrumental scores of a grand opera, rehearsal is called first, for the soloists, then for the orchestra of 16 musicians. These rehearsals are conducted in the "musicians' room" at WEAF—one of a suite of rooms on the fourth floor of the Telephone and Telegraph Building at 195 Broadway, New York, of which the broadcasting studios as well as the executive offices of WEAF are a part.

The cutting" of a grand opera score, together with that of a light opera, is usually done by the maestro two weeks prior to their radio presentation, and the vocal and instrumental rehearsals are held one week before.

This brings us to the day for broadcasting. As the weekly broadcasting of the tabloid grand operas takes place each Monday evening from 10 to 11 o'clock in New York (9 to 10 o'clock in St. Louis) Sodero calls for "dress rehearsal" at noon each Monday. While the term "dress" is used throughout the theatrical and musical world for final costumed rehearsal, the members of the WEAF Grand Opera Co. do not appear in costume. It might be said that, perhaps, this is the only grand opera company in the world singing regularly for an audience without having to appear in costume.

When all is in readiness for the dress rehearsal, the entire WEAF Grand Opera Company assembles in Studio "A"—the larger of WEAF'S three studios—and, with the maestro on the director's platform starts work with a stopwatch. The entire presentation minus announcements, is rehearsed from beginning to end and it is seldom that the stop-watch does not read "55 minutes" upon completion of the rehearsal. This is the time allotted to Sodero for his musical presentation of the tabloid grand opera and he always keeps within this time limit. As a matter of fact many of his admirers set their watches and clocks on the final chord of the grand opera presentations.

Another interesting phase in presentation of the tabloid operas from KSD is from the announcing standpoint. In both the grand and light opera presentations 5 minutes are allotted as the time to be consumed by the announcer in relating the story of the opera in tabloid form. Of course, the story is given in parts, as each act is presented, nevertheless it demands careful preparation so as to give the audience a word picture of the story.

This work is usually done by Arnold Morgan, one of WEAF'S announcers.

'B' BATTERY ELIMINATOR SAID TO WORK NOISELE

One of this year's radio stones is the rapid advance perfection in "B" battery nators. Their convenience and steadiness of their current which does away with the ty of replacement of "B" units among the principal points of favor.

The Majestic eliminator, product of the Grigsby, Grunow Hinds Co., has just been sub to tests by Frank D. Pearne nical radio editor of the and Examiner, Chicago, who this to say about it:

"In regard to the 'B' eliminator submitted for ments, I will say that I have several different tests with so far I have not found which it would not handle nish plenty of power with lutely noiseless operation.

"The first test was made eight-tube superheterodyne ing the standard 199 tubes performance was remarkable was left on this set for and it did not vary in any was then connected on a Browning-Drake circuit for a where it gave equal Several other sets were then on all of which it operated in a isfactory manner.

"I had some doubts as to er it would have sufficient power operate an eight-tube super, eight of the standard UV- tubes, but was surprised to find it supplied plenty of current the operation was noiseless."

There no blare, no distortion; instead, speaker took plenty of volume a powerful set, performed equ well with volume cut to the lowe audible point, and passed the de notes as well as the higest tones soprano and piccolo.

European broadcasters are preparing to begin the new year under almost wholly re-organized onditions, according to reports reived by the Department of Commerce.

Particularly will the changes be t in Great Britain, where the overnment after sub-letting the adio broadcasting privileges to private interests for the last four ears, will assume full control of ll transmitting and will directly nter into the business of entertaining.

Elsewhere in Europe numerous lterations in the broadcasting orld will be instituted. Through e international agreements eached last summer at a meeting f the radio union at Berne, a new ystem of wave length allocation ill be inaugurated which is expected to diminish, if not altogether eliminate, interference between roadcast stations.

Wave Lengths Distributed.

Having only about half the number of stations in Europe as are ound in the United States the nion has distributed the wave engths available for broadcasting the several countries and further re-allocations have been made y the individual governments.

The new scheme is expected to e in full operation shortly after e first of the year.

All of the stations in England, Wales and Scotland, will come under the direction of the British overnment the first of the year. he Irish plants will continue separately under control of the Free te government.

Broadcasting in England is a ery profitable institution, for the overnment and for the radio service, according to K. L. Allarlyce rnott, managing director of reed-Eisemann Radio, Great ritain, Ltd.

An unlimited amount of money ay be received by the new British Broadcasting Corp., under the w government license which sets that organization for a period f 10 years.

'B' BATTERY ELIMINATOR SAID TO WORK NOISELESSLY

One of this year's radio milestones is the rapid advance toward perfection in "B" battery eliminators. Their convenience and the steadiness of their current supply, which does away with the necessity of replacement of "B" units, are among the principal points of their favor.

The Majestic eliminator, the product of the Grigsby, Grunow & Hinds Co., has just been submitted to tests by Frank D. Pearne, technical radio editor of the Herald and Examiner, Chicago, who has this to say about it:

"In regard to the 'B' battery eliminator submitted for experiments, I will say that I have made several different tests with it and so far I have not found any set which it would not handle and furnish plenty of power with absolutely noiseless operation.

"The first test was made with an eight-tube superheterodyne set using the standard 199 tubes. The performance was remarkable. It was left on this set for several days and it did not vary in any way. It was then connected on a Browning-Drake circuit for a few days, where it gave equal satisfaction. Several other sets were then tested, on all of which it operated in a satisfactory manner.

"I had some doubts as to whether it would have sufficient power to operate an eight-tube super, using eight of the standard UV-201-A tubes, but was surprised to find that it supplied plenty of current and the operation was noiseless."

BEAUTY OF TONE HEARD FROM ORCHESTRION LOUD SPEAKER

Exceptional clarity and beauty of tone characterizes the all-wood Orchestrion loud speaker, one of which was tested in St. Louis the other night throughout the Capitol Theater program from KSD. There was no blare, no distortion; instead, this speaker took plenty of volume from a powerful set, performed equally well with volume cut to the lowest audible point, and passed the deep notes as well as the higest tones of soprano and piccolo.

This speaker is of the horn type, with tone arm made of bent wood—spruce, pine or maple—and finished in stippled mahogany. Its amplifying bell is made of 24 alternate sections of walnut and mahogany, in natural wood finish, and the outer edge of the bell is bound in black and white pyralin inlay effect.

The Orchestrion also is made in console and pedestal speaker types.

Points on Selecting Tube Sockets.

Tube sockets should be made of the best of insulation materials and the springs should be so constructed and of such material that proper contact will be maintained at all times with the tube prongs.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT TO DO AIR ENTERTAINING

Will Take Control of Programs From Private Broadcasters on Jan. 1.

European broadcasters are preparing to begin the new year under almost wholly re-organized conditions, according to reports received by the Department of Commerce.

Particularly will the changes be felt in Great Britain, where the Government after sub-letting the radio broadcasting privileges to private interests for the last four years, will assume full control of transmitting and will directly enter into the business of entertaining.

Elsewhere in Europe numerous alterations in the broadcasting world will be instituted. Through the international agreements reached last summer at a meeting of the radio union at Berne, a new system of wave length allocation will be inaugurated which is expected to diminish, if not altogether eliminate, interference between broadcast stations.

Wave Lengths Distributed.

Having only about half the number of stations in Europe as are found in the United States the union has distributed the wave lengths available for broadcasting to the several countries and further re-allocations have been made by the individual governments.

The new scheme is expected to be in full operation shortly after the first of the year.

All of the stations in England, Wales and Scotland, will come under the direction of the British Government the first of the year. The Irish plants will continue separately under control of the Free State government.

Broadcasting in England is a very profitable institution, for the Government and for the radio service, according to K. L. Allardyce Arnott, managing director of Freed-Eisemann Radio, Great Britain, Ltd.

An unlimited amount of money may be received by the new British Broadcasting Corp., under the new government license which sets up that organization for a period of 10 years.

Listeners Pay License Fee.

Nearly $3,750,000 is available for broadcasting in 1927, on the basis of 2,097,000 licensed listeners, each paying a fee of ten shillings annually. For every new license, six shillings one and a half pence go for programs and general expenses.

The government—in this case, the Post Office—will receive about $1,125,000. It costs about $500,000 to issue the licenses, leaving a fine net profit. The Post Office receives one shilling, three pence on each license. Of the remaining eight shillings, nine pence, the new British Broadcasting Corporation will receive: 90 per cent, or seven shillings ten and a half pence, out of each of the first million license fees; 80 per cent, or seven shillings, out of each of the second million license fees; 70 per cent, or six shillings one and a half pence out of each of the third million license fees; 60 per cent, or five shillings three pence, out of every license fee after the three million limit has been reached. Hitherto not more than £500,000 might go to the British Broadcasting Corp. in any one year, irrespective of the number of licenses issued. The effect of the new scale will be an increase of 50 per cent in the amount available for the broadcasting service.

The corporation must broadcast "any matter" which any Government may require. The term in the old license was 'any communiques weather reports, or notices." The new expression definitely affords a loop-hole for propaganda.

The five governors of the corporation hold office for five years The Earl of Clarendon, the chairman, receives £3000 a year, Lord Gainford, the vice-chairman, receives £1000 a year, and the other three governors, Sir Gordon Nairne, Montague Rendall, and Mrs. Philip Snowden, receive £700 a year each. They may also receive expenses. They take office on Jan. 1.

THIRD PHILHARMONIC CONCERT TO BE ON WGN NEXT SUNDAY

Another concert will be presented over WGN, Chicago, by the Chicago Philharmonic Orchestra on Sunday, Dec. 12, between 3 and 5 o'clock. This will be the third concert of the series of 20 which are to be broadcast. One is resented each Sunday afternoon.

The concerts are put on under the artistic direction of Joseph Schwickerath, and Richard Czerwonky is the conductor. The orchestra is composed of 50 of the best-known musicians in Chicago.

There is a special group of soloists heard each Sunday in connection with the concert, and a special musical program is also arranged for presentation during the intermission, so that there are no "breaks" on the air.

The concerts are broadcast direct from the North Side Turner Hall in Chicago, where they are presented under the auspices of the Chicago Turngemeinde, which has been offering tehm to Chicago for the last 64 years.

WAGNERIAN PROGRAM ON WJZ

The Leest string trio, with Ellie Marion Ebeling as soprano soloist, will give a program of Wagnerian music from WJZ at 8:45 tomorrow night The program follows:

Excerpts from "The Flying Dutchman," Wagner; Soprano Solo—Ellie Marion Ebeling, (a) "Dich Theure Holle," from "Tannhaeuser," Wagner; 'Cello Solo—Julian Kahn, (a) "Dreams," Wagner; "Hilda's Death," from "Lohengrin," Wagner; Soprano Solo—Ellie Marion Ebeling, (a) "Elsa's Dream," from "Lohengrin," Wagner; Violin Solo—Maurice Leest, (a) "Prize Song," from "Die Meistersinger," Wagner; Excerpts from "Tannhaeuser," Wagner.

WTAD IN BROADCAST TEST

Tomorrow night Station WTAD, Carthage, Ill., will broadcast an experimental program starting at 8 o'clock, wave length 236 meters The Sunflower entertainers of Keokuk, Ia., will entertain for an hour This station received reception reports from the Atlantic to the Rockies and from Canada to the Gulf on last winter's programs power used being only 50 watts.

"It's working voltage that counts"

Power amplification has amazed the world

The amazing results obtained with power amplifiers is the radio sensation of the year. Perfect tone quality and the capacity to handle the full-volume of a brass band without distortion, has made power amplification the "last word" in radio.

You, too, can enjoy all these advantages even with your old set, and at a minimum cost, by building a power amplifier with Dubilier Condensers.

Dubilier Condenser Type 903, illustrated, is designed to withstand the high voltage surges which often occur in the filter circuits of power amplifiers. In fact all Dubilier Condensers are built with this high margin of safety, and with an indicated *working voltage that insures a long life in continuous operation.

Send 10c. for our booklet "Seventeen Ways to Improve Your Set." It explains the different types of power amplifiers, giving complete diagrams and specifications for the parts to be used.

Working voltage means more than "test voltage." It is the voltage at which a condenser may be safely used in continuous operation.*

"Lighting socket radio" that is proved –

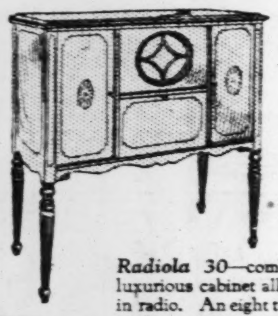
The most remarkable radio and musical achievements of today

This Christmas, RCA has set a new standard of MUSIC in radio—has brought radio to the point where it is really worth while to scrap your old set and buy one that will be permanent in your home. Unless you have heard the newest Radiolas, you can have no real conception of what radio is today, for the present Radiolas are as different from the ordinary radio set as the modern eight-cylinder car from the original horseless carriages.

In the new developments of radio today, RCA Radiolas showed the way. They were designed by the builders of the great broadcast stations, the men who are pioneering in every field of radio.

Others will follow—are following. But only Radiolas have had time to go through a real period of trial. The latest RCA models are already in hundreds of thousands of homes! They have been tested in use for months. They have been perfected! And they are built to serve not only this year, but for many Christmases to come!

Any Radiola may be bought on convenient terms!



Radiola 30—combines in one luxurious cabinet all that's newest in radio. An eight tube super-heterodyne receiver, single controlled. An enclosed loop—no antenna. An RCA power speaker. And no batteries. Just plug it in and tune in! Complete, . $575 (Operates on 50—60 cycle, 110 volt A. C. lighting circuit)

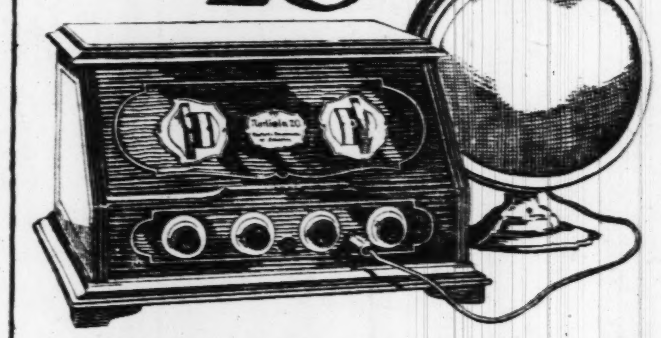
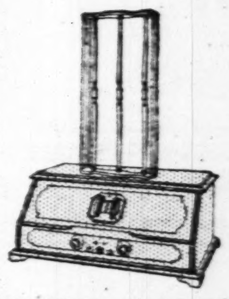
RCA Loudspeaker 104—power speaker. Clear at a whisper—and clear at the volume of a brass band! Operates RCA Radiola 25 or 28 (adapted) on 50-60 cycle, 110 volt A. C. lighting circuit. Used with other makes of sets, it eliminates "B" batteries only. Complete, $275

Hear the Radiola 20

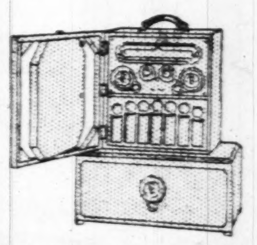


Radiola 20 challenges any competitor to a test of performance and tone quality. It is clear and true. It has the distance reach of much bigger sets. It has twenty times the selectivity of the average antenna set . . . a point very important in crowded cities. It is a tried and proved success. Be sure to hear it! With Radiotrons, ... $115

RCA Loudspeaker 100, ... $35



Radiola 25—six tube super-heterodyne with all the far-famed super-heterodyne quality of tone and performance—and the "catacombed" sealing of the vital parts. Single controlled. With 6 Radiotrons, ... $165



Radiola 26—six tube super-heterodyne. As a portable set it has a loop in the cover, loudspeaker inside, place in the back for small batteries. At home it has a fine walnut cabinet that holds larger batteries and has a coupler for an antenna. Cased in richly grained walnut. With 6 Radiotrons, . . $225

RCA Loudspeaker 100—still unmatched at anywhere near its price! Clear through the whole tone range—and clear at any volume you give it. Especially right for the power tube sets. $35

TYPE 'A' ELIMINATOR SAID TO WORK INDEFINITELY

An "A" battery eliminator per in the Cooper laboratories is not only to eliminate the "A" tery, and to deliver noiseless rent from a light socket, but also to function indefinitely without attention.

The electrical energy action takes place in this device through a specially constructed transformer and full wave rectifying element in connection with a filter circuit. No rheostats or other variable resistance controls are used. A special transformer tap switch is used for these purposes, thereby avoiding dissipation of current and poor voltage regulation said to be incident to the use of some resistance controls. A ballast unit of special design keeps the output voltage uniform at 6 volts independent of variations in line voltage. All alternating current hum is filtered out and a steady noiseless power is said to be delivered to the receiving set.

The Cooper "A" eliminator is said to operate perfectly with any standard receiving set and to deliver ample current to take care of as many as 10 201 A tubes or their equivalent.

The path of the radio set owner will be made easier by simply hooking this new type "A" eliminator to his set and to the socket, knowing that his power will not run down, and that charging is a thing of the past.

VIOLA AND PIANO RECITAL

Station WJZ and WGY at 9 o'clock next Friday night will present the young American pianist, Dorsey Whittington, and Egon Frank Kornstein, viola, supported by the Baldwin String Quartet, composed by Jacques Jacobs, first violin; Alexander Koszegi, second violin; Egon Frank Kornstein, viola, and Lazos Shuk, 'cellist. Whittington is a young American artist who made his first New York public appearance in March, 1923. Coming, practically unknown, at the end of a season overcrowded with great pianists, he succeeded in arousing the enthusiasm of his hearers and his recitals in all parts of the United States have won favorable comment.

The program: Viola solo, "Aria," Francoeur; "Menuet," Milandre; "Tambourine," Mondonville. Piano solo: "Berceuse," Chopin; "One Horse Sleigh," Nathan Novick; "May Night," Palmgren; "Dance of Olaf," Pick-Mangiagalli. Instrumental quartet in D Major, Mozart.

WEAF TO HAVE GREAT BROADCASTING PLANT

KSD Audience to Benefit by New York Station Plans—WJZ to Head New Chain.

KSD's radio audience should benefit by elaborate plans of the National Broadcasting Co., owner of Station WEAF, New York, which supplies the programs sent out from the Post-Dispatch's station and others in the chain.

The company controlling WEAF, according to its president, Merlin H. Aylesworth, is to have the largest broadcasting plant in this country, in a building now being erected at Fifth avenue and Fifty-fifth street, New York. The four top floors will be given over to the work of the National Broadcasting Co. The building is to be ready for occupancy in May, 1927.

For Better Broadcasting.

The building is to contain eight completely equipped studios designed for every type of broadcasting program. On the top floor will be an auditorium studio, large enough to seat an orchestra of 150 musicians, as well as guests. The ceilings of the studios on the twelfth floor will contain glass panels, so that spectators seated on the thirteenth floor may see the artists at the microphone.

"The most advanced principles of studio construction and plant control will be embodied in the building," says Aylesworth. "It is a fundamental fact, not always recognized, that broadcasting reception can be no better than broadcast transmission. Heretofore plans for broadcasting studios had to be drawn with reference to existing facilities in a building. This will be the first time that the fundamental construction of a great building will be planned to meet the special requirements of radio broadcasting."

There will be a central broadcasting plant from which a system of studios will radiate fan-wise. On the rim of this circle will be the artists' and general reception rooms. Each studio will have a separate control room adjacent to it.

The antennae and towers will be miles away from the broadcasting studios under a system of remote control which engineers are planning.

Aylesworth said also that a management contract had been signed with the Radio Corporation of America, whereby the program activities of Station WJZ will be directed by the National Broadcasting Co.

WJZ to Head New Chain.

WJZ, it is said, will be the central service station for a new broadcasting chain and will not be merged with the chain now connected by wire with WEAF. WJZ, directed largely by its present personnel, will continue to broadcast its own programs and serve the same listening public which it heretofore has commanded.

Unified program direction, it was stated, would not only permit the widest possible broadcasting of fine programs to the public, but would insure noninterference of interest in the broadcasting of important national events.

"The need of program balance between station and station," Aylesworth said, "particularly in the case of WEAF and WJZ, has been one of the most important requirements of broadcasting. Time and again the listening public has been forced to sacrifice one great musical feature for another, because both events were being broadcast simultaneously. The situation becomes acute when an important pronouncement, say an address by the President of the United States, is broadcast through one system of stations, when another may be broadcasting a major musical program.

"Then there is the need of balance in the character and type of programs broadcast.

"Under the arrangements made by National Broadcasting Co. with WJZ, the radio public will have the widest choice of programs through two chains of broadcasting stations."

COOLIDGE AND KING GEORGE MAY CONVERSE OVER RADIO

It is reported that an exchange of holiday greetings between President Coolidge and King George over the trans-Atlantic radio circuit is being planned by radio and telephonic engineers of this country, although the willingness of the two principals to participate has not been announced. It is assured that if the fans have the privilege of listening in while the heads of two great countries talk to each other across the Atlantic, they will sit up all night if necessary on either Christmas or New Year's eve.

Although not yet made public, it is understood that the plan of the proponents of this exchange of international greetings includes a very extensive broadcast hook-up insuring to at least 80 per cent of the American fans and practically all the British listeners, the privilege of listening in.

FROM California comes a real inspiration. Mr. Hartin writes that the music from his Bosworth is so clear and distinct that people stop to listen, as they pass the house.

HEARS CHIMES OVER RADIO BEFORE SOUND WAVES CAME

That radio broadcasting is giving the listeners lessons in physics as well as entertaining them is demonstrated by a letter received by WJZ from one of its listeners living within half a mile of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, whence that station broadcasts a series of carillon recitals every Sunday night.

The writer of a letter says that he lives on one of the upper floors of a tall apartment building, and on warm, quiet Sunday nights, he sat with the windows open and heard the bells of the carillon coming to him through the dusk. One night, he happened to turn on his radio, and from WJZ heard the carillon, but there was a difference in time between the radio and the direct sound that puzzled him. In fact, the difference in time was so great at first he did not realize that it was the same hymn that was being played, but later he found that the sounds coming in the open window were like an echo of the sounds given out by the loud speaker. This phenomenon was called to the attention of a professor of physics.

The solution is this: Electricity travels at about the same speed as light, whereas sound waves travel at a much slower rate. Therefore, the sound of the bells, converted into electricity, sped through the wires to the transmitting station of WJZ at Bound Brook, N. J., and thence back as radio waves through the air to the radio set and out of the loud speaker before the slow-moving (comparatively) sound waves could travel direct through the air for a half mile from the belfry of the Park Avenue Baptist Church to the apartment window.

ITALIAN FOLK SONGS AND LOVE BALLADS FROM WGN TUESDAY

A feature of the evening's program from WGN next Tuesday will be the appearance of the Salernos, a duet composed of an accordionist and guitarist, in a sparkling program of Italian folk songs and love ballads.

These artists are Chicago favorites and have a marvelous method of presenting the selections which they offer. They have a beautiful accompaniment to their numbers. Lawrence Salerno is the vocal member of the pair, and Frank Salerno supplies the accordion accompaniment.

"Cradle Snatchers" and Florence Moore in Town

BOTH of the local "legitimate" theaters, starting tonight, will be open this week for a change ith the American presenting Cradle Snatchers," a farce comedy hich was highly successful in New rk while the Shubert-Rialto has rence Moore, who in the old ys, would have been called a ugh soubrette," in the farce e Couldn't Say No."

as in New York Mary Boland, o has had an interesting career the stage with an occasional sh into the movies, is the star of Cradle Snatchers." Miss Boland rted her career as a leading man of a Detroit Stock company "The Social Highwayman." Then llowed stock engagements in Cin- nnati and Nashville.

After her stock experience, Miss land went to New York and ere met Robert Edeson, who was king for a leading woman for s "Strongheart," pleaded with m for a trial, and after reading e first act of the play to Henry Harris and James B. Forbes, as engaged. After a lengthy run that play, Miss Boland went road, came home and played in he Ranger," which proved a llure. Next she appeared with ancis Wilson. Then under arles Frohman's management e was, for six years, John Drew's ding woman, appearing with t actor in "Smith," "Jack raw," "A Single Man," "A Per- xed Husband" and in a revival "The Tyranny of Tears." Next e played in "Milady's Dress" and llowed that by 12 months in the ovies, then back to the stage in ck Abed," "Back Fire," "The e of Lady Camber," and then me the screen once more. The ll of the war took Miss Boland France under the Y. M. C. A. nner, where she was allied with e of the stage entertainments its that visited the various camps and hospitals. When she came home she appeared for the first time in vaudeville, then back to the legitimate stage in "The Advertising of Kate" and after that in "Meet the Wife," which brings her to her present role in "Cradle Snatchers."

IN "She Couldn't Say No" Florence Moore portrays the role of a woman lawyer. The story of the play is laid in a small town in New York State at the courthouse. Miss Moore essays the role of an ambitious stenographer in a law office and as the unexpected happens she is compelled to impersonate a woman lawyer especially engaged to try a breach-of-promise case in this small town. Her employer, whom she loves, is her opponent as the attorney for the other side.

Among others in the cast with Miss Moore will be Ralph Kellard, Evelyn Humes, Chester Clute, Louis Haines and Walter Jones.

THE first stage attraction of the year which might be called important will be Mrs. Fiske's appearance at the Shubert-Rialto on Dec. 13 in the role of Mrs. Alving in Henrik Ibsen's drama, "Ghosts." She is said to make of Helen Alving a thoroughly modern woman of today. The text used on this occasion is a revision based upon William Archer's standard translation, made by Harrison Grey Fiske who staged the production.

Ibsen gave two years to the completion of "Ghosts," his story of cold, bleak Norway being written amid the sunshine, romance and idealism of Italy. Mrs. Fiske, an earnest student of Ibsen, has devoted a longer time to study of the drama than the great Norse poet took to write it. Her company will include Walter Ringham.

The Varieties Lay Claim to A Centennial

Vaudeville Houses Here and Throughout the Country Celebrating First Hundred Years — Recalling Some Old Timers.

IT may be a simple press agent stunt or it may be founded upon historical fact but, at all events, vaudeville theaters throughout the country, which of course includes the Orpheum, St. Louis and Grand Opera House, are celebrating this week what they are pleased to call the Centennial of Vaudeville. They present claims that the varieties is 100 years old this season although about half a century ago it grew up into vaudeville. In those later days, as old-timers will remember, Barney Fagan was the greatest clog dancer of them all and his popularity brought an avalanche of clog dancers into vaudeville, not the least of whom was the first Pat Rooney.

In contrast to the clog dancers who have held their own in vaudeville from Fagan's day, there were the fire dancers and the fire eaters, two extraordinary breeds of entertainers, popular 25 or 30 years ago but now relegated to oblivion. Many of the old-timers will recall Ameta, the creator of fire dancing, and Mme. Rialto, her successor, who today is living quietly in New York.

THERE are those, too, in the present-day vaudeville audiences who remember when the monologist craze swept the country, bringing into prominence such artists as John Fuller Golden, Blackface Billy Van, Charlie Case, Stuart Barnes, Jim Thornton, R. G. Knowles and Walter Kelly.

The introduction of dramatic stars in vaudeville is credited to Robert Grau, whose activity in introducing such stars as Clara Morris, Amelia Bingham and others to vaudeville established a vogue which continues today.

Once it was the protean act which was the piece de resistance of vaudeville shows. Those were the days of R. A. Roberts, Henry Lee and Charlotte Perry and Frigoli. The tradition is carried on today by Owen McGiveney and Doc Baker, the former a dramatic star and the latter a musical revue luminary.

IT was early in the twentieth century when the rathskeller act came roaring out of the far West for its moment of supremacy. San Francisco produced the first of them, but the success of that one brought on an epidemic of them. Names such as Stepp, Mehlinger and King, Hedges Brothers and

Pickford and Fairbanks To Make Film Together; Colleen Moore for England

Latter Star, Voted the Best Box Office Attraction, to Make Four Films Abroad for European Consumption—D. W. Griffith Quits Paramount—The Rise of Izzie Cohen.

By NIE.

ALTHOUGH no official announcement is forthcoming, it is pretty generally understood that Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford are about to co-star in a big picture. Ever since their marriage there has been talk of a film being made by Doug and Mary, but good business has stood in the way. Fairbanks and his wife were able to get from the theaters of the country all the money that it was possible to collect for their separate offerings and there was no possibility that a film in which both appeared would bring in as much money as two in which each appeared as a lone star.

NOW, however, things are a little different. Miss Pickford, one of the very earliest stars of the movies, has unquestionably begun to lose a little of her drawing power although she is, of course, still one of the top notchers as a boxoffice attraction. Fairbanks is good for many more years in his own peculiar line as a swashbuckling, athletic hero but the time seems to be ripe for the pair to make a picture which would have a tremendous sentimental appeal.

Rumor has it that the projected effort of Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks will not be a romantic drama entirely but will run largely to slapstick heroics with Doug in one of his customary roles and Mary in a sweet girl part. It will be done, according to report, largely in color.

Bert Lytell, in Person, at the Orpheum

D. W. GRIFFITH'S widely heralded stay with Paramount was short-lived. Although the contract between "The Master" and Famous Players still had a year to run, it has been more or less suddenly terminated by agreement between the two parties with no official reasons being advanced, although it is reasonably easy to discover what happened. Pictures of today are factory-made under the rules of costs and systems followed by any well-regulated factory. Griffith, long used to having his own way in the matter of turning out films, found, it is said, that the factory methods and what he considered ART would not work together. Famous Players, on the contrary, have discovered that their way of making plays was eminently satisfactory—to them, and so the producers and their star director, who, by the way, has not twinkled very brightly for some time, came to the parting of their ways.

It was the same sort of trouble which caused Cecil de Mille to drop out of the Paramount organization. His going, while perhaps an artistic loss to Famous Players, hardly put a dent in the Zukor-Lasky bank roll. De Mille first branched out for himself and then tied up with the rapidly growing Producers' Distributing Corporation. Now there are rumors that he is not entirely satisfied there and an impending break is being talked of out in Hollywood.

COLLEEN MOORE, whose current offering, "Twinkletoes" is at the Ambassador this week, is soon to be lost to American studios. As part of the plan to influence opinion in England where much propaganda is being circulated against American films in an effort to stimulate the manufacture of British made pictures, Colleen is going abroad to remain a year or more. On the other side she will make four pictures which, it is hoped, will be British enough to please the kickers over there. At the same time they will be made with an eye to home consumption as well for there is no idea of letting the little star lose the position she occupies with her audiences here.

Miss Moore, who is now at work on the production of "Orchids and Ermine," is the best box office name in pictures, according to 278 out of 2471 exhibitors answering a questionnaire distributed by a leading trade journal in the film industry, to theaters throughout the country.

Tom Mix takes second place with 255 exhibitors naming him. Fred Thomson is third, with 252 favoring him.

Next in order are Harold Lloyd, Hoot Gibson, Norma Talmadge.

Guy Maier Soloist Of Today's "Pop" Concert at Odeon

GUY MAIER, soloist of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's "Pop" concert at the Odeon at 3:15 p. m. today, who has visited St. Louis three times in concert, playing with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra as a feature of the regular concert pair of March 3 and 4, 1922, and in recital at Sheldon Memorial that year and at the Principia concerts last season, really makes his local debut as a soloist this afternoon. Heretofore he has always played with Lee Pattison in two-piano works.

Today Mr. Maier plays the E flat Concerto of Liszt, one of the most pleasing piano works.

The program today ranges from Liszt to the Cheyenne Indians—which is inclusive of considerable territory. The first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," Wagner's "Tannhauser March" and Tschaikowsky's "Italian Caprice" all marked by beauty of melody, will be offered, while other numbers include orchestral arrangements of "My Old Kentucky Home" and "The Arkansaw Traveler" with Skilton's "Indian War Dance," a work really adopted from the themes of the Cheyenne Indians. Following is the complete program:

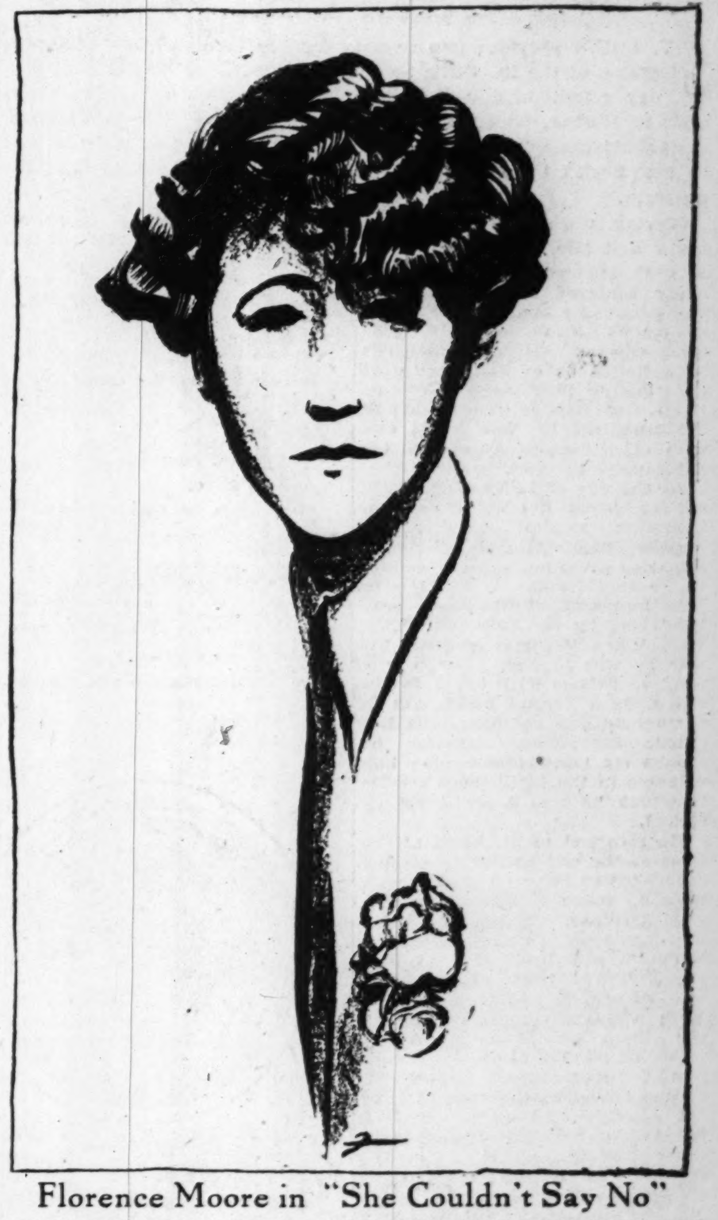
March from "Tannhauser"	Wagner
First movement from Symphony No. 8 in B minor ("Unfinished")	Schubert
Concerto No. 1 in E Flat	Liszt
(a) "My Old Ketucky Home"	Busch
(b) "Arkansas Traveler"	McDonald
(c) "Indian War Dance"	Skilton
Capriccio Italien	Tschaikowsky
Valse de Concert	Glazounoff

Scene From Henry VIII By W. U. Students.

A feature of the Shakspeare recital to be given by Charles Dillon and students of Washington University, in the Church of the Unity Tuesday evening, will be the scene of Wolsey's farewell from "Henry VIII," last presented in St. Louis by the late Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree.

Miss Marguerite Grace, assistant supervisor of music in the St. Louis public schools, has arranged an elaborate musical score; and a special lighting system and cenotaph setting have been installed to insure an adequate staging of such effective numbers as the dagger scene from "Macbeth" and Antony's oration from "Julius Caesar."

Dillon will be supported by the following students: Harold Elbert, John Black, Frank Cordes, Thomas Dunn, Raymond Falzone and Dacre Boulton.



Florence Moore in "She Couldn't Say No"

Ethel Barrymore Scores in New Drama by Maugham

By ALEXANDER WOOLLCOTT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.

IT was back in 1911 that Ethel Barrymore first played that incomparable one-act play by James M. Barrie called "The Twelve-Pound Look." Now, after 15 years she has come glowing back to town in "The Fourteen Hundred-Pound Look." Everything has gone up so, you know. Not eggs, alone, and coal and gin. But even a lady's economic independence. And in other ways—in all ways, in fact—the new Maugham comedy, made radiant by Miss Barrymore, is peculiarly a product of and for the year of grace and change, 1926.

IN the Barrie sketch, you will remember, the complacent Sir Harry Sims learned that his first wife had left him not for any other man at all but just to get away from the intolerable burden of his fat, suffocating complacency—that she always wanted to clear out and had done so as soon as she could earn the 12 pounds wherewith to buy a typewriter and thus be able to support herself. Said Kate: "If I was a husband—it is my advice to all of them—I would watch my wife quietly to see whether the 12-pound look was not coming into her eyes."

This advice was seemingly lost on Dr. John Middleton, the husband in "The Constant Wife," for, come to think of it, the new Maugham comedy is not really called "The Fourteen Hundred Pound Look" at all. Dr. Middleton is lulled by the complete calm, the almost deafening calm, with which his wife learns that he has been having after an affair with a pretty woman down the street. He does not see the 1400-pound look in her eyes nor grow uneasy when—as who, these days, does not?—she goes into the interior decorating business.

YET Constance Middleton's deepest concern was just to get herself into a position where, if she felt so inclined, she could tell him with calm and courtesy but with a determination, to go to the devil. She did not feel that his mere vagrant infidelity quite put her in that position—not while she went on living so comfortably at his expense in the big house in Harley street.

It is true she was the mother of his child, but, after all, that had been quite as much a favor to herself as to him, and once the baby was born, she had turned over all the tiresome part of its care to much more competent persons. Nor was she inclined to trade on the fact that she also presided over his house. With a well-trained staff that took only about 10 minutes of her day and if any wife needed more time than that, it was just because she was not any too bright.

No, Constance Middleton wanted real economic freedom and in the last act of "The Constant Wife" she is savoring that freedom and finding the taste of it quite the most agreeable experience she can remember since she ate her first strawberry ice.

IN her first year of work, she has engineered the sale of so many yards of glazed chintz that she has £1400 to show for her pains. A thousand of them she deposits to her husband's account to pay for her keep. Two hundred she uses to pay her own wardrobe bills. Two hundred she turns into lire and sets forth for six weeks of

Two St. Louisans Soloists For Symphony This Week

Henri Deering, Who Has Won Fame as a Pianist, and Chester Merton, Tenor, on Friday and Saturday Program.

ST. LOUIS provides two soloists for the regular symphonic programs of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon, Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week. They are Chester Merton, who sings an incidental solo in Alfredo Casella's symphonic suite "La Giara" and Henri Deering, pianist, who will be heard with the orchestra in Rachmaninoff's celebrated C minor concerto.

Deering, the son of Deputy Assessor and Mrs. Oscar F. Doering of 6522 Michigan avenue has already achieved an international reputation as a concert pianist. He has played with success in the principal cities of Germany and has been hailed as a young artist of rare quality in Budapest, Vienna, Paris and London. To his credit are successes in New York, and with other leading symphonic organizations in America.

At the age of 19 Deering struck out for himself in a musical career, becoming musical director for Maude Adams. His pianistic gifts attracted attention and he planned to go to Germany to study with Max Pauer at Stuttgart—a plan frustrated by the outbreak of the war. When America entered the war he was in New York, and went to France with the 77th Division, as a Second Lieutenant in a machine gun company. His linguistic accomplishments—for he speaks six languages—made him valuable in the intelligence service to which he was immediately attached.

He returned to St. Louis at the close of the war and after a short time went to Paris where he again took up piano studies under Isadore Philippe. These were later supplemented with Schnable, Kreutzer and Breitkaupt in Berlin. Followed tours of European musical centers and then his New York debut two seasons ago with the State Symphony Orchestra when his playing of the Rachmaninoff C minor concerto placed him at one bound in the first rank of the younger American pianists. Since then he has played with other leading orchestras in the east and on the Pacific Coast.

Casella's "La Giara" in which Mr. Merton's tenor will be heard as an incident, will be presented in St. Louis for the first time at these concerts. The music tells the story of the ballet for which it was written, an amusing tale of a hunchback who shut himself in the oil-jar he was repairing and couldn't get out again. Peasants come to frolic and peer at his plight. The owner of the jar close-fisted and irascible, will not let the jar be broken to release the tinker. But the noise of the frolic so disturbs the owner's slumbers that he appears in dudgeon to break up the party and losing his temper gives the jar a kick that sends it rolling down hill to crash against a tree. It is in an early evening interlude that the tenor voice is heard in serenade. Mr. Merton appeared as a "Pop" concert soloist with the orchestra last year with success. He is soloist at the Church of St. Michael and All Angels.

Mendelssohn's "Scotch" Symphony and Rossini's Overture to "The Barber of Seville" make up the program which in detail is:

THE new Paramount Theater in New York opened two weeks ago as the very last word in cinema palaces has, as its musical director, one Irving Talbot, who ranks high in the music world in the metropolis. Few St. Louis movie fans will recognize, in the name, a former St. Louis orchestra conductor yet Irving Talbot is none other than Izzie Cohen who made his mark here when the movies were young under the shrewd direction of that master showman, Bill Goldman. It was at Goldman's first tent show that Izzie broke into the show business. From the tent he moved with Bill to the Maffett Theater, then to the Lindell, on to the Pershing and the Delmonte, breaking into the big league when the Missouri Theater was opened. At that latter house he was the assistant director to Sarli and when Sarli went to California Izzie took up his baton. From the Missouri Cohen moved on to New York where his rise, as a conductor, has been rapid.

JUST in passing let it be remarked that the new Paramount Theater took in $80,180 during its opening week, setting a record which up to that time had been held by the Capitol, also in New York, with $74,342. This is big business with a vengeance. Here in St. Louis the bigger picture houses are glad to have a $20,000 week and have been known to drop as low as $5000.

Rental of the Paramount is charged off at $10,000 per week. $10,000 weekly film charges are figured and also an overhead of $20,000, says the Wall Street Journal, which estimates the net profit for the initial week at $40,000.

As a further idea of the magnitude of the film business, the net income of Famous Players-Lasky this year is expected to approximate $6,500,000 as compared with $5,718,053 earned in 1925. This allows for practically no income from the Balaban & Katz holdings, which were taken over in October, and but little from the Paramount Theater.

One source of the Famous income, the Charles Frohman Co., which it owns entirely, has three plays running in New York. At the Empire "The Captive" is bringing in about $14,000 a week and "The Play's the Thing" is the attraction at the Miller. "The Constant Wife" has just been presented.

TAKE it from Hal Roach, who has directed a lot of temperamental stars in the movies, handling a horse for the camera is a man's size job. While Roach was busy on the studio lot in Hollywood producing the "Our Gang," Charley Chase and Glenn Tryon comedies, he harbored a thought that some day he would like to bring out a star whose presence and acting would give the public that "something different" that had long been sought for in cinematics. One day he picked up a Colorado newspaper and read about a "king of wild horses," a fierce, flashing black stallion that had taunted at the "ride-'em-cowboy" phase. This animal was as wild and free as the mountains he had roamed. His teeth often found a mark in human flesh; his hoofs were deadly; his plunging when under a saddle too much for any rider.

When Roach's scout was sent to Colorado to look over this movie prospect, he found that the animal, later named Rex, had really been born a registered Morgan stallion, but had turned back to nature when no one was found who could call him friend.

Rex reached Hollywood unheralded and for a time it seemed that he would never lay claim to a screen career. However, infinite patience on the part of Roach and his trainer brought the wild steed into the way of the movies and Rex in time made his bow amid the plaudits of the world.

But Rex still remains the wildest star in motion pictures. The herds in the Colorado mountains seem ever calling to him. Private cars and all the luxuries of the screen luminaries have not accustomed him to the life of the gilded set. He will not even make friends with Fred Jackman, who has directed him in all his pictures "King of Wild Horses," "Black Cyclone," and his present offering, "The Weire Horse" which is at the St. Louis Theater this week. In this film, Rex traveled in big league style in his private coach to the wilds of northern Wyoming and southern Montana, along with Director Jackman, and a party of 40. Here, over a period of four months, in his own element he enacted the stellar role of a drama woven around the pioneer days of the '70's.

"CRADLE SNATCHERS" AND FLORENCE MOORE COME TO TOWN

Theodore St. Jorn, Jarvis Kerr and William C. Massen.

"NO, NO, Nannette," will return to the American Theater on Sunday night, Dec. 12, for an engagement of one week. This musical comedy has been tremendously popular here and its return, this time with Louise Groody and Hal Skelly heading the cast, should be welcome. Miss Groody will be seen here for the first time in the title role, which she created. Skelly is the happy-go-lucky Jimmie Smith. In the cast, also, will be Evelyn Darville, a St. Louis girl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nat L. McGuire, formerly of 6139 Kingsbury, will make her first stage appearance in her home city. Miss Darville began her vocal studies here and then went to New York some six years ago to complete that study. She then secured an engagement as prima donna in the Greenwich Village Follies. This was followed by a role in "Orange Blossoms." The young lady then succeeded Grace Moore in the prima donna role of the Music Box Revue.

AT THE Empress this week Leona Powers will star in the one-woman play, "Jerry," which Catherine Chisholm Cushing wrote for Billie Burke's versatilities, and to which the actress herself, perhaps thinking she did not have enough "fat" handed to her, in three acts, added another one of her own composition.

THE ORPHEUM, for its show inaugurating the new policy of adding a photoplay to its vaudeville program and reducing the admission price, has drawn heavily on Hollywood, three movie persons being on the bill "in person." Bert Lytell, who is making a brief vaudeville tour, will appear in a playlet, "The Valiant." Trixie Friganza, who admits she has been on the stage 35 years, and who lately has been playing dear old mother and flapper grandmother roles in the movies, will be seen in her "Bag o' Trix," in which she gives her impressions of the 16-year-old flappers of today, and Johnny Burke, whose soldier monologue won him a movie contract with Mack Sennett, who is getting in a few weeks in vaudeville while preparing to make his next comedy film.

THE American will be closed the week before Christmas. The attraction announced for two weeks beginning Dec. 26 is "The Cocoanuts," a musical comedy which played all last year at the Lyric Theater, New York, and which is now showing at the Erlanger Theater, Chicago. The Marx Brothers are the stars of this piece which was seen only in Boston and Washington before the beginning of the Chicago engagement last October.

Other attractions booked for January are George Jessell in "The Jazz Singer," a drama which occupied the Cort Theater, New York, all of last season, and which has been a success at the Harris Theater, Chicago; David Belasco's production of "Fanny," starring Fanny Brice, and Glenn Hunter in "Young Woodley," which is now running at the Blackstone Theater, Chicago.

For February, March and April, the American announces Otis Skinner in "The Honor of the Family," Ziegfeld Follies, George White's "Scandals," Ina Claire in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," "The Poor Nut," the Pulitzer prize play, "Craig's Wife," with Chrystal Herne, and the picture version of Beau Geste.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

ALEXANDER KORDA, the Hungarian director, and his wife, known on the screen of Europe as Maria Corda, have arrived in California, where they will direct and act in the movies respectively for First National which has them under contract. Natalie Barrache, the Russian film star, who came over on the same ship with them, is remaining in New York until she learns the English language, then she also will go on to Burbank to be a leading luminary in First National pictures. It has not been definitely decided as yet which picture Korda shall first direct, nor what vehicle will be Maria Corda's initial one in America. Korda achieved fame as a director in Budapest and in Berlin with the UFA. Maria Corda was one of UFA's greatest stars and a favorite of European film fans.

Bebe Daniels will be a Paramount commedienne for at least another five years. This was assured when her existing contract which still had two years to run, was torn up and she affixed her signature to a new agreement which allies her with Famous Players-Lasky until 1931. Miss Daniels is now completing the final scene of her forthcoming vehicle, "Stranded in Paris."

The two foremost character actors before the camera today, Emil Jannings and Wallace Beery, are to make a picture together for Paramount. They will each complete the pictures now scheduled to them individually and then join talents in a production to be sent out as a super-special. Beery has just started production of "Casey at the Bat." He will follow that with "Looie the Fourteenth" and "The Greatest Show on Earth." The first American-made picture for Jannings will be "The Man Who Forgot God."

Clara Bow, Esther Ralston and Gary Cooper have been assigned leading parts in the new Frank Lloyd picture, "Children of Divorce," from the pen of Owen Johnson, which will soon appear serially in a monthly magazine. The story is a cross section of modern life among the rich young set.

Tiffany Productions announces that the cast has been completed for "The Tiger." The players include Pat O'Malley, Helen Ferguson, George Hackathorne, Claire McDowell, Lawford Davidson, "Heinie" Conklin, Helen Lynch, Max Davidson, Alphonse Ethier and Ted Adams.

From London comes word that British film fans are protesting against war films. Newspapers are printing many letters from cinema patrons urging British producers to stop the flood of military films.

To Harry T. Morey, who long ago established himself as a screen actor, has been assigned the title role in Malcolm St. Clair's next production, "The Cross-Eyed Captain." Inasmuch as the title of the picture will be changed, it will not be necessary for Morey to simulate the eye affliction. Other players featured in the principal roles will be Ricardo Cortez and Arlette Marchal.

"Paradise for Two," Richard Dix's newest starring vehicle, is now in production at the Long Island studio. The picture is based on an original story by Howard Emmett Rogers. Betty Bronson has the leading feminine role. Other members of the cast are Andre Beranger, Edmund Breese and Peggy Shaw.

A few months ago Paul Ellis was a bullfighter in Mexico. Today he is playing the role of an impetuous lover in support of Corinne Griffith in "Purple and Fine Linen," which James Flood is directing. Ellis is a native of Argentina. He was educated in Spain and subsequently became a matador in the Spanish bull rings. After fighting in the bull rings of Seville, Cordova and Barcelona he came to America about a year ago. At that time First National obtained his services for the bullfighting scenes in "The Pace That Thrills," made in New York. Next he took a Latin role in "The Dancer of Paris," and then went back to bullfighting. He made appearances in the ring in Peru and Uruguay, and just a few months ago put in a week's engagement in Mexico City.

First National announces that the company has purchased the screen rights to a story entitled "Once There Was a Princess," by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, published in the Saturday Evening Post. The story has not yet been assigned to either director or star.

With production on "Mother Machree" virtually completed, Fox Films is sending two cameramen to Ireland to obtain additional scenes. Belle Bennet plays the title role in Mother Machree. Others in the cast are Neil Hamilton, Constance Howard, Ethel Clayton, Victor McLaglen, Ted McNamara, Philip de Lacey and Pat Somerset. The story is by Rida Johnson Young.

Ward Crane, who portrays a Crown Prince in Corinne Griffith's picture, "The Lady in Ermine," was at one time secretary to Governor William Sulzer of New York.

Ken Maynard, Western star, has begun work on his next feature temporarily called "Somewhere South of Sonora." Kathleen Collins is again his leading woman.

"The Song of the Dragon," in which Dorothy Mackaill and Lawrence Gray have the leads, is being made in New York. It is based on a story by John Tainter Foote.

"A. W. O. L.," a comedy based upon some of the lighter episodes of the war, will go into production this week at Fox West Coast studios. The cast will include Nancy Nash, recently brought to the front by the leading feminine role in "The City," Gene Cameron, Judy King, Ted McNamara and Sammy Cohen. McNamara and Cohen are featured members of the cast of "What Price Glory."

THE VARIETIES CLAIM TO BE A HUNDRED

Jacobson, the Two Bobs, Three White Kuhns, Varden Perry and Wlbur, Mike Bernard and Willie Weston are familiar and, finally, Van and Schenck of the present-day.

Trained dogs and other performing animals had their day, a day beginning with the success of Barnold's Drunken Don, a marvelous canine performer of the early '90s. Other acts which followed included Thompson's Elephants, Apdale's Animals, Madame Emmy's Dogs, Meighan's Dogs and Consul the First, the first performing monkey.

There was, too, a period when jugglers were the hue and cry of variety. Greatest of these and the first to establish them in popular favor was Cinquevalli. Sharpshooters enjoyed brief popularity in the days of Col. Gaston Bordeverry and Chevalier John de Loris.

MAGIC had its greatest period under the well-remembered regime of Ching Ling Foo, smiling Oriental, and remained popular with such artists as Thurston and Hermann the Great guiding its destinies. Outstanding among modern magicians and illusionists are Harry Houdini, defier of spooks, scorner of spirits, and Nicola, who beat the fakirs of the Far East at their own game.

Acrobat enthusiasts will remember the days of the Four Bards, ground acrobats; Four Lukens, aerial artists, and the Belleclaire Brothers. Until the last few years, the city of Reading, Pa., for some unknown reason, supplied vaudeville with 90 per cent of its acrobats.

"Floradora" and its famous sextette was responsible for the introduction into vaudeville of girl ensembles, now a permanent fixture in the two-a-day. The first of these was the "Beaux and Belles Octette" conceived by Mark Luescher and Lee Shubert. In it were Homer Mason, Marguerite Keeler, Jack Mason, Charles Goulding, Goldy Moore, Beulah Dodge and others who have since won fame. Following the success of this presentation, scores of similar acts were seen in vaudeville. Jesse Lasky, the movie magnate, but then of the firm of Lasky and Rolfe, won some of his early prestige producing girl and music acts for vaudeville, principal of which were "The Rolfonians," "The Military Octette," "The Colonial Septette" and others.

Not so long afterwards, "La Petite Adelaide" started a fad for toe dancing in vaudeville with her presentation "The Bill Poster Girls." "La Petite Mignon" was another one.

THE colored race has been a steady contributor to vaudeville. Every vaudeville patron remembers Bert Williams, and there were, in addition, Cole and Johnson and Abbie Mitchell, and Ernest Hogan. Bill Robinson is one of the best known of present-day colored entertainers.

At one time, family acts were popular. The Sullys, the Mortons, the Cohans and divers others held first place in popularity during this period. The vogue for novelty acts was introduced by Staley and Birbecks, the Musical Blacksmiths. Two-men talking acts broke into prominence with Smith and Campbell.

Emma Carus, May Irwin, Clarice Vance, Artie Hall and Sophie Tucker, introduced the "coon shouter" to vaudeville. Henry Santrey and Paul Whiteman brought on the outburst of enthusiasm for jazz bands.

"The Rivals" to Be Given at Toy Theater

"The Rivals," Richard Brinsley Sheridan's brilliant comedy will be presented Friday and Saturday nights by the New Toy Theater Players at their playhouse. The Sheridan comedy was seen in St. Louis last season, played by a road company.

Those included in the players' cast are: Mary Ann Jones, Maudean Jones Crane, Christine Grey, Kathryn Trautz, Therese Wittler, Florence Schreiber, William Cooper, Mary Willette Gifford, Margaret Frazier and Kathleen Walsh.

Last month the Toy Players gave a program of one-act plays.

ETHEL BARRYMORE SCORES IN A NEW PLAY BY MAUGHAM

holiday-making in Italy. Her is packed, the taxi is panting at the Harley street curb below, she drawing on her gloves as the curtain gets ready to fall. Almost the door she turns and adds incidentally, she is taking a with her.

When I speak of "The Constant Wife" as peculiarly a product and for the year of grace change, 1926, I am thinking that have lived to see Ethel Barrymore playing that exit. Time was when some of our best actresses (Julia Marlowe, for instance) made it rule to play only those feminine characters whose sexual experiences, if, unfortunately, any, were sanctioned by wedlock. And the more liberal actresses, who minded to play women who had fallen, or who, in the lingo of "The Two Orphans," had been "unfortunate," saw to it that all these occurred in the antecedent action and were properly deplored from time to time in the course of the play.

BUT in "The Constant Wife" play almost takes her down sees her off. Like the worn matron in "Lady Windermere's Fan," she has a past in of her. Scene by scene, line line, the wily Maugham builds her indisputable right— moral, economic—to the love she is minded to indulge in. when Miss Barrymore went out through the Harley street on Monday night, she went the blessings of the author and think, of the audience, beaming the front row of which, of course was her uncle, John Drew. have changed.

The writing of "The Constant Wife" in the first place and its lighted, unquestioning acceptance by its first New York audience traceable in part, I suppose, to shifting customs and standards the community, to a growing position against humbug everywhere and more especially restive impulse perceptible in our playwrights to rewrite stage's traditional scenes with adultery. I suspect, for stance, that Noel Coward "This Was a Man" just because felt that "East Lynne" had already been written more than enough.

"THIS WAS A MAN" is new Coward comedy came to town last week Francine Larrimore and A. E. Matthews in the leading roles. In piece when the husband's boy friend confesses to an of quiet adultery with the wife, husband goes into gales of laughter. And in "The Constant Wife" the heroine receives the news her husband's infidelity with smiling calm that almost rings your ears and his.

I think that, in part, our playwrights are thus merely suffering the theater's acute eraction all the scenes of torn curtains flooding tears and splintered furniture of the earlier dispensation. part, however, they are both flecting and coaxing the changing manners of Mayfair and Park Avenue. I am not sure whether er Maugham in his own thinks he is picturing life as or as he believes it should be. one thing is probable—these WILL change the manners of time. If they do, they will squaring an old account with passions. I am sure that many detected lover has been filled buckshot for no better reason just because the husband gathered from some play that could do no less.

"THE Constant Wife" will receive the gloved applause of many a mannerly audience. Twenty years ago its production would have been suppressed by the police. Twenty ago Miss Barrymore would have touched its manuscript a 10-foot pole. Times changed. Nowadays the power has all it can do to the plays in which the more bizarre amours are dramatized has no energy left to harry the fashioned dramas in which carryings on are between of opposite sexes.

"The Constant Wife" appears have been immediately successful. Its receipts were enormous, in Cleveland, where the first performance was considerably handicapped by the circumstance the great lady had not yet around to learning her lines. the end of that ragged performance she put repentant arms around the distracted dramatist and kissed him. Then, as if this were not enough for any man, added: "Willie, Willie, I've spoiled your beautiful play. But it will all right."

And it was.

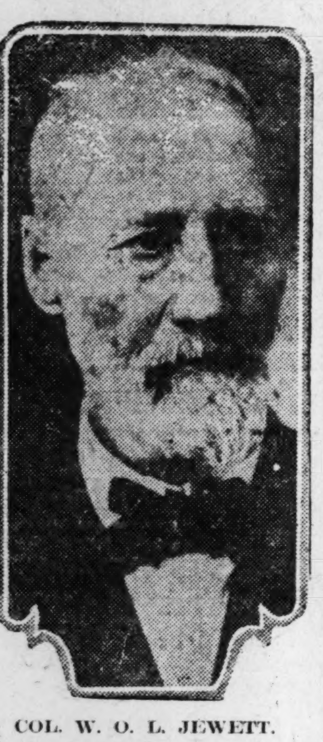
EDITOR FOR 50 YEARS



COL. W. O. L. JEWETT.

COL. JEWETT, 89, STILL EDITS HIS NEWSPAPER

Lives 2000 Miles Away but Contributes to the Shelbina (Mo.) Democrat.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHELBINA, Mo., Dec. 4.—The Shelbina Democrat, one of the oldest newspapers in Northern Missouri, is edited by a man who lives 2000 miles from its office.

Col. W. O. L. Jewett, who for 50 years or more had edited and published The Democrat, and whose 90th birthday falls on Dec. 27, now resides in Los Angeles, Cal. His manuscript for the editorial page reaches The Democrat every week, and is signed with his initials.

The Democrat is now operated by Ernest W. Jewett, Col. Jewett's son, and Edgar P. Blanton, son of "Jack" Blanton of the Monroe County Appeal.

From time to time Col. and Mrs. Jewett come back to Missouri to see how the boys in the office are getting along. On one of his recent visits the Colonel contrasted journalism as he had known it when a young man and as he sees it now.

"The most notable change in newspapers since I have been connected with them is improvement in their English, their manner of expression," said Colonel Jewett. "Editorials and news writing today are models of clarity and of brevity. Ornate writing cuts very little figure. People want the facts tersely and accurately told.

Old and New Methods.

"I remember when an old handpress with a hatful of type were sufficient equipment to start supplying 'a long-felt want.' Printers got most of their wage in orders on the butcher, grocer and drygoods merchant. New papers were popping up everywhere, even in the smallest villages. When an editor retired at night he wasn't a bit surprised to wake up next morning to find a new rival across the street. The newspaper didn't take much ready cash. About anything raised on a farm was legal tender. A pair of knitted socks or gloves would extend the subscription for another year. In contrast the newspaper today has become a serious business enterprise. The right sort of equipment costs money and lots of it. The workmen must be paid in cash. There are not so many papers in the towns, but those that are running must be strictly up-to-date in the character of news they print, and in the office facilities for commercial printing.

"On the whole, conditions are much better now for the real newspaper than they were. Merchants have learned that advertising space is worth money, and that they are not entitled to free puffs.

Power of the Press Grows.

"While the newspaper of today does not contain the long and heavy editorials that characterized the pioneer paper, it really has more influence. It has become recognized as an institution for service. A town cannot hope to develop without it.

"The war threw a new light on the whole newspaper system. It taught the public the power of the press as nothing else has ever taught it. The paper was the great force that helped to sell Liberty bonds, to raise funds for the Red Cross and in bringing to the people the needs of the Government in that period of crisis.

Col. Jewett was born in Maine, Dec. 27, 1836. When he was a boy he heard Horace Greeley speak at Aurora, Ill. In that speech the editor advised young men to go west. Soon afterward the war came on, Col. Jewett joined the army and at its close moved to Shelbina, Mo. After 50 years he took Greeley's advice and went west, buying an 80-acre ranch near Los Angeles, Cal. It happened there was oil under part of the ranch. The Colonel sold the oil right for $80,000.

Col. Jewett has been president of the Missouri Press Association and was interested in the founding of the Missouri School of Journalism.

BIRTHPLACE OF TWO BRITISH KINGS TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

Usk Castle in Monmouthshire, Now in Ruins, Carries With It Title of Lord of Manor.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The birthplace of two English kings, Usk Castle in Monmouthshire now in ruins, is to be sold under the hammer. The ownership carries with it the title of Lord of Manor, and on this account is expected to bring a good price.

The castle, birthplace of Edward IV and Richard III, was built about the time of William the Conqueror, and long held a prominent place in English history. In 1265 the castle was captured by Simon de Montfort but after occupation of only a few days he was forced out by Gilbert and Prince Edward.

The castle was the home of Richard, Duke of York, in 1433 and afterward passed into the hands of William Herbert, the first Earl of Pembroke. The castle was partly destroyed by assaults of Owen Glendower.

The estate will be sold by executors of the late S. D. Williams, a land owner, who bought the place.

MISSOURI YIELD OF RICE TO TOTAL 620,000 BUSHELS

Scientific Agricultural Methods Overcome Fancied Handicap of Climatic Conditions.

FIRST PLANTING WAS HALF-ACRE IN 1914

Center of Industry Now in Northern Part of State—Most of Crop Sold for Seeding.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3.—Application of scientific agricultural methods to growing of rice in Missouri has overcome the former theory that the crop was not adapted to Missouri, because of the climate, and could not be raised north of the extreme southern counties of the State.

After experimental development extending over a period of 12 years, rice now is being grown successfully in nearly a dozen Missouri counties, and as far north as Grundy County, in the second tier of counties from the Missouri-Iowa line.

From a beginning of a half-acre in 1914, the production has grown to an estimated acreage of 10,000 acres in 1926. The average yield this year is 62 bushels of rough rice an acre, or an estimated crop of 620,000 bushels. There now are approximately 50 rice growers in the State.

Rice Center in Elsberry District.

Contrary to the former belief that rice could not be grown successfully in the northern part of the State, the hub of the industry in Missouri is the Elsberry district centering in Lincoln County, north of St. Louis and adjoining the Mississippi River. This is the most northern rice-growing district in the United States.

Growers in the Elsberry district recently finished harvesting between 8000 and 9000 acres of rice, and the yield is estimated at about 400,000 bushels, which probably will bring at least the price paid for the 1925 crop, $1.74 a bushel.

This rice-growing belt extends into St. Charles and Pike counties, adjoining Lincoln County on the south and north, and some rice is being grown north of Hannibal, in Marion County.

Most of Crop Sold for Seed.

Virtually all of the Missouri crop is bought for seed by Southern growers, according to experts of the United States Department of Agriculture, as it is free of weed seeds and, like other Northern-grown seeds, make a rapid growth and matures early when sown in Southern sections.

Experiments in Missouri have shown the crop can mature before heavy frosts, and that the Missouri climate is no barrier to development of rice growing.

Reclaimed Mississippi River swamp land is declared ideal for the growing of rice, although good results have been obtained in river bottoms in other sections of the State. The best land for rice is that with an impervious sub-soil, to prevent seeping away of the water pumped into the fields to stand during the growing season.

First Experiment in 1914.

One of the first experiments in rice growing in Missouri was by George Begley of Poplar Bluff, in 1914, according to E. A. Logan of Columbia, agricultural statistician of the United States Bureau of Agriculture Economics. Begley grew one-half acre of rice in 1914 on one of his farms near Dudley, Stoddard County. He enlarged the acreage until in 1916 he had 150 acres in rice, producing a good crop. For several years the only rice grown in Missouri was in Stoddard County, but a little later some was grown near Fisk, in Butler County.

Begley formerly was known as the "rice king" of Southeast Missouri. He became financially involved in 1919, following further expansion of his rice farms, and was sent to the penitentiary for 10 years on a plea of guilty of forging securities in obtaining bank loans. Gov. Hyde paroled him in 1924.

Rapid Development.

In 1923 a successful experiment with rice was made at Elsberry, Lincoln County, by A. V. Rowe of Galesburg, Ill., who owned considerable bottom land near Elsberry. Rapid development followed that experiment and this year approximately 9000 acres were sown in the Elsberry district.

In the last three years rice growing has spread to other sections of Missouri. E. R. Locke of Mexico, Mo., is growing rice successfully on a tract of land he owns near Urich, Henry County, in the western section of the State. He plans next year to grow rice in the river bottoms in Bates County, which adjoins the Missouri-Kansas border.

Rice is being produced on an increasing scale in St. Charles County. Among the growers are August A. Busch of St. Louis and Dr. W. T. Page of St. Charles. The College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri is making extensive experiments near St. Peters, St. Charles County, with several varieties, under various growing conditions.

Some of the Leading Planters.

Among the leading growers in Lincoln County are Congressman Clarence Cannon, A. V. Rowe, J. G. Stirmhinger, C. C. Benton and others. Rice is being grown in five localities in Pike County. In the southeastern section of the State, E. C. Mohrstadt, a banker of Dexter, and others are growing rice on an increasing scale in Stoddard County, and other acreage is in New Madrid County and near Fisk, Butler County.

In Grundy County, the most northern point in Missouri where rice is being grown, A. G. Knight this year raised 40 acres of rice and but for a dry spring season last year would have had 150 ac was not equipped last year to the land for germination lied upon heavy spring ra

Probably It Was Horrified at His Writing and Quit, Says the Author's Letter.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Sir James Barrie penned "Peter Pan" and all of his early successes with his right hand, but today the author writes altogether with his left.

In a letter read at the annual dinner of the Newsvendors' Benevolent and Provident Institution, Sir James explained how the change came about.

"Soon after 'The Old Lady' was written, my right hand (probably horrified at the sight of my caligraphy) gave out, and I have ever since had to write with my left, to the joy of my correspondents," he said.

TOY DAY DEPOTS FOR POOR AT CHRISTMAS OPEN FRIDAY

Every St. Louisan Invited to Help Citizen's Committee and Post-Dispatch Make Unfortunate Children Happy.

Four depots have been chosen by a Citizens' Committee, co-operating with the Post-Dispatch, for the receipt next Friday of toys donated by St. Louisans who wish to gladden the hearts of poor and unfortunate children this Christmas.

Location of these depots follows.

West End—Union Avenue Christion Church, Union boulevard and Enright avenue.

South Side—Community Center, Grand boulevard and Vista street.

North Side—Y. M. C. A., Grand boulevard and Hebert street.

Downtown—1023 Locust street or 620 Franklin avenue.

All day Friday—Toy day—these depots will be open, and representatives of the committee in attendance will be glad to receive old or new toys.

Repainted, Without Charges.

Persons unable to deliver playthings on Toy Day may take them at any time before Christmas to the Union Avenue Christian Church, or to 620 Franklin avenue, the address of the Platt & Thornburgh Paint Co., which has volunteered to renovate and repaint, without charge, all old toys received by the committee.

Some of the toys are to be packed in provision baskets sent out in the annual Christmas festival of the Post-Dispatch, and the remainder will be distributed among boys and girls in public and private institutions, as far as the supply will permit. Previously it was announced Toy Day would be next Saturday, but this was changed to Friday.

The following statement was issued by the Executive Committee of the citizens' group, which is comprised of Mrs. Lon Hocker, honorary chairman; Mrs. R. M. Cooper, chairman; Mrs. Gilbert Fox, Mrs. William T. Donovan, Mrs. Howard Bailey, Mrs. William Julius Polk, Virgil Rule and Miss Viola Kilgen.

"The Citizens' Committee and the Post-Dispatch are doing a fine, big thing for the poor unfortunate children of our city, but success of the plan depends upon citizens bringing in old, discarded toys for which their children have no further use, or new ones.

Discarded Toys Wanted.

"Think what joy that old toy, which has lain in the basement or attic for years, will bring to the heart of some unfortunate little child who has no one to buy toys for him—no one to play Santa Claus and fill his or her stocking. You are, no doubt, buying new toys for your children this Christmas. They will not want the toys of last year, so bring them to any of the depots.

"Let's make this the biggest and best Christmas the poor children of St. Louis ever have known. Remember Toy day, next Friday."

Leonardi Makes Debut At the Ambassador

Leonid Leonardi, a musician with a European background, made his debut yesterday as general musical director of the Ambassador Theater orchestra by directing Friedemann's "Slavic Rhapsody."

Leonardi, who studied piano in Paris under Moszkowski and Busoni, won the Grand Prix of the Paris Conservatory. On the strength of this he appeared from time to time in more than 400 concerts in Europe. Later he studied composition under the direction of Vincent d'Indy, Debussy, composer of the classic "Pelleas and Melisande," and Igor Stravinsky, who contributed "Petrushka" to the modern futuristic music.

He then took up conducting under d'Indy and Camille Chevillard, late musical director of the Paris Opera. As recognition of Leonardi's ability Chevillard turned over the baton at the Paris Opera to Leonardi on many occasions, and likewise made him his special coach. Leonardi has also appeared in this country at Carnegie Hall and Aeolian Hall in New York, in Philadelphia, and with the New York Philharmonic orchestra as piano soloist.

Classical Program For Concert at Loew's

The music of such classicists as Peter Iljitch Tschaikowsky, Karl Goldmark, Sir Edward William Elgar, Percy Aldridge Grainger, Charles Wakefield Cadman and Pietro Mascagni will be heard at Loew's State Theater today, when that institution's orchestra gives its third concert at 1:30 o'clock.

Miss Samoloff, who will be the soloist, was soprano soloist with Creatore's Concert Band for four seasons, then with Vessella's Band, was chosen to sing the role of Aida in Verdi's opera of that name at the Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia. She also sang with the Metropolitan Opera Co.'s orchestra at a testimonial given Capt. Nobile, the Italian North Pole flyer, at Madison Square Garden, New York. She is a daughter of Lazar Samoloff, for many years one of the principal tenors of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

W. U. Students in Shaw Play.

The members of The Little Theatre of Washington University will present "Arms and the Man" next Wednesday and Thursday nights at the Artists' Guild. In the cast will be Marion Epstein, Wilma Schwinderer, Henrietta Newman, Eugene Dana, Robert Locatell, E. Gruner and A. Stone.

Jewish Play at Odeon Tonight.

"Mirrors of Life," a realistic Jewish play reflecting life's events and struggles, and portraying the emotions and heart throbs of a wandering and persecuted people, will be presented at the Odeon tonight by a company from New York, headed by Louis Josephson and Mollie Cooper, well-known artists of the Jewish stage.

Organ Recital at New Cathedral.

William Theodore Diebels, organist, will give a recital at the New Cathedral at 3 o'clock this afternoon. George H. Schmitz, baritone, will be the soloist. This will be the second organ recital of the season by Mr. Diebels.

USE SWAMPS AS FISH FARMS

Back-Pasture Marshes Are Ideal for Profitable Hatcheries.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 4.—Washington farmers are making their back-pasture swamps and marshes pay by converting them into fish farms, says Dean John N. Cobb of the University of Washington college of fisheries.

The commercial demand for fish has made it practicable to deepen the swamps and stock them with trout and bass, rather than attempt to reclaim the land for agriculture.

AMERICAN WORKMEN IN $17,000 HOMES PICTURED IN ENGLAND

Union Official Who Visited U. S. on Trade Mission Says Host Had Expensive Auto.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—English workmen have received a colorful picture of American prosperity from J. T. Kay, a trades union official, who visited the United States as a member of a mission to search for the secret of American high wages.

Kay told the Institute of British Foundrymen in Birmingham, how, having a letter of introduction to a Pittsburg molder, he called on the man unexpectedly to satisfy himself that the introduction was not a "catch" to deceive him. A Negro maid answered the bell of a fine house and said the molder was at dinner, but the man came out at once, resplendent in evening dress. Dining with him, also in correct attire, were his wife, brother and son.

After a pleasant evening the host brought out his 80 horse-power car, drove Kay to his hotel, mentioning, incidentally, that he had paid $17,000 for his house and had $10,000 in the bank.

"I was assured," said Kay, "that that was a fair example of a man's achievement when he tried honestly to get on."

Keep Hair Tidy, Glossy, Wavy

By Edna Wallace Hopper

One of the best things experts ever made for me is a new-type hair dress. I call it my Wave and Sheen.

It keeps hair as you wish it. If you wish fluffy hair like mine, just comb it backward and the fluff will stay. If you wish waves or curls, use combs or fingers in the usual way, and the curl will stay. If you have a Marcel wave, my Wave and Sheen will keep it. Or it keeps hair sleek and smooth for those who want it, without stickiness or grease.

It will delight you, whatever your idea on hair dress. It gives a luster, enhances the color. It keeps the hair in any style you like.

All toilet counters now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen under guarantee. The price is 75c. You will never go without it when you see what it means to your hair.

CHURCHES LAUNCH NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK TODAY

St. Louis Sermons and Sunday School Exercises Will Emphasize the Importance of Keeping Well.

SCHOOLS WILL HAVE TALKS AND MOVIES

Luncheon Club Discussions Will Feature Seven-Day Campaign Under Tuberculosis Society's Direction

Today will be observed all over the United States as Health Sunday, the initial day of Health week. In St. Louis this occasion is sponsored by the Tuberculosis Society to broadcast the educational message of promotion of health and prevention of disease, particularly emphasizing the principle of keeping people well, rather than getting them well.

Mayor Miller and Gov. Baker have issued proclamations for Health week, and the observance of Health Sunday has been indorsed by the Ministerial Alliance, Baptist Ministers' Meeting, Christian Ministers' Alliance, Congregational Ministers' Meeting, Evangelical Ministerial Association, Methodist Episcopal Ministers' Conference, Lutheran Pastoral Conference, Methodist Episcopal South Ministers' Conference, Presbyterian Ministers' Association, St. Louis Clericus and Nazarene Ministerial Alliance.

Archbishop Glennon, in issuing his commendation, said: "I am deeply interested in the work the Tubeculosis Society is doing. It has proved a very effective stay to the spread of the tuberculosis plague, as well as in building up the health of the community, but particularly the health of the children. I hope your forthcoming Christmas seal campaign will be eminently successful. Christmas stands among other things as the feast of childhood, and the Christmas seal should appeal to those who seek to make happy the children of today."

Health to Be Preached.

Many pastors today will make health the topic of their sermons. Practically all of the church bulletins will carry health messages, and approximately 70,000 pieces of health educational literature will be distributed in the Sunday schools and churches. Outside church bulletins will carry health messages this week.

Possibly the unique feature of Health week, according to Dr. Selig Simon, chairman of the Educational Committee of the Tuberculosis Society, is the health story telling hour to be held in all Sunday schools today, and in public, private, parochial and county schools throughout the week. This event will be directed by Mrs. Georgia McAdams Clifford, president of the Story Tellers' League, and more than 100 members of the league will participate in story telling. This event was introduced yesterday with a health luncheon for children at Stix, Baer & Fuller, followed by a health program in the tiny Princess Theater adjoining the tea room. Here was presented, free of charge, a playlet entitled, "Conference of the Germs," in which children took part. At the luncheon, such health dishes as carrots and spinach were served, and each was made the subject of a health story.

Health Films In Schools.

During this week every type of health activity will be promoted, according to Dr. Simon. Health talks and movies will be given in all the high schools, and many private schools for girls will have a health fashion show similar to the one presented at the annual meeting of the Society at Thursday noon. One of the Catholic high schools is planning to have a physical examination for each pupil as its special feature of Health Week observance.

Luncheon clubs also will co-operate by having health talks this week. Parent-Teacher associations, Mothers' clubs, factory groups and others have also been scheduled for talks, and health movies will be shown.

Twelve years ago, the National Tuberculosis Association, in conjunction with the American Red Cross, started Health Week as a national movement for the purpose of disseminating health truths to citizens and promoting community health. Since then it has become a part of the national Christmas Health Seal Campaign, and not only promotes better health but helps in the prevention of tuberculosis.

The local Christmas Health Seal Campaign, which was formally opened at the Annual Meeting luncheon of the Tuberculosis Society Thursday at noon, is making splendid progress, according to Dr. Simon. By Christmas Eve, it is expected more than $75,000 will have been raised from the sale of the Little Christmas Health Seals at one cent each.

Homecoming Day at Church.

"Homecoming day" will be celebrated at the West Presbyterian Church, 5872 Maple avenue, with special services this morning. "The Thirty-Eighth Anniversary of the Church" will be the subject of a sermon by the pastor, the Rev. William P. Lampe.

FARM BUREAU FEDERATION TO DISCUSS RELIEF MEASURE

Representatives of 1,000,000 Growers Will Meet at Chicago for Three Days in December.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Representatives of 1,000,000 farmers in 45 states will decide here next week what they think Congress should do for agriculture.

The American Farm Bureau Federation annual meeting Dec. 6, 7and 8, is expected to make formal demand for passage of legislation embodying the principles of the McNary Haugen farm relief bill of the last session.

Agricultural unrest of the last year is expected to take form in various ideas and theories, and the principal subject before the gathering will be how agriculture may be properly adjusted to the economic life of the country.

Heading the list of speakers is Frank O. Lowden, in the forefront of those who plead for the farmers' political rights. The other speakers include teachers, business men, county agents, editors, industrial engineers, and government and marketing officials.

"The foremost subject in the minds of agriculture and in the minds of the business people today," said Sam H. Thompson, president of the Federation, "is that of proper adjustment of the agricultural industry in our economic life. Farm relief is not any longer considered as an emergency matter. It is viewed now from the standpoint of American agriculture."

Ways and means of combatting the European corn borer, farm fire prevention methods, home and community development, and boys and girls club work, are some of the other pressing subjects which will come before the convention for discussion.

MONTE CARLO TO TAX IDLERS

Admission at Casino for Nonplayers Is Doubled.

By the Associated Press.
MONTE CARLO, Dec. 4.—Thousands of curious Americans who wish to see the inner workings of the casino without risking any of their money on the tables are responsible for a rise in the admission price from 5 to 10 francs.

The casino authorities contend that around-the-world tours, student parties, and especially the class of tourists who travel third-cabin class and wish to see everything, are so cluttering up the gaming rooms with non-gamblers that the rise in price was a necessity. Coincidentally came the announcement of the installation of automatic checking machines. The new machines check each article for 1 franc.

W. C. T. U. Monthly Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow at Luccock Lodge, 3628 Delmar boulevard. Mrs. M. D. Anderson will lead a devotional service. Gus O. Nations, former chief prohibition agent here, will speak.

Minister to Speak on Art.

Cancer Curable, Not Contagious, And at Times Is Preventable by Examinations, Dr. Taylor Says

President of American Society for Control of the Disease Points Out How Cases May be Reduced.

ONE-THIRD or one-fourth of all cancer could be prevented if women would go to a physician at the first sign of cancer of the breast, Dr. Howard Canning Taylor, president of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, declared in an address at a luncheon of the St. Louis branch Thursday at the Coronado Hotel.

Despite repeated failures to find the cause of cancer and despite indications that it is on the increase, Dr. Taylor held out hope for enormous reduction in the cancer death rates by educating the public to five fundamentals:

Cancer is curable.

It is not contagious.

It is not directly hereditary.

Certain cancers are preventable.

Examination every six months of women past middle age would result in the prevention and cure of a vastly greater proportion than at present.

"The average life of a cancer case, very roughly, is two years," Dr. Taylor said. "That would mean that we have 200,000 to 300,000 in the United States now in various stages. Each year practically 150,000 deaths occur, and there are 150,000 new cases. Those figures are rather large.

Found at All Ages.

"Cancer comes right home to us. We all meet it. It isn't limited to poor people, to people who are not well nourished. It is not a disease of advanced years, but as one gets along in years, there is a greater possibility of having it. We see cancer at all ages. We see it in children, although rarely. Adults—people who have the greatest responsibility and are most important in the community and family—are the ones who are most apt to have cancer.

"A point often raised is in regard to the increase in cancer—a difficult question to answer definitely, because it is very hard to get accurate cancer statistics. There is no question that we have certain types of cancer today we didn't have in years past. Certain cases as a result of radium and X-ray; occupational cases of men working in oil, etcetera.

"One of the most frequent types of cancer is cancer of the stomach, frequently caused by an ulcer, the result of indigestion. We eat more highly refined things, take less exercise and do everything possible to add to the task of digestion.

"The cancer problem really gets down to this: We have 150,000 deaths a year, one in six women and one in eight men beyond 45. It occurs among people when they are of the greatesteconomic value to the community and is to a certain extent undoubtedly on the increase, but not to the extent indicated by the death rates. That is the problem as we have it in practically every civilized country. What is being done about the problem?

Three Activities Are Related.

"There are three activities, more or less related, at the same time more or less distinct—first, research work; second, care of the cancer patient; third, educational work, which is what this society is trying to do.

"Research work: Looking for the cause of cancer. The cause has not been found, is not in sight, may be found tomorrow, may not be found in 50 years, and the thing more important is that finding the cause does not bring a cure. We know the cause of tuberculosis, but we have never obtained any satisfactory cure for tuberculosis. While the cancer research laboratories have not found the cause, they have found out a great deal about it and know much more now than they did two years ago, a fund of knowledge that is constantly increasing along practical lines, not purely theoretical, but along lines that possibly will add to the comfort and cure of cancer patients.

"The third activity, the educational side, is, I believe, the most important one today. The research work is fine, we have ample hospitals, plenty of room for cancer cases, volume may be limited when it comes to cases that are incurable, but the way to bet better results is not by having more hospitals, but getting patients to the hospital in time.

"That cancer is curable may seem a self-evident fact. One has no idea how frequently cases come to us too late, and when we ask why the patients didn't come sooner, they reply, 'I was afraid it was cancer, and I knew if it was, nothing could be done.' It is a very prevalent idea. The first thing we must teach is that cancer is curable.

Declares Some Preventable.

"Also we try to teach that certain cancers are preventable. They are the result of irritation. Cancer of the tongue and cheek is very often found directly opposite a sharp tooth or ragged tooth, and it is fair to assume cancer was the result of that sharp tooth. Cancers of the gums and mouth undoubtedly can be prevented.

"Another important thing is the periodic examination. A competent physician will recognize cancer months earlier than the woman patient would recognize it herself. In other words, if we can teach women to go once in six months and have an examination of the breast, we are going to cure many more cancer cases. It is not necessary to have an examination of all

CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE ITS FREEDOM FROM DEBT

The congregation of the Metropolitan A. M. E. Zion Church, a Negro church at Lucas and Garrison avenues, will celebrate the retirement of the church's indebtedness with public services tomorrow night. The church was purchased 11 years ago from the Union Methodist Episcopal Church for $55,000 and the plan of financing called for payment in 12 years. Last Sunday the congregation voted to redeem the two outstanding notes.

Tomorrow night's ceremonies will be preceded by a parade, headed by First Regiment Band of the Knights of Pythias, from the church to Jefferson avenue and Morgan street and return. Mayor Miller has been invited to speak at the ceremonies.

SEA LANES KEPT SAFE BY VIGILANT PATROL

Radio Used in Hunting Down and Removing Menaces to Navigation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Few landlubbers realize the extent and vigilance of the sea patrol that guards against menaces to commercial shipping. Icebergs, floating debris, drifting buoys, derelicts and fogs are constant menaces to navigation against which war must be waged. The nerve center of operations is the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department.

This bureau tries first of all to keep a finger on the whereabouts of all dangers to shipping about which it is imperative, in safety's cause, to know. An elaborate intelligence service, enlisting co-operation of hydrographic services of other countries, assists the bureau to chart known impediments to water traffic and send out warnings.

Guarding Sea Lanes.

Constant communication with ships at sea, advising them of newly sighted menaces to navigation, is maintained. The bureau supplies all navigators with information and asks their reciprocation by advising it of the longitude and latitude of icebergs and other straylings. It immediately disseminates the news over all ocean highways.

Meanwhile, the Navy and Coast Guard annihilation squadrons are notified and patrols sent to visit the scenes of drifters and remove them.

A task which the Coast Guard tackled last July was to find and destroy 37 steel cylindrical pontoons which were lost from a barge that broke adrift off the coast of North Carolina.

Drifting Raft Towed In.

A target raft which had to be abandoned during a hurricane while it was in tow caused policemen of the main some trouble. After a 10-day search it was found, the position signaled to the Hydrographic Bureau and six destroyers were sent to look for it. The minesweeper "Rail" eventually picked up the tow, and hauled it into port.

Reconnaissance patrols are maintained along water highways in spring to look out for errant icebergs. The patrols are withdrawn June 30 when it is assumed the shipping lanes are safe.

Invaluable service is given by radio from the hydrographic office for the guidance of open-sea navigators who may lack knowledge of conditions on approaching American shores. Radio compass bearings are broadcast to aid them.

TWINS DIVIDE WORKING DAYS

Even Employer Cannot Tell Lord Ruthven's Daughters Apart.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Working in turns, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon, the Hon. Margaret and Hon. Alison Hore-Ruthven, twin daughters of Lord Ruthven, are acting as society mannequins in a West End store.

The twins are well known in society and are so much alike that even their own friends hardly know them when apart. As they dress exactly alike, even down to the minutest detail, the "Ruthven Twins" have a good deal of fun. The store authorities do not know which one works in the morning and which in the afternoon. They make no complaint about it, however, as the young women are quite efficient and possess ideal figures for showing off modern gowns.

CANCER CURABLE, NOT CONTAGIOUS, AND AT TIMES PREVENTABLE

the internal organisms, but I very strongly urge the routine examination of persons after certain ages.

"We do not want, nor do we try to teach a lay audience the signs and symptoms of cancer in certain organs, merely signs that should send them to a physician for examination. Let us take one organ as an example and let me tell you what the result would be. We know more about cancer of the breast than any other organ. We would like to teach women that if they have any lump in the breast they should go to a physician for an examination immediately. Between one-fourth and one-third of all cancers could be prevented.

Fifteen Per Cent Cured Now.

"As it is now, we are curing 15 per cent of breast cancer. Under ideal conditions, which are within our reach, if we can educate people to see a physician promptly and make surgeons operate promptly, 75 per cent could be cured. We ought to be doing about five times as well as we are doing today and what is true of cancer of the breast is true of other organs.

"Face and skin cancer ought to be cured 100 per cent. I doubt whether we are curing more than 90 per cent. There are three things we try to accomplish. We wish, first, to cure the patient; if we can't cure we want to prolong life and we want to make life comfortable while it lasts. In the ideal condition that we ought to obtain, the hopeless group of 50 per cent would not exist; 75 per cent would be cured and 25 per cent have their lives very much prolonged, the period when they know they are not going to get well greatly shortened, and their period of pain and discomfort cut to weeks instead of months."

GOITRE

A new treatment for goitre has been developed by the W. T. B. Laboratories, 912 Y. M. C. A. Bldg., Battle Creek, Michigan, which many believe will prove to be the long-sought specific for this unsightly and dangerous disease. Many of the largest and most hideous goitres begin to recede almost in a day. They gradually get smaller, and in many cases are entirely gone in a few weeks. It is equally efficient in cases of toxic and so-called inside goitre. The treatment is harmless and anyone can use it with perfect safety at home.

A 48-page illustrated booklet on the Causes, Dangers and Non-Surgical Treatment of Goitre, issued by the Laboratories, fully explains the new treatment and will be mailed free to any interested sufferer.

DAVIS WARNS OF BLIND DELUSION ON NATIONAL DEFENSE

Plans Mapped Out Have Been Only Partly Executed, Secretary of War's Annual Report Declares.

OPPOSES TRANSFER OF CIVIL ENGINEERS

Thinks New Waterway and Harbor Projects Should Wait Upon Those Already Under Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A warning against "blindly deluding ourselves" on the subject of national defense was sounded today by Secretary Davis of the War Department in his annual report.

There has been only partial execution of the plan of defense mapped out in 1920, he said, and even the maintenance of the army on its present basis "requires the appropriation of more funds each year."

"With the exception of a slight restoration of the supply of ammunition at the expense of a reduction in personnel, and the inauguration of the so-called housing program," Secretary Davis continued, "conditions have changed but little since the rendition of my last annual report."

Discusses Peacetime Issues.

The Secretary discussed at great length the peacetime uses of the army, ranging from the running of barge lines to teaching enlisted men professions or trades into which they go on completing their "hitch" in the army. Even the Air Corps came in for treatment from its commercial, rather than its combat aspects.

Reviewing the civil side of the work of the army engineer corps, Davis flatfootedly disapproved proposals to transfer these duties out of the army.

"In the long run the present system of administering our rivers and harbors activities is the most economical," he said. "We, in this case, achieve the end so often urged of making our peacetime army more fully 'pay its way.'"

As an additional consideration Davis pointed out that the fact that army engineers "are officers of the army, whose normal promotion and pay cannot be advanced or retarded by political influences, leaves them unaffected by such considerations in their actions."

Improvements in Waterways.

In discussing waterway and harbor developments, the War Secretary laid down the principle that new projects should be held in abeyance until completion of those on which large expenditures already have been made. It would take $225,000,000 and at least five years to round out the principal developments now in progress, he said, "even if it were practicable to make such amounts available." He used as an example the Ohio River development, approximately 85 per cent complete, but "capable of only about 15 per cent of the service which may be expected from the completed project."

Inland waterways now carry about 200,000,000 tons of cargo annually, said the Secretary, at an economic saving of "at least $150,000,000 a year." He described flood-control conditions on many rivers as "chaotic."

The Muscle Shoals power plant was said by the Secretary to be, as a whole, 93 per cent complete. He made no suggestion as to its ultimate disposition.

Turning to the Inland Waterways Corporation, he described it as a "temporary expedient," to be continued "only until private capital is prepared to assume this service which is so vital to national development."

Barracks Conditions Worse.

Davis recalled his previous remarks on the necessity of removing army personnel from "dilapidated barracks and quarters of war-time construction."

Suffice it to say that conditions are, naturally, worse than was the case a year ago," he said.

About $7,000,000 has become available for building purposes from the sale of surplus property, but a total of $90,000,000 in surplus has been either sold or transferred to other Government departments.

"Where property is transferred to another department of the Government," he said, "this (housing) construction fund should receive an equivalent transfer credit from the appropriation of that department."

The Secretary put his foot down on the return to duty of officers who resigned to seek civilian employment.

"The War Department is strongly opposed to the reappointment of officers who have sought other fields of activity at their own volition, or who were discharged on account of reduction in the commissioned strength of the army," he said. "It is even more strongly opposed to the reappointment of officers who were discharged or resigned as a result of unfavorable classification of their military qualifications. Such reappointments are unfair to those who have remained in the service."

Her Hair Fairly SPARKLES Now!

The woman who knows what to do after waving her hair doesn't fear the effect of hot irons. Nor of frequent washings. A few drops of Danderine—on comb or towel—and the hair is soft and lustrous, and behaves beautifully.

A bit of Danderine rubbed lightly into the scalp, is the one sure way to dissolve every particle of dandruff. But a few drops more make a dressing that is simply marvelous. A sheen that rivals brilliantine, and no grease! Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

MOVEMENT ON TO RAISE $100,000 FOR MGR. DEMPSEY

Money to Be in Nature of Christmas Gift to Enable Him to Continue His Philanthropies.

WORK OF POPULAR PRIEST REVIEWED

Committee to Accept Contributions, Headed by Bennett C. Clark, Opens Downtown Office.

A movement is under way to raise a $100,000 Christmas gift for Monsignor Timothy Dempsey to enable him to continue and expand his philanthropies, the first of which, his Workinmen's Hotel, was established Dec. 20, 1906.

Bennett C. Clark, one of the founders of the American Legion and son of the late Champ Clark, has been selected as chairman of a committee of representative men and women working toward that end. The movement originated among a group of Father Tim's personal friends, without his knowledge. At first it was planned to tender a testimonial dinner, but finally it was decided a more practical tribute would be a gift of a substantial sum, somewhat in the nature of an endowment.

Suprised at Responses.

"We have been surprised at the response to the suggestion that something be done toward recognizing the splendid service Father Dempsey has rendered to the community," Clark said. "We knew he was popular and well known, but the letters that have poured in, as the result of a preliminary announcement several weeks ago, were so spontaneous and enthusiastic, and came from such widely divergent social strata, that the committee decided to give everyone an opportunity to share in the testimonial.

"It is evident that Father Tim has a warm place in the heart of St. Louis, not only because of his relief work among those who cannot be reached by the ordinary charities, and his successful efforts to settle many labor troubles, but because of the wonderful personality and unfailing enthusiasm of the man.

"We plan to show Father Tim what St. Louis thinks of him while he is yet alive, and able to take part in the demonstration."

Summary of His Work.

A summary by the committee of the work of Monsignor Dempsey among the poor and unfortunate, follows:

Established his hostelry for homeless workingmen 20 years ago. During that time he has housed more than 100,000 men of every race and creed.

He has no social service workers, and attends to each case himself.

He has amicably adjusted 46 labor disputes, involving members of the Building Trades Council and Central Trades and Labor Union and Employers' Association. Strikes settled included those at St. Mary's Hospital, Shriners' Hospital and Liberty Hospital.

Influence on Convicts.

He has had convicts paroled to him from prison, and none was ever returned.

Hundreds of men have been cured of roving disposition through his influence, and have settled down.

He has had 181 men interred in his cemetery lot, thus saving them from Potter's field.

Since 1906 he has opened: Day nursery for children of poor working women, caring for 40 to 153 children daily; Working Girls' Hotel, with accommodations for 150 women and girls; Convalescents' Home, with capacity of 25, where women leaving hospitals are cared for at little or no cost until able to return to work; White Cross Crusade, which collects waste paper, etc., proceeds from which are used to help undernourished children and supply their parents with clothes, furniture and fuel at nothing or nominal cost.

Pastor for 28 Years.

Father Dempsey is 59 years old. He was educated for the priesthood in Ireland and came to the United States shortly after he was ordained. He came to St. Louis in 1891, and later was sent to Moberly, Mo., where he was pastor for two years. In 1898 he became pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Sixth and Biddle streets, and has remained there ever since, refusing offers that would take him elsewhere.

The executive committee, in charge of Father Tim's Christmas gift, comprises Clark as chairman, State Senator Michael Kinney, secretary, Isaac Gradwohl, treasurer, and Arthur Fitzsimmons, Isaac Hedges, George S. Johns, John J. Nangle, Pat Price and Samuel Rosenfeld. Assisting is a large committee of sponsors. Headquarters have been established at 1508 Federal Commerce Trust Building, to which contributions may be sent.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH TO STAR WITH LADY STRATHMORE

Daughter of Duke of York to Remain in England in Parents' Absence.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — Princess Elizabeth, infant daughter of the Duke and Duchess of York, already is the subject of gossip. Everybody has wanted to know where the royal baby would stay while her parents are on their tour of Australia. It was generally assumed that the baby's grandfather and grandmother, King George and Queen Mary, would watch over her in the nursery at Buckingham Palace—the precaution being taken to keep the young Princess far enough away from the King so as not to wake him at night, for King George is a light sleeper.

The royal slumbers will not be disturbed, however, for Lady Strathmore, mother of the Duchess, is to take charge of her granddaughter.

Lady Cavan and Lady Doris Vyner, who will accompany the Duchess of York as ladies-in-waiting, each leave small children behind. Lady Cavan's daughter, whose name also is Elizabeth, is 2 years old, and Lady Doris has a son, born this year, as well as a daughter.

The battleship Renown is being prepared for the Australian trip. The Duke and Duchess will use the suite which the Prince of Wales had on his tours.

Speaks at Vesper Services.

Miss Elinor Stafford Millar, an Australian social service worker, will address the Young Women's Christian Association at a vesper service at 5 p. m. today at its building, 1411 Locust street.

CENNES CASTLE TUMBLING

th Place of Henry V. Going to Decay for Lack of Funds.

e Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Vincennes Cas- death place of Henry V. of gland and one of the finest ex- ples of fourteenth century military architecture in the world, is falling to pieces for lack of funds to keep it in repair.

Visitors long have not been permitted in the covered gallery around the keep because of the dangerous condition of the structure. The chapel is a sort of damp cave, with a large hole in the ceiling. A broken window frame lies on the floor of the room where the victor of Agincourt died. The Government appropriations are only sufficient for the upkeep of that portion of the castle in which is housed a World War museum.

GREAT IRON SHIPPING YEAR

Last of Season's Cargoes Moving on Lake Superior.

By the Associated Press.

DULUTH, Minn., Dec. 5. — A small fleet of storm-beaten freighters is struggling down the lakes this month with the final cargoes of the greatest shipping season the Lake Superior iron mining district has had since 1920. Preliminary figures of mining experts estimate the 1926 tonnage will reach 59,000,000 tons, the fifth largest in the history of the mining area which produces 60 per cent of the world's supply of iron ore.

One iron mine, the Mahoning at Hibbing, the largest open pit property in the world, shipped 2,500,000 tons of ore this year, making its total 5,000,000 tons for 1925 and 1926. Suspension of shipping activities means no great decrease in activity on the iron ranges, however, as then the underground mines speed up production, bringing up ore for stock piles to be ready next May.

HOLDS TALKING SPEED RECORD

Leon Perrier, French Colonial Minister Speaks 190 Words a Minute.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Leon Perrier, Minister of the Colonies, who holds the French parliamentary speed talking record of 190 words a minute, is the terror of stenographers. Louis Marin, Minister of Pensions, runs him close with 185, followed by M. Albert Sarraut, the young and active Minister of the Interior, with 180.

Premier Poincare, whose delivery is smooth and even, does about 160. As to Aristide Briand, whose orations are likened to cello solos, his art is made up of fine shades and parentheses, and he never exceeds 145 to 150 words to the minute.

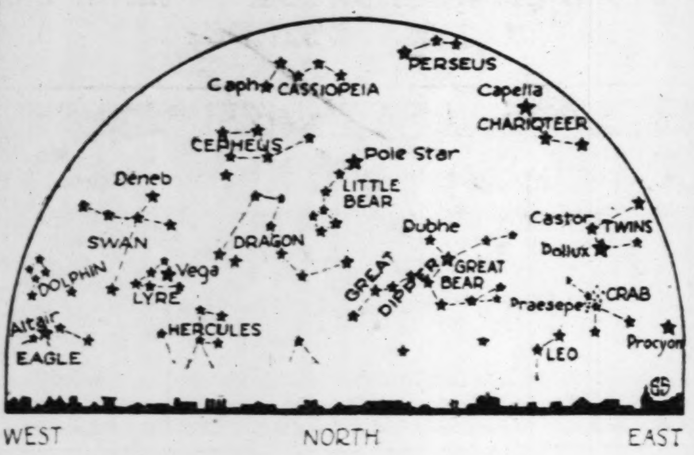
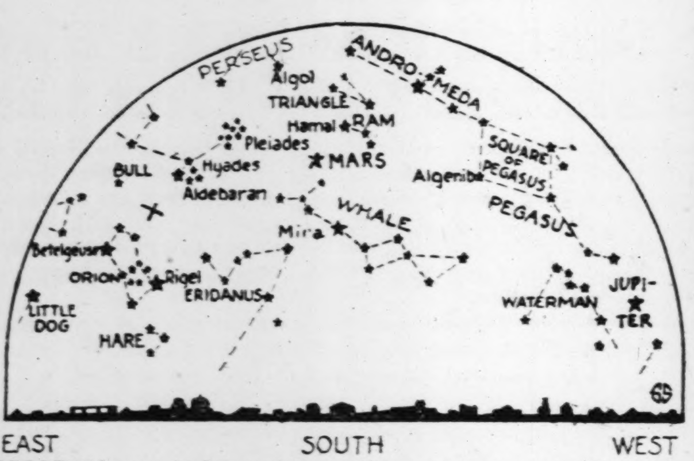
December Evening Skies

Unusual Chance to Photograph Meteors—Mira, "The Wonderful" Now Bright—Planet Mars Still Easily Visible.





HOLD this map in front of you and face north or south. The upper or lower map (depending on which way you face) shows the sky as it appears at 8:30 p. m., local time, on Dec. 1; at 7:30 p. m. on the 15th, or at 6:30 p. m. on the 31st. The cross on the lower map near the Bull shows the place to point your camera in order to photograph the Geminid meteors on Dec. 10 to 13.

By JAMES STOKLEY.

WITH the coming of December there comes the best opportunity for the amateur star gazer who is also a photographer to combine his hobbies for the purpose of making meteor photographs, which will not only be of interest to him, but may even be of scientific value to astronomers. This can be done during the meteor shower that occurs about Dec. 10 to 13, known to astronomers as the Geminids, because they seem to come from a point in the constellation of Gemini, the twins.

The Geminid meteors are not as bright as some other showers, when seen with the eye, but they seem to affect the photographic plate more. At the Harvard College Observatory, in Cambridge, Mass., where the skies are photographed every clear night, many meteors have been recorded. Dr. Willard J. Fisher has been searching over the old files of negatives of the heavens, and has found 281 meteor trails already, but only the Geminids pile up on any one plate. The rest are scattered among various other showers.

Better Conditions This Year.

Unfortunately, Dec. 10 to 13 is apt to be a time of cloudy weather, and as not even the best telescope can see through the clouds, bad weather has made it impossible to obtain photographs in a number of years. And again, when it is clear, and the moon is full, there is a general illumination

IS YOUR COLD IN THE HEAD DUE TO SINUS TROUBLE?

Irrigation of the Nose With "SinuSeptic" Aids Drainage of Infected Antrum and Other Sinuses.

Many who have frequent colds in the head very rarely suspect troublesome Sinuses (cavities draining into the nose). The largest Sinus, and one of the most frequently infected by cold germs, is known as the Antrum of Highmore. People with chronic or acute antrum infections will be amazed at the immediate results obtained with SinuSeptic in ridding the nose of the accumulation of germ-laden mucous secretions, and the discharge of pus that often accompanies even a common head cold. SinuSeptic reduces the congestion and inflammation of the mucous membrane, and thus aids in starting free drainage of the infected Sinus. Try it today. It's remarkable how many people are reporting immediate relief from the aches and pains in the head, and near the eyes and ears, after using SinuSeptic applied with hot water in a nasal douche. On sale at the Walgreen drug stores, Wolff-Wilson and others. Guaranteed by American Drug Corporation, St. Louis.

There is a quick way to sell that car — through the Post-Dispatch Automobile Columns. Phone your order or leave it with your nearest druggist.

Many who have frequent colds in the head very rarely suspect troublesome Sinuses (cavities draining into the nose). The largest Sinus, and one of the most frequently infected by cold germs, is known as the Antrum of Highmore. People with chronic or acute antrum infections will be amazed at the immediate results obtained with SinuSeptic in ridding the nose of the accumulation of germ-laden mucous secretions, and the discharge of pus that often accompanies even a common head cold. SinuSeptic reduces the congestion and inflammation of the mucous membrane, and thus aids in starting free drainage of the infected Sinus. Try it today. It's remarkable how many people are reporting immediate relief from the aches and pains in the head, and near the eyes and ears, after using SinuSeptic applied with hot water in nasal douche. On sale at the Walgreen drug stores, Wolff-Wilson and others. Guaranteed by American ne Corporation, St. Louis.

CHANCE TO PHOTOGRAPH METEORS THIS MONTH

of the entire sky which hinders the observer, because long photographic exposures cannot be made without fogging the plates.

This month, however, the moon will be practically out of the way, for it will be at first quarter on the twelfth, which means that it sets at midnight, so that late in the evening the meteors may be photographed, if weather permits. As it may be clear in one part of the country when it is cloudy elsewhere, Dr. Fisher requests that as many people as possible attempt the photography of the meteors, on any of these nights, from the 10th to 12th.

"For this purpose," says Dr. Fisher, "fast lenses are recommended; lenses slower than f.6 (about the speed of a good "anastigmat" lens) may have luck, but the prospects of success diminish rapidly with small stops. The meteors are not frequent early in the night, and no one is urged to begin before 10 or 11 p. m., local time. Most observers should point their cameras at some definite altitude and fix them there. Exactly overhead, at the zenith, is the most convenient, though the Harvard Geminid trails have been caught mostly between Taurus and Orion. (This point is indicated by a cross in the accompanying map).

How to Work Camera.

"The camera should be firmly fixed, so as not to be shaken by the wind. The diaphragm should be opened wide, and the focusing should be careful. Set the shutter on T ("Time") and open at a moment noted by the watch, which should be recorded immediately. Let the exposure go on for an hour, then close the shutter, noting the time; change the plate or film, open at a noted moment, expose for an hour, close at a noted moment, and so on until dawn."

Even if you are not enthusiastic enough to continue this until dawn as Dr. Fisher suggests, you might at least try it for one or two hours, and you may catch something. Develop the films or plates, or have them developed, in the ordinary manner and then examine them for curved trails made by stars, or straight trails made by meteors. "If you send the developed films or plates to the Harvard Observatory," says Dr. Fisher, "they will be carefully searched. Address 'Meteors, Harvard College Observatory, Cambridge, Mass.,' and send a letter stating the place where the exposures were made, the region of the sky aimed at, and the time of opening and closing the shutter for each negative." In this way you may help astronomers learn something more about these fiery bullets that are continually being shot at the earth from outer space.

Variable Star in South.

An interesting object now visible can be seen in the southern sky. That is Mira, the "wonderful," known scientifically as Omicron Ceti, in the constellation of Cetus the whale, shown on the accompanying map. If we watch this star regularly, we will find out why it is called "The Wonderful." In August, 1596, an amateur astronomer by the name of Fabricius saw in Cetus a star that he had not noticed before, but it soon faded from view. He supposed that it was a noval, a "new star" such as occasionally flashes out from previous obscurity. Though it did reappear, unlike a nova, it was not until many years later, as a result of observations made between 1648 and 1662, that the Polish astronomer Hevelius solved the mystery, and showed that the star was a variable—one that more or less regularly becomes alternately bright and faint. Since that time many variable stars have been discovered and are regularly watched by a large band of amateur astronomers but Mira remains perhaps the most famous.

Second in Diameter.

Mira has the distinction of being the second largest known star, for another Mount Wilson astronomer, Francis G. Pease, with the aid of the great 100-inch telescope, the largest in the world, has shown that its diameter is about 250,000,000 miles, a size so vast that if it were a hollow shell the earth and the sun could both be placed within it and the earth would be able to revolve around the sun in the same orbit as it does now.

Only one other star, Antares, in the constellation of the Scorpion, is known to be larger. It is about 400,000,000 miles in diameter.

Among the planets, Mars is still prominent in the evening sky, and in fact is the only planet now well placed for viewing, for Jupiter, which was a brilliant object all summer, is now low in the west shortly after sunset. On the fifteenth, Mars is directly south at 8:34 p. m., local time. It has already receded considerably from the earth since it was closest in October, so on this date it is 60,920,000 miles from us. But it is still well placed for observation, and astronomers are now busy watching it, as they will for many months.

On Dec. 22 at 9:34 a. m., Eastern standard time, the sun enters the zodiacal sign of Capricornus, and winter officially commences.

Address on Public Safety.

Col. A. B. Barber, director of the First and Second National Conferences on Street and Highway Safety, held in Washington, D. C., will address a public safety meeting under auspices of the St. Louis Safety Council, at Hotel Statler Friday evening, Dec. 10. He will speak on "Legislation—A Great Factor in Solving the Traffic Accident Problem." Several representatives of the Missouri Association on Street and Highway Safety will also address the meeting.

olorful Replica of Orange Grove Is Setting for Miss Catlin's Debut

r. and Mrs. Daniel K. Catlin Give Dinner Dance for Their Daughter at the St. Louis Country Club.

HE golden beauty of a Southern California orange grove was woven with the delicacy of an artist into the arrange- for the dinner-dance given Friday at the St. Louis Country Club by Mr. Mrs. Daniel K. Catlin of 41 Westmore- place, to mark the formal entrance of attractive daughter, Miss Gertrude, into social world.

deed, a niche borrowed from the famous country in full fruitage and trans- into the spacious rooms of the house could have been no more realistic were the scores of trees which lined the and doorways, their boughs covered with leaves reaching to the ceiling and ted with thousands of fragrant oranges. the reception hall was built a replica of orange store house, typical of Southern fornia, its green-trimmed exterior ed with luscious fruit, and the mellow from within giving evidence of a good- ore.

e receiving party—Miss Catlin, her pa-, her guest, Miss Anne Tudor of Boston; aunt, Mrs. Frederick Winthrop Allen of York, and her grandmother, Mrs. Daniel Sr., stood in the lounge of the club in er of tiny Japanese orange plants, while stood a lighted Dutch windmill with reeping over its windows and the broad of its fan revolving as if in the wind. center of the adjoining dining room appeared as a clearing in such a grove in the evening, with long tables for the dinner. At Miss Catlin's table for 90 guests, 20 great low bowls of tropical fruits were alternated with deep yellow candles, and the same decoration obtained on the smaller tables scattered about. The lights were encased in orange-shaped yellow paper, with twigs of leaves giving them the appearance of clusters of fruit against the sky. Back of the debutante table was a smaller windmill, built apparently against the side of a moss covered slope.

After the theater hour, Bobbe Arnst, dancing ingenue with "Le Maire's Affairs" which played here last week, and Ted Lewis and his musical clowns entertained the party with songs and music, while some of the guests sat in the orchestra alcove and others grouped themselves on the floor.

Miss Catlin was gowned beautifully in cloth of gold and rhinestones, while her mother wore white satin and touches of silver. Miss Catlin is one of the most socially prominent of this year's buds and is one of the 12 of that group to be invited to the Junior League. One evidence of her popularity was the enormous number of gorgeous flowers arranged in clusters and baskets and sent to her by admiring friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brookings Wallace of St. Louis Country Club grounds gave a dinner dance last night at the Florissant Valley Country Club to compliment their debutante niece, Miss Anne Kennard Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brookings Wallace of 4876 Pershing avenue. The guests numbered 70 debutantes and their escorts. Miss Wallace will be honor guest at a dinner dance to be given by another uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon B. Wallace of the Price road at the St. Louis Country Club Dec. 11. Her formal debut will be made at a party which her parents will give for her Dec. 17, at the same club. Miss Anne Marvel of Wilmington, Del., will arrive Thursday to be Miss Wallace's guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles McClure Clark of Hortense place departed yesterday for New York to sail Dec. 11 for Naples, Italy, where they will be met by their son-in-law and their daughter, Marchese and Marchesa Giovanni Carignani, who will accompany them to Palermo, Sicily. They will later visit in Rome. Mrs. Clark plans to remain through the spring and may spend the summer in Europe with her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Kennerly of Portland place shared honors at a farewell dinner given Thursday night by Mr. and Mrs. Sterling E. Edmunds of 11 Lenox place at the St. Louis Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Kennerly and their two daughters will depart the middle of the month for a world cruise.

200 Guests Enjoy Night Club Premier At Magnus Home

Novelty in Decorations Include Chef in Black and White Costume, Who Releases Live Blackbirds From Gigantic Pie.

EDWARD MAGNUS presided last night as the smiling, genial host at the "World's Premier of Eddy's Night Club," a housewarming party given by Mr. and Mrs. Magnus at their home, 4 Hortense place.

The house, recently purchased, has been entirely redecorated, and its lovely furnishings, new throughout, were given to Mr. and Mrs. Magnus by his mother, Mrs. J. W. Loeb of Chicago, who came to St. Louis for the party and assisted in receiving. The guests, numbering 200, used the side entrance to facilitate arrangements, and after greeting their hosts in the reception hall, where they were surrounded by flowers sent them from all parts of the country, and inspecting the house were ushered downstairs, where a huge purple poster heralded an entrance to the "club."

The ballroom, which formed the principal setting, has been paneled with striking effect in black shot with gold, and pink marble with a colorful Chinese panel opposite the entrance. Casement curtains of gold cloth cover the windows and the sconces are glass covered wrought iron brackets on which appear Chinese figures. Mirror mosaics glitter at intervals on the walls, about the marble floor are tables each seating four, covered as are the chairs, with bizarre chintzes.

their backs, attended to the comfort of the guests, taking their orders from "Me-Noos" at each place. Chefs in black and white checked uniforms and hats dispensed luscious food from a buffet table in another room. Great platters of homs, lobsters and turkeys, decorated by a master chef, various hors-d'oeurves, and a pie adorned with silver leaves, containing four and twenty blackgirds though, contrary to the legend, the birds, instead of being baked, were alive, and were released into the room at a signal.

Noisemakers by the bushel basketful provided additional amusement, and a vaudeville performance of singing and dancing acts culled from current attractions at the local theaters was typical of the fashionable night clubs in New York.

Dozens of telegrams of congratulation and advice have come to Mr. and Mrs. Magnus from proprietors of night clubs in Chicago and New York, including one from Texas Guinan, whose "300" club on Fifty-fourth street, New York, has figured in the news recently.

The out of town guests at Eddy's Night Club in addition to his mother were her son, Adolph Magnus, also of Chicago; her daughter, Mrs. Sidney Berg of Pasadena, Cal., who is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Nicolaus, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Book and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Book of eDtroit, who are at Hotel Chase. Breakfast was served at 6 o'clock this morning.

The menu, on the cover of which appear sketches of the dancing figures in a cabaret and a group of men singing the familiar "Sweet Adeline," is printed below:

Engagements And Weddings Of the Week

Miss Louise Landers Becomes Bride in Church Ceremony and Reception Follows at Home of Parents.

The wedding of Miss Louise Landers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gilliam Landers of 5510 Waterman avenue, and James Bowles Settles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram C. Settles, took place last evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, in St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Ellen Baird Wagner of Pittsburg, Pa., was the matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. David Werter Caughlan Jr., Mrs. Orson Lloyd Curtis, Miss Louise Williamson and Miss Winifred Logeman. They wore gowns of georgette in rainbow hues, made on straight lines, with an uneven hem line. A rhinestone ornament held the crushed girdle in place. The attendants wore strings of pearls, the gift of the bride, and silver slippers and flesh-colored hose.

Paul Dudley Sanford served as best man, with the following as groomsmen and ushers: Alexander W. Hewitt, Theodore V. Logeman, John Gilbert Heinberg and David Werter Caughlan Jr.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in ivory velvet, made on straight lines, the only trimming being an exquisite ornament of pearls. A long velvet train, lined with georgette, hung from her shoulders. Her veil of tulle was arranged with a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouqet of lilies of the valley.

White chrysanthemums, palms, smilax, California Woodward ferns and cathedral candles made an artistic decoration for the church. A wedding reception was held at the Landers' home. The stringed orchestra in the sun room was hidden by tropical palms and ferns and smilax and pink roses adorned the living room where the bridal party received.

The bride is a graduate of National Park Seminary, Washington, D. C., and Washington University, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, and has traveled extensively in both this country and in Europe. Mr. Settles is a graduate of Tennessee Military Institute and Washington University, where he was a member of Sigma Nu Fraternity.

The marriage of Miss Alyce J. Hennessy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Hennessy of Auburn, N. Y., and Lawrence Donner Toney, artist and illustrator of New York, son of Thomas Benton Toney of St. Louis, took place Saturday evening, Nov. 27, in the rectory of St. Mary's Church, in Auburn, the Rev. John J. McGrath, pastor of that church, performing the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. John Newcomb of Seneca Falls, N. Y.

The bride wore a white velvet bouffant dress trimmed with duchess lace. Her veil of Italian lace, an heirloom in the family. She carried an old fashioned bouquet.

Dr. Frances Hennessy of Syracuse, N. Y., a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore green chiffon velvet and a silver hat. The bridesmaid was another sister, Miss Jane Hennessy, who was attired in orchid chiffon velvet trimmed with gold. Lester Greenwood of New York was the best man and Leroy Curry and Harry Curry were the ushers.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents. The house was decorated in crysanthemums. An orchestra was in attendance throughout the evening.

Late Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. Toney departed for a wedding trip, after which they will make their home at 66 Ludlow road, Westford, Conn., where the bridegroom will establish his art studio.

Mrs. Toney is a graduate of the Auburn Academic High School and the Rochester, N. Y., Dental School as well as a former student at Syracuse University summer school. Mr. Toney is a graduate of the University of Illinois and of the Chicago Art Institute.

Out-of-town guests present at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. T. Ellsworth Toney of Windermere place, St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. Warren Hayes and Miss Marjorie Hutchinson, all of New York.

The engagement of Miss Josephine Shumate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Shumate, of 5428 Vernon avenue, to Milton Johnson, son of Mrs. Carrie B. Johnson of 3640 Shaw avenue, was announced at a bridge party yesterday afternoon which Mrs. Shumate gave for her daughter. The news was told by miniature telegrams which were presented to the guests by small messengers in uniform. No date for the wedding has been set. Miss Shumate is a graduate of Washington University.

The wedding of Miss Lalla Jacobs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Jacobs of 5740 Kingsbury avenue, to Alvin Arndt Abramson took place Wednesday evening at the home of the parents of the bride. Smilax, potted plants and pink roses were used in decorating the home. The bridal party stood before an improvised altar of palms and baskets of mauve and pink chrysanthemums. The bride wore silver lace over white chiffon, beaded in seed pearls and crystal. Her tulle veil fell from a cap of rose point lace adorned in orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lillies of the valley, arranged

All Else is Secondary to Satisfaction of the Wearer
TO WEAR a fashionable Coat is essential; for the peltry in that coat to have genuine worth as an investment is even more important for the sake of future service. Popular recognition of the fact that Garland Fur Coats embody both of these Characteristics has no doubt brought about our phenomenal increase in Fur Coat Sales this Season.
Then, too, one may now acquire one of these finer Coats without the entire immediate outlay by purchasing on our Industrial Budget Plan. Payments are divided over a period of months at a trifling added cost.

"Expressions Often Heard"

A "Nigger in the wood-pile," "Skeleton in the closet," "Something rotten in Denmark" are three expressions with practically the same meaning.

Either of them aptly applies to something, the purpose of which is CONCEALMENT.

Examples of their usefulness are evident in our everyday affairs of various natures and those of us who do not practice them are few.

WINTER BUILDING ABSORBS LABOR, STRAUS REPORTS

Five Hundred Cities Have $2,500,000,000 in Building Permits for Last Six Months.

WAGES RANGE FROM $8 TO $14 A DAY

Builders Will Oppose Any Increase; Slight Shortage of Plasterers and Bricklayers.

With building permits in the 500 leading cities of the United States during the last six months only slightly less than two and a half billion dollars, the nation's winter building program will, from present indications, absorb all available labor in the building crafts. While a number of wage readjustments outside the larger cities are being made on the basis of slight increases, the building situation generally is well stabilized.

These facts represent the consensus of reports submitted to S. W. Straus and Company from all parts of the country and made public yesterday. Labor conditions in the building industry were summarized as follows:

Wage scales have reached a peak and any attempt to boost wages in the spring will be met with resistance by the building public. Some slight adjustments of wages may be made in smaller cities, however.

Despite numerous reports, there has been no concerted action for the 40-hour or five-day week.

Jurisdictional disputes have practically been eliminated in building labor circles because of the excellent work of the National Board for Jurisdictional Awards.

There is no shortage of men in the building craft, with the exception of bricklayers and plasterers of which there seems to be a present deficiency in numbers, amounting to approximately 20,000 men.

Tranquillity is assured between builders and the building crafts generally, despite some difficulties yet unsettled in San Francisco and Cleveland.

Full-Time Basis.

In New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Pittsburg and Washington builders report there is sufficient work contemplated for this winter to keep workers employed on a full-time basis. New York builders report a slight shortage of bricklayers and plasterers. Employment in Philadelphia hit a snag early this fall and builders report many of the resident building workers have procured work in other Eastern cities, where building is more flourishing.

High wage scales prevail in New York City, where builders report that a rate of $14 a day is being paid to bricklayers, plasterers, stonemasons, hoisting engineers and structural iron workers. In Philadelphia the wage scale for carpenters ranges from $1 to $1.25 an hour; painters, $1 an hour; plasterers, $1.75 an hour, and electricians, from $1 to $1.18½ an hour.

Chicago construction promises to keep workers busy this winter, dependent, of course, on favorable weather conditions. A slight lull in building activities was recorded in the fall, but this soon disappeared when the volume of October construction started. Wages scales in Chicago range from $12 to $14 a day, the latter rate being paid only to a trade or two. No wage increases are contemplated for spring, builders believe.

In Cleveland, labor disputes over the open-shop issue have been a factor in impeding the progress of the city's building program. Builders there report that many of the resident building craftsmen have left to obtain employment in other cities. In virtually every city builders report bonus payments have disappeared.

Labor Supply Adequate.

This fall slight increases were made in the wage scales of some building trades in Chicago, Nashville, Pittsburg, Detroit, Cincinnati, Duluth, Kansas City, St. Louis and Buffalo. Builders in these cities report that the supply of labor is adequate, employment brisk, and the labor market tranquil.

Canadian labor conditions in that countrys' building industry are reported to be tranquil and employment in general well stabilized.

In the Pacific Coast cities builders report that labor conditions appear to be normal, with a plentiful supply of competent labor to supply demands. These cities include Vancouver, Seattle, Portland, Oakland, Los Angeles, Stockton, Sacramento, San Diego and the smaller cities along the West Coast. In San Francisco a carpenters' strike called last April to enforce a wage increase demand has curtailed to some degree the city's building program.

Plasterers and bricklayers in Seattle are paid $11 a day; painters

This scale for basic trades prevails in most of the larger of the West Coast cities. Fair and brisk employment is reported from Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Des Moines, Topeka, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, New Orleans, Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, St. Louis, Omaha, Lincoln, Denver and Spokane.

Builders in Jacksonville and Miami, Fla., report that most of the building workmen in that State are employed in the reconstruction area which was visited by the hurricane. They report also that prior to the hurricane the volume of construction in Florida was of sufficient size to furnish steady employment for the building workers in the State. Florida builders say that after completion of work in the devastated district the building program in the State will proceed.

REAL ESTATE BOARDS TO MEET IN MIAMI

National Association Will Hold Conference, Jan. 12 to 14, in Florida City.

The annual business meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards will be held in Miami, Fla., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Jan. 12 to 14, inclusive.

At this meeting officers and committees will submit their reports, and officers and directors for 1927 will assume their offices. The officers of the respective division for 1927 will be inducted into office and the executive committee of each division will meet to plan its work for the new year.

This midwinter meeting is, in many respects, one of the most important gatherings of real estate men of the entire year. Not only is it the annual business meeting of the national association, but also the meeting at which the members of the respective divisions come together for an informal exchange of ideas on practice and methods that pay.

Each division will hold separate meetings on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday afternoon. Important current problems will be brought up for discussion. Some of the leaders of America will conduct these discussions, and every man present will have an opportunity to participate in the round tables which follow. Informal presentation of facts is what is expected in this midwinter divisional conference.

NEW APARTMENT, HOUSING NEGROES, COST $90,000

Structure Financed by Principal of Sumner High School as Model of Homes His Race Desires.

BUILDING ALONG EFFICIENCY LINES

Contains Completed Furnished Three and Four-Room Apartments Renting at $60 to $75 a Month

A $90,000 four-story apartment building for Negroes, along up-to-date efficiency lines, has been erected at 4223 Enright avenue by Frank L. Williams, principal of Sumner High School and the Teachers' College for Negroes, student of the housing problems and the uplift of his race.

The building has 21 three and four room apartments to rent at $60 to $75 a month. Within the month since completion, 15 of them have been rented without advertising. Williams, who owns several houses and flats for Negroes, declares he built it to demonstrate the type of home that members of his race would build for themselves if they were able to finance it.

"The housing situation for Negroes in St. Louis is no longer a shortage, but rather a problem of finding the sort of home they want," he said. "Many flats that have been built for them have been of flimsy construction, and hundreds of homes they took over from white people were old and in a deplorable condition.

Policy Toward Tenants.

"You cannot give any people a shabby home or a cheaply constructed one and expect them to keep it in first-class condition. My policy has been to look after the places I rent out as carefully as though I lived in them myself, and the reward I get in the conduct and care of my tenants is remarkable."

The state of the apartments visited by him and a reporter bore out his words. They were carefully furnished—not greatly different in that respect from many in the West End—and immaculately clean. The only litter observed in five apartments was a pile of letters shoved under the door by the postman in one where the tenant was absent.

Williams said that he was rather more careful of the type of tenants he selected than strict in his regulations, although he used the typical lease of the Real Estate Exchange "as a safeguard." He said he discouraged tenants who were more able to take care of a different type of home than to pay the rent for efficiency service.

Equipment of Apartments.

Light is the only additional expense to tenants besides the rent. Every room and bathroom has steam heat. Every kitchen is completely furnished, including a gas range, a modern enameled cabinet and an electric refrigerator. The apartment is equipped with an incinerator and a basement laundry for tenants who desire to do their own washing.

NEW APARTMENT, HOUSING NEGROES, COST $90,000

Rooms are slightly larger than in some efficiency apartments, because, Williams explained, "my tenants will not be used to the efficiency scheme of things and I must give them, more or less, what they are used to." A small dressing room adjoins each bathroom, with a built-in pressing board in the door. All walls and floors, which are of concrete, are painted.

Williams, who has been in St. Louis 19 years, obtained his first funds for investment through life insurance policies which he paid up while he sent three children to college. He was instrumental in the building of a $210,000 Y. M. C. A. for Negroes and a $125,000 orphans' home at Goode and Kennerly avenues. He was an organizer, in 1915, of the first building and loan association for Negroes west of the Mississippi.

Hopes to Raise Standards.

"After the Negroes went into the court to prevent compulsory segregation," he related, "it became hard for them to obtain real estate loans. We got together with a small fund, made a few loans, and soon the situation opened up for us.

"Many Negroes are buying or building now, and a great many white men are building homes for Negroes. We couldn't build much ourselves, but I thought if we could just put up one apartment and show the white people who are building for us what we wanted, we would accomplish a great thing to raise our standards of living and affecting our future."

Williams financed the building through Waldheim, Platt & Co., with a $47,500 first mortgage. Construction was by the William H. Smith-Nelson Cunliff Co.

INVALID KIN OF ST. GAUDENS TO SEE HIS WORK UNVEILED

Bert Johnson, Sculptor Doctors Said Couldn't Live, Works on and Success Is Near.

By the Associated Press.

CLAREMONT, Cal., Dec. 4.—Bert Johnson, internationally known sculptor, brother-in-law and apprentice of Louis St. Gaudens, will unveil his work on the fine arts building of Pomona College here Dec. 8 as a token of a prolonged battle with death and a victory almost won.

Influenza in 1925, followed by a heart attack, had left him a gasping invalid on the brink of the grave. Attending physicians said there was "no hope." But Johnson held on. Weeks passed and he gained sufficient strength to enable him to be moved on his bed into the open air. His hands grew steadier and, still on the hospital cot, he completed his eighteenth child statue for the fine arts building. His own little girl was the model.

A few weeks ago Johnson returned to his Claremont studio and, from his bed and later from a wheel chair, he directed his assistants. So that his inspiration may be woven into the 20-foot figures which adorn the fine arts hall, an elevator has been constructed and up and down on it Johnson goes, seated or lying in his wheel chair.

6 Rooms—$13,000
Material and Workmanship of a $25,000 House
1250 Boland (3 blocks south of 7700 Clayton rd.) is a brand-new residence which has just been placed in my hands for sale.

This residence, constructed by a builder specializing for more than 20 years in the erection of homes in excess of $20,000, has the same material and workmanship used by him in his expensive houses, and differs only from them in size; some of the features are the walls and shower in the large bath; gas and real fireplace in the spacious living room; built-in china case and, of course, the floors are of hardwood, and hot-water heat.

To those seeking the highest type of construction, the best of materials, excellent arrangement and a beautiful location in the West End, this house MUST appeal.

See representative on premises today for particulars and information regarding the attractive terms available.

A Suggestion

What could be more acceptable as a Christmas present for the whole family than a beautiful home? Gathered 'round the table to enjoy the Yuletide cheer, how comforting to know that it is your home, your castle, where no one dare intrude unless you bid him welcome. Ask the family if this would not be the most wonderful Christmas present in the world. Take them to see the furnished display home at 7570 Stanford Avenue.

SUES ST. LOUIS ON PATENTS

Alleging the city has infringed his patents on truncated boxes for street valves, fire plugs, meters and the like, Edward Prendergast yesterday sued in Federal Court for an injunction against further use of the boxes, for an accounting and for triple damages.

The plaintiff states he obtained the patents in 1910 and prospered making and selling the boxes to the city and other customers until 1919, when the city began making and using similar boxes. This change occurred, he avers, after he had submitted his patents to Edward E. Wall, then Water Commissioner.

FLONZALEY QUARTET FORCED TO ENCORES

Chamber Music Audience Keeps String Ensemble Playing Extra Numbers.

The Flonzaley Quartet played last night at the Sheldon Auditorium before a grateful and enthusiastic audience. So enthusiastic was the audience in fact, that the players were persuaded to add three encores to the program, thus making the concert last for more than an hour and a half. This is too long—even for such a distinguished performance as that of last night. Considering the exacting demands that chamber music makes on a listener he can keep his mind properly sensitive for only about an hour and a quarter.

Since every requirement of good quartet playing is copiously fulfilled by this celebrated string ensemble there is little can be said about them now that will not be repetitious. In the matters of precision and unity they are, of course, virtually flawless. And back of their technique is the collective sympathetic intelligence without which the true significance of a composition never comes through.

Mozart D Major Quartet.

The Mozart D Major quartet, which began the program, is a little more ambitiously scored than the other Mozart quartets but the characteristic geniality is ever present. Those persons who contend that music went into a decline when Mozart stopped composing have eloquent support for their argument in all the Mozart chamber music, for there, his sunny nature expressed itself justly and adequately.

But when a program begins with a Mozart Quartet what follows is likely to suffer by comparison. The contrast last evening bore particularly hard on the Ravel F. Major operas, a high skillful composition but rather obviously mannered. Where Mozart is expository and direct Ravel is merely atmospheric. But the comparison is, perhaps, not appropriate. Ravel undoubtedly was trying for exactly that blurred pastel effect that he succeeded in getting.

Originality of Ernest Bloch

Ernest Bloch's Pastorale—presumably a Hebraic pastorale is a more eloquent composition. Like most of Bloch's music it is characteristized by the poignant accents of his racial heritage. This is not to say that he employed typical Hebrew themes, for Bloch is not in the habit of merely elaborating second-hand ideas. His originality is unimpeachable and his inspiration is unquestionable.

For encores the Flonzaleys played a Borodin Nocturne, Cherubini's Scherzo and an arrangement of "Deep River" made by Alfred Pochon, the second violinist of the ensemble. This arrangement deserves especial mention. It provided a suitable quartet treatment of that matchless Negro spiritual without in any way damaging its essential character—a remarkable achievement when one considers how many silly rococo embellishments have been added to the spirituals in these last few years.

FAVORS BRITISH RUBBER POOL

London Observer Suggests It to Offset $40,000,000 American Combine.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The Sunday Observer's financial article advocates an attempt to "form" a rubber producers' pool to counteract an American consumers' pool.

It says, if the $40,000,000 American pool implies that the American consumer is ready to assist the Stevenson plan to achieve its original object, namely, stabilization of the price of rubber on a basis fair to producers and consumers alike, well and good; otherwise combined buying should be met with combined selling.

Fugitive Slayer Writes Letter.

By the Associated Press.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 4.—Otto Wood, convicted slayer of a Greensboro, N. C., pawnbroker, who escaped from the state penitentiary last month, is believed to be hiding in the vicinity of Cincinnati. A letter has been received by a Greensboro newspaper from Wood, mailed from that city. Its handwriting was identified as Woods' by the fugitive's attorney. Wood escaped three times in the last two years from the state prison.

CHEER CITY HOSPITAL SHUT-INS WITH MUSIC

First of Series of Concerts Played by Religious Board Orchestra.

The first of a series of Saturday afternoon concerts at City Hospital, under auspices of the Board of Religious Organizations, whose demonstration of bedside music there two weeks ago won over several of the hospital executives, was held yesterday afternoon.

Other hospitals and institutions soon are to have regular music. An orchestra now is being coached to play at the City Sanitarium. Concerts already have been held there, at the City Infirmary and at Barnes and Jewish Hospitals. Musicians have volunteered their services in such numbers that none has been called on twice.

Those who visited the four women's wards at City Hospital yesterday were Mrs. E. A. Porter, who is coaching the eight-piece orchestra of the Board of Religious Organizations, as pianist; Miss Helen Musick, soloist, and Mrs. Carl Hoffman, violinist.

As in previous trials, the brightening effect of music in the life of shut-ins was immediately apparent. Those who could stacked pillows under their shoulders and sat up. Others turned to face the musicians, and even those for whom that was impossible showed their pleasure.

"Special requests" came thick and fast, ranging from a bit of "Carmen" to "Black Bottom." Jazz, however, is barred, as are doleful hymns. Physicians have seen enough of the effects of both, so they permit music only on condition that neither be included in the programs. Some of the numbers called for were not known by the musicians. A few were once popular pieces, now forgotten. Some of these patients had heard no music for a long time. One selection asked for was "The Rocky Road to Dublin," requested by an elderly woman with a rich brogue. She got a bit of a jig, and next Saturday, Mrs. Hoffman promised, she shall have her "Rocky Road to Dublin."

MRS. FANNIE L. FILLEY'S WILL NAMES SIX BENEFICIARIES

Home to Husband, Balance of Estate in Trust for Daughters, Sister and a Friend.

The will of Mrs. Fannie L. Filley, who died Nov. 27, was filed in in Probate Court yesterday. In it she bequeathed her residence at 40 Westmoreland place to her husband, John Dwight Filley, and put the remainder of her property in trust for the benefit of her three daughters—Mrs. Ralph Simpkins, Mrs. James H. Wear and Mrs. Thomas S. McPheeters—and her sister, Mrs. Annie D. Ingraham.

The will provides that from the income the trustees are to pay Mrs. Ingraham $200 a month during her life and if she is survived by her daughter, Miss Cornelia Ingraham, the monthly payment of $200 is to be made to the latter as long as she lives. In the event of Miss Ingraham's marriage, however, she is to receive a gross payment of $10,000 and the monthly income shall cease.

An annuity of $300 is also provided for Mrs. Mary Hickman Orrick, a friend of Mrs. Filley. The daughters are to receive the balance of the income, to be shared equally by them. The trusteeship is to terminate after the deaths of Mrs. Ingraham, her daughter and Mrs. Orrick, when the principal is to be divided among the daughters or their heirs.

Trustees named are Mrs. Filley's three sons-in-law, who, it is provided, are to receive no compensation.

The will was made Jan. 30, 1923. No estimate of the value of Mrs. Filley's property was given.

SCOUT OF TROOP 88 AWARDED WRIST WATCH

Boy Scout troop No. 88 of the Salem Evangelical Church, Marcus and Margaretta avenues, was announced yesterday as the winner of the grand prize of the Merit Badge Exposition, held at the Coliseum Oct. 28-30.

The award was for making the best contribution to the show, as this troop not only had one of the prize-winning booths, but every registered member of the troop was in attendance every day of the exposition and participated in the activities.

Moreover, when the final count of the ticket sale was concluded yesterday, it was found that Troop 88 sold 325 tickets, or an average of 7.5 tickets for each troop member, and, therefore, prizes for ticket sales were also awarded. Scout Orville Hebbler of this troop sold the most tickets of any Scout in the city and was awarded the $50 wrist watch.

Entire prize awards to Troop 88 announced yesterday were as follows: Large equipment chest with $50 of scout supplies as the grand prize, two complete sets of merit badge pamphlets and $10 of scout equipment for the troop sale of tickets and booth display, in addition to individual prizes to the boys selling tickets. The troop will have a banquet before Christmas, at which the prizes will be awarded. Samuel A. Bull is scoutmaster.

Robbers Raid Roadhouse, Escape.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., Dec. 4.—Two masked robbers last night entered the Collins roadhouse, near here, fired a number of shots and escaped with about $58 in cash, three guns and other property. They drove away in an automobile.

NINE PRIZE AWARDS IN ARTISTS' GUILD EXHIBIT

Oscar E. Berninghaus Wins First Place With Indian Picture.

Nine cash prizes were awarded, at the Artists' Guild last night, in the contest for St. Louis artists, whose works have been on exhibition in the Guild's hall and little theater for several weeks.

The judges, who announced the awards at a dinner meeting of the Guild, are Robert Aitken, Arthur Crisp and Gordon Stevenson, all of New York. Aitken is executing decorative works at the Capitol in Jefferson City.

The Artists' Guild prize, $200, for the best work of art offered, was won by Oscar E. Berninghaus, with his Indian picture, "Very Old Man of the Pueblo."

Ranking second among the awards was the Chamber of Commerce prize for the best painting of a St. Louis industrial scene. The prize is $350, and the Chamber acquires the painting, which is Frank Nuderscher's "Foundations of a City." It represents structural machinery and men, in the erection of a downtown building.

Rural Scene Gains $100 Award.

E. Oscar Thalinger won the Halsey C. Ives landscape prize of $100, offered by William K. Bixby, with a rural scene. A pool and a white farmhouse appear in this painting.

An anonymously offered prize of $100 for figure painting, called the Carl Wimar prize, was won by F. G. Carpenter, with a brilliant canvas named "Caprice."

Another prize for figure painting, $50, offered in honor of the late George Warren Brown by Mrs. Brown, was awarded to Gustav Goetsch, whose canvas showed a reclining nude in a dim light.

The Letticia Parker Williams prize of $100, offered by Mrs. Williams, for a decorative mural, was won by Tomasko Milovich, with "Trees and Flowers."

T. Kajiwara's "Maybelle," a portrait of a young woman, with a fanciful background of Japanese type, won the $100 portrait prize offered by Edward Mallinckrodt.

The Frederick Oakes Sylvester prize of $50 for sculpture, offered by W. K. Bixby, was won by Victor S. Holm with a "Leda and the Swan."

A special prize of $50, offered by Noonon & Kocian, art dealers, for a group of works by one artist, was awarded to Mildred Bailey Carpenter for her group of seven water colors.

Honorable Mention.

Honorable mention was given: For Chamber of Commerce prize, Gustav Goetsch, "Passing of the Old and Beginning of the New;" for Ives prize, J. Charles Berninghaus, "Valley in Taos Canyon;" for Williams prize, batik by Jessie MacNichols and placques by Margaret Monty; for Mallinckrodt prize, Fred Conway; for Sylvester prize, B. F. Hawkins, statue, "Balloon Dance."

George S. Johns presided at the dinner which followed the awards. The judges spoke, praising the tone of the exhibition. Stevenson commended the lack of "ultra-modernism," and said the work shown was vital and honest.

SHUBERT ATTACHES RECEIPTS OF 'LE MAIRE'S AFFAIRS'

New York Theatrical Producer Claims $7275 Due on Notes Given in 1924.

Two suits for a total of $7275 based on notes executed in favor of Lee Shubert of New York, theatrical producer, were begun in Circuit Court yesterday against the makers, Rufus and George Le Maire, owners of "Le Maire's Affairs," which appeared at the American Theater last week. After the suit had been begun, Deputy Sheriff Robert B. Flint, on instruction from Shubert's attorney, attached box office receipts for the week's business at the American, to which defendants were entitled but the attachment was released on a $15,000 bond. The notes, totaling $15,000, were executed in the latter part of 1924 and the amount sued for is the balance due, it is stated.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE HEAD RAKES ONTARIO'S WET VOTE

Bishop Nicholson of Detroit Calls Result a Challenge to American Prohibition.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 4.—The wet victory in Ontario should have the effect of arousing American drys to the realization that they have a powerful and resourceful foe, Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of the Detroit area of the Methodist Episcopal Church and national president of the Antisaloon League of America. The result of the election, he said, was the sharpest challenge yet received by American prohibition.

"The Ferguson victory," he declared, "is a clean cut challenge to our enforcement, especially in Michigan. We welcome the opportunity to compare notes with Canada over the next five-year period. If the liquor evil cannot be suppressed, how much less chance is there to regulate it? The ultimate result in Ontario will be to give added evidence that the only way to deal with this nefarious traffic is to pull it up root and branch.

"The Ontario organization that fought so long for prohibition withered up and died as soon as their objective was attained," he said. "Enactment of a law is only half of the victory."

PLANS TO CENTER ALL STATE RULE IN NINE BUREAUS

Missouri Association for Economy in Public Expenditure Drafts Bills to That End.

COMBINES PRESENT 123 DEPARTMENTS

Outline of Measures to Be Offered to Legislature Which Meets Next Month.

Nine departments of the Missouri State government, to co-ordinate and control the work now done by 123 boards and bureaus, are proposed in measures which will be offered to the Legislature which meets next month by the Missouri Association for Economy in Public Expenditures.

Measures providing for the budget system of State finance, and for a central purchasing agency have also been prepared by the association. The legislative program was agreed upon by the executive committee of the association, at a meeting in St. Louis last week.

The program agreed upon provides for departments of agriculture, conservation and development, finance and taxation, health, highways, labor, military, trade commerce, and public welfare. It also proposes that the fruit experiment and the poultry experiment stations at Mountain Grove, Mo., should remain at that place, but should be operated under the general supervision of the College of Agriculture.

Method of Appointment.

Directors of each of the nine departments, the measure provides, shall be appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate, except that the Director of Agriculture is to be selected by a a Board of Agriculture, appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. After selecting the director, the Board of Agriculture remains an advisory body to the department. Six year terms are provided for members of the Board of Agriculture, in order that one administration may not be able to choose all its members. The state fair, the market bureau, the state veterinarian, the dairy bureau, the state apiarist, the board of horticulture and plant board will be placed in this department.

The department of conservation and development will be a consolidation of the bureau of geology and mines, the game and fish department and the division of forestry.

Absorbing the Tax Commission.

The Department of Finance and Taxation is intended to take over the duties of the Tax Commission, with the director of Finance and Taxation as ex-officio chairman. A division of budget is created in the department with supervision over estimates of revenue, enforcement of uniform accounting, and supervision over expenditures to the extent that expenditures shall remain within appropriations. Other divisions in the department are those of property, purchases and printing, and of tax collection. The commissioner of property, purchases and printing is to have supervision over all printing, abolishing the various bodies now in charge of that work. The commissioner also is to have jurisdiction over the purchase of all supplies for the departments and institutions of the State government.

The commissioner of tax collection is to have supervision over the combined work now distributed among various officials, including the corporation franchise tax, income tax, inheritance tax, motor vehicle licenses, inspection of oil and the gasoline tax.

All health activities are collected under three divisions of the health department, namely vital statistics, sanitation, and registration and examination. Included in the health department will be the present food and drug department.

The division of registration and examination is to have supervision over the licensing of barbers, chiropractors, dentists, embalmers, hairdressers, physicians, midwives, nurses, optometrists, osteopaths, pharmacists and veterinarians. The commissioner will name three qualified persons to conduct each examination. The detail clerical work of administration would be done through the central division of registration and examination.

Highway Bureau Untouched.

No change is proposed in the organization of the highway department.

The new Workmen's Compensation Commission is placed in the Department of Labor, but left free to operate without alteration of the intent of the law as approved by the people. Two divisions are created in the labor department in addition to the compensation commission, one of industrial inspection and one of labor activities.

The military department is transferred to the departmental plan without changing its functions. The department of trade and commerce is to consist of all agencies affecting these two problems. The Public Service Commission as now constituted, without affecting its work or jurisdiction, is placed here. Three divisions are placed in this department—banking, grain and warehouse inspection and insurance.

The ninth proposed department is to supervise the welfare agencies of the State. Its divisions are correction, institutions, charities and State aid. An advisory board of five members, without pay, appointed by the Governor, is intended to furnish expert advice to the head of the department and the divisional heads. In the division of correction is the present penal department. In the division of institutions is the present group of institutions. The charity activities of the State, with the State home for children at Carrollton, are placed under the division of charities, with a Commissoner and an advisory Board of Charities. Under the division of State aid is placed the work now performed by the commission for the blind, supervision over the Confederate Soldiers' Home and the Federal Soldiers' Home with like supervision over all State alms bodies and institutions.

Liaison Board Provided.

In order to arrange for proper co-operation of departments, and to establish rules for inter-departmental relations, to supervise the interchange of clerks, provision is made for an unpaid administrative board, to consist of the Governor, who shall be chairman, and four directors designated by him.

The committee proposes that the plan shall become operative in 1929 with the new administration which will be elected in November, 1928. The budget provision, however, would become operative in time to permit its use in preparing a fiscal program for the 1929 Legislature.

The members of the Executive Committee attending the meeting at which the program was outlined are: A. J. Crawford, Atlanta, representing the Missouri Farmers' Association; W. J. Dysart, Springfield, and general chairman, Elmer Donnell, St. Louis, representing the Associated Industries of Missouri; Cornelius Roach, Kansas City, representing the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce; W. C. Van Cleve, Moberly, representing the Missouri Press Association; Charles E. Williams, representing the Associated Retailers of St. Louis; R. T. Wood, Springfield, president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor; E. M. Golden, St. Louis, representing the Wholesale Merchants.

The Association for Economy is the outgrowth of a movement initiated by the Associated Industries of Missouri, of which Harry Scullin, steel manufacturer, is the head, to study methods to produce a more economical and efficient administration of State affairs than exists at present.

SIGNED $190,000 IN BONDS WITHOUT HAVING QUALIFIED

Anty Sansone Accepted by Judge Ittner as Surety in Many Cases in Last Two Months.

$12,300 WORTH OF THEM STILL PENDING

Judge, Although in Civil Division, Has Approved Total of $309,400 in Bonds in Same Period.

Circuit Judge Ittner was the only Circuit Judge in St. Louis who allowed Anty Sansone of 1001 Wash street, a professional bondsman for whom no qualifications can be found on record, to sign common law bonds returnable in the Court of Criminal Correction during the last two months, and the records show that he accepted Sansone on $190,000 worth of such bonds in this period.

The other Circuit Judges apparently rejected Sansone as a bondsman or else they adhered to the working agreement among them not to accept bonds which are returnable in some other judge's court. It has been a well-defined policy among the Circuit Judges to refrain from invading each other's jurisdictions in the matter of bonds, and Judges in the equity division, where Judge Ittner sits at present, usually have refused to accept criminal bonds.

Most of the bonds Sansone signed with Judge Ittner's approval have been dismissed, but $12,300 worth are pending in the Court of Criminal Corrections. This bondsman already has one $800 forfeiture against him in the Circuit Court and were any of the pending bonds forfeited the Sheriff would have no way of collecting from Sansone.

Has Approved Other Bonds.

Judge Ittner's dealings with Sansone do not complete his activity as an approver of criminal bonds, although he is a civil Judge. The records show that in the last two months he allowed other bondsmen to sign $119,400 worth of common law bonds in the Court of Criminal Correction. The grand total of bonds signed with Judge Ittner's approval during the period was $309,400.

Common law bonds are those given largely by police characters who are picked up on suspicion and held to answer any charges that may be placed against them in the Court of Criminal Correction. During the recent police clean-up of gangsters in efforts to halt the Italian-Cuckoo gang war many gunmen were arrested.

Fourteen such suspects, according to the records, appealed to Anty Sansone to go as surety for them, and Sansone took his bonds to Judge Ittner. The Judge accepted him as sole surety on bonds of $10,000 each for the 14 Italians.

The Judges of the Court of Criminal Correction have not permitted Sansone to operate through them except in a few instances. Judge Paul Gayer would not take him on bonds. Judge Calvin Miller permitted him to sign one $1000 bond and then required additional security on the next $1000 bond Sansone brought to him. Provisional Judge Grodski accepted him for $3400 worth of bonds, but all in minor cases.

Judge Ittner, as the Post-Dispatch has shown, has approved a succession of bondsmen who had no qualifications. First there was "Gasoline Jack" Rubenstein, a bankrupt, whose worthless bonds for $8100 are still uncollected at the Circuit Clerk's office. Then came Sam Arky, who made a fortune signing bonds — $670,000 worth in one year—and was exposed by the Post-Dispatch as a defaulter on two $1000 bonds approved by Judge Ittner. Arky, whom the Judge characterized as "my friend," has no property of record, but he signed more than $100,000 worth of criminal bonds with Judge Ittner's approval. Next the Judge accepted Eric A. Clodius and W. A. Rife as bondsmen in the slot machine injunction case, telling a Post-Dispatch reporter he did not know them, did not know their addresses, but "qualifications were given."

Statement of Judge Ittner.

When asked yesterday about his acceptance of Sansone as a bondsman, Judge Ittner said:

"When I first began taking this man on bonds I first inquired of the clerk and I think also at the Circuit Attorney's office, if his qualifications were on file. I was informed that they were and I am informed that they are now on file. Any bond that I took from him I took in good faith, believing the man was qualified."

It was suggested to the Judge that he may have mistaken Anty Sansone for Tony Sansone Jr. of 3974 Evans avenue, whose qualifications as a professional bondsman are on file. Tony Sansone owns property assessed at $11,000 on the Recorder's books. The Judge recalled he knew both Anty and Tony and was certain Anty also had qualified as a bondsman.

SIGNED $190,000 IN BONDS WITHOUT HAVING QUALIFIED

Anty Sansone Accepted by Judge Ittner as Surety in Many Cases in Last Two Months.

$12,300 WORTH OF THEM STILL PENDING

Judge, Although in Civil Division, Has Approved Total of $309,400 in Bonds in Same Period.

Circuit Judge Ittner was the only Circuit Judge in St. Louis who allowed Anty Sansone of 1001 Wash street, a professional bondsman for whom no qualifications can be found on record, to sign common law bonds returnable in the Court of Criminal Correction during the last two months, and the records show that he accepted Sansone on $190,000 worth of such bonds in this period.

The other Circuit Judges apparently rejected Sansone as a bondsman or else they adhered to the working agreement among them not to accept bonds which are returnable in some other judge's court. It has been a well-defined policy among the Circuit Judges to refrain from invading each other's jurisdictions in the matter of bonds, and Judges in the equity division, where Judge Ittner sits at present, usually have refused to accept criminal bonds.

NEW TRIAL IS SOUGHT IN STOCKE WILL CONTROVERSY

Defense Assigns 34 Reasons Why Court and Jury Erred in Previous Decision.

Defendants in the contest over the estate of Mrs. Caroline G. Stocke, whose will was set aside last week by a jury in Circuit Judge Hamilton's court, yesterday filed a motion for a new trial. They assign 34 reasons why the motion should be granted, among them being that the verdict was against the weight of evidence and contrary to law, and that the Court erred in refusing certain instructions and giving other instructions, as well as excluding material evidence and permitting irrelevant testimony to be given.

The motion says that the jury's verdict should have sustained the will and also should have found that Arthur W. Butterfield, plaintiff in the suit, had no legal right as an heir. At the trial the defense contended that Butterfield, to whom Mrs. Stocke bequeathed $10,000 of her $110,000 estate, was not her son. According to the motion, the jury committed error in finding he was the natural son.

Besides the bequest bequeathing $10,000 to the plaintiff, Mrs. Stocke left a total of $15,000 to various charities and gave the residue of her property to her husband, Jacob Stocke, 4177 Magnolia avenue, who, it was testified, is worth $450,000. The will described the plaintiff as Mrs. Stocke's son by her previous marriage to the late William C. Butterfield.

Accompanying the motion is an affidavit signed by E. E. Schowengerdt, one of the attorneys for the defense, in which he complains that when the jury was being selected it was not disclosed Congressman Cleveland A. Newton was one of the attorneys for plaintiff, so the jurors were not asked if they knew him. Schowengerdt declares he since has learned that four of the jurors were close personal friends of the Congressman.

SEEKS TO PREVENT REVIVAL OF 'SUPREME COURT SHUFFLE'

Attorney-General Checking Up on Disposition of All Appealed Criminal Cases.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—An effort to prevent revival of the so-called "Supreme Court shuffle," by which persons convicted of crimes take appeals but never perfect them and in some instances escape punishment indefinitely, is being made by Attorney-General N. T. Gentry through letters to prosecuting attorneys and court clerks in a number of counties, asking them to check up the disposition of criminal cases in which appeals were taken.

The slow-moving appeal system makes possible the "shuffle" which was exposed several years ago but still is used to some extent. A person convicted of a crime has a year in which to perfect his appeal in the Supreme Court. The higher court cannot act upon the case, nor does it come to the direct attention of the Attorney-General until the appeal is perfected and the necessary records are filed with the higher court.

If the records are not transmitted to the Supreme Court, it has no knowledge of the appeal. In some instances, prosecuting attorneys fail to follow up cases after they obtain convictions in the lower courts, and changes in local administrations offer opportunities for cases to be forgotten. Under these circumstances, persons who take appeals and fail to perfect them, in some instances, may remain at liberty on appeal bond indefinitely.

Approximately 50 criminal cases in which appeals were taken but never perfected, were dismissed several months ago by Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court, on motions filed by the Attorney-General.

MERCHANTS ASK FOR BRIGHT LIGHTS ON GRAND BOULEVARD

Improvement Association Votes for Representation Before Board Contract Letting.

The Grand Boulevard Improvement Association, meeting Friday night at the Melbourne Hotel, voted unanimously to be represented Dec. 14, when city lighting contracts are to be let, to present to the Board of Public Service their demand for making Grand boulevard a "white way" from Laclede avenue to Easton avenue.

About 3000 feet frontage were said to be represented by the 34 present. The association has agreed to pay extra cost above the residential type of lighting specified in the contract. Specifications may be altered along these lines at discretion of the board. The change would be from 400 candle-power lights on ordinary standards to twin 1500 candle-power lights on tall standards.

West Point Candidate Named.

Joseph Carroll of 4741 Northland avenue, a corporal in the 138th Infantry, St. Louis National Guard regiment, has been named as a candidate for the mental and physical examination, to be given March 1 next at Jefferson Barracks, for admission to the United States Military Academy at West Point. Another member of the National Guard of this state, Louis W. Truman of Springfield, representing the 140th Infantry, also has been selected to take the West Point examination.

GENTRY ACTS TO QUASH LOWER COURT'S PAROLE

Keytesville Judge Freed Liquor Defendant After Conviction Had Been Affirmed.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 4.—A move to set aside a parole and stay of execution, granted by Circuit Judge Montgomery of Keytesville to a defendant in a prohibition case, after his conviction had been affirmed on appeal, was instituted today by Attorney-General Gentry in the State Supreme Court. He filed an application for a writ of certiorari for review of the lower court's action and asked that the record be quashed. Gentry said contempt proceedings might be instituted later, as the State law prohibits granting of a parole while an appeal is pending, and that the parole power is lost by the lower court when a final decision is made by the higher court.

The case is that of Tom Horton, a Chariton County farmer, who was convicted in Chariton County Circuit Court on a charge of possessing whisky. He was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $300. The Supreme Court affirmed the conviction and an appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court, which last June refused to accept jurisdiction and dismissed the appeal. Judge Montgomery then paroled Horton on the jail sentence and granted a stay of execution on the fine, Gentry said.

Gentry said it was useless to prosecute such cases in the higher courts, at considerable expense to the State, if the court's decisions were to be nullified in effect by paroles. He said Horton never had spent a day in jail.

Horton's attorneys attacked his conviction upon appeal, on the ground the officers who raided his farm did not have a legal search warrant and sought to suppress the evidence. It developed the search warrant was not legal. However, while the raid was in progress Horton's wife broke several jugs and poured out what appeared to be whisky in the rear of the house, in view of the officers. The Supreme Court held that under the circumstances, as the act was committed within the view of the officers, a search warrant was not necessary.

BOLIVIA ACCEPTS KELLOGG'S PROPOSAL ON TACNA-ARICA

Chile Has Submitted the Solution of Dispute to a Committee of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Jesse Cottrell, American Minister at La Paz, today advised the State Department that the Bolivian Government has handed him a formal note accepting unconditionally the proposal of Secretary Kellogg that the Tacno-Arica dispute between Chile and Peru be settled by ceding the territory to Bolivia.

To date no official word had been received from either Chile or Peru. Reports that the Chilean Government has submitted the proposal to the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Congress has been officially affirmed. Ambassador Valardeo of Peru has discussed the proposal informally with Herbert Stabler, chief of the Latin-American division of the State Department.

The State Department is not in position to discuss the compensation which Bolivia should pay for the public works in Tacna-Arica. It was indicated that the proposal has not yet progressed to a point where the matter of compensation comes up for discussion. After Chile and Peru have indicated their acceptance in principle of the proposed settlement, the question of compensation is expected to come up.

Secretary Kellogg suggested an agreement between the three South American Governments on the matter of compensation, at the same time indicating that the United States would extend its good offices in connection with such negotiations if desired. The State Department has made no estimate of what it considers a "fair price" for the cession of the territory and will not do so unless the governments so desire.

The value of the railroad that crosses Tacna and Arica from Bolivia has been estimated at $20,000,000. Three-fourths of the line are in disputed territory and one-fourth in Bolivia.

NEW CHARGE FILED AGAINST MASSACHUSETTS REPUBLICANS

Liberal League Counsel, Who Enlisted Reed's Aid, May Get State Inquiry into Finances.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—The Republican State Committee, whose campaign expenditures are under the fire of the Liberal Civic League, tonight faced possible State investigation as well as that promised by Chairman Reed of the United States Senate Investigating Committee.

A complaint filed today by Conrad W. Crooker, counsel for the league, charged violation of the law requiring disclosure of the names of contributors and of other sections of the election law. The Attorney-General was asked to act on the complaint, which named Howard Fall, treasurer of the Republican State Committee, as respondent.

The campaign in which Crooker charges Republican organizations spent excessive amounts ended in the defeat of Senator William M. Butler.

Senator Reed has said that the charges would be laid before the full Senate Investigating Committee on his return to Washington, about Dec. 8. Crooker, in a telegram to Reed, declared Republican organization spent $453,236 in this State and that additional expenditures by numerous city and town committees were still to be totaled.

In the complaint today, Crooker accused the committee of failing to total expenditures, of not accounting for the sources of large sums, and of expending sums in a manner not authorized by law. He also declared that discounting of notes for $15,000 for the committee by the American Trust Co. of Boston was illegal.

Senator Weller Spent $13,122.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Senator Weller, Republican, Maryland, spent $13,122 in his unsuccessful campaign to retain his seat, a statement filed by him today at the Circuit Court in Rockville, Md., shows. He received contributions totaling $795.00.

Woman Patient Freezes to Death.

DIXON, Ill., Dec. 4.—The frozen body of Miss Goldie Macklin, 35 years old, living near Freeport, a patient at the Dixon State Hospital, who escaped during the night with no clothing, was found at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The woman had suffered an epileptic attack after her escape.

WESTWOOD COUNTRY CLUB TO SELL SITE

Members Vote to Purchase New Tract for Improvements to Cost $200,000.

The Westwood Country Club, by vote of its members last Wednesday, will sell its clubhouse and 18-hole golf course, at Berry road and Lockwood avenue, and will acquire a new club property further from residence settlement, probably an area sufficiently large for two 18-hole courses. No site yet has been chosen.

Plans call for a new clubhouse, to cost about $200,000, outdoor swimming pool, tennis courts and other play facilities for adults and children. The club has outgrown its present equipment, is being surrounded by residence development and needed an expansion of all facilities to properly care for its membership, a special committee reported.

An investment of more than $500,000 is contemplated to be financed by assessment on members and by the admission of an undetermined number of new members.

The Race for THE MILLAR MILLIONS

Lawyer Leaves Fortune to Woman in Province of Ontario Who Bears Most Children in Next Nine Years.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

TORONTO, Ontario.

CHARLES MILLAR hated uplifters. Of all things which taxed his patience, they gave him the most discomfort in the neck. During his life, just closed, he attended to his own business, accumulated a fortune of $2,000,000, got his share of pleasure out of his work and play and put nothing in the way of his fellow man who was trying to do the same thing. Religious enthusiasts of any sect who took it upon themselves to show him the light alternately exasperated him and amused him. He never was quite sure whether he should smile at them or throw them out, but he was a good-humored man, so he usually smiled. Only by smiling at the foibles and inconsistencies of reformers was he able to tolerate them while he was indulging his favorite hobby—that of studying human brains and motives.

When, late in life, there came the time for Millar to make a will, he was still smiling skeptically and still pursuing pessimistically his passion for psychological research. Of several things he had become convinced. One was that, in the main, money talks louder than principles and that so-called spirituality of the militant sort is always listening for the jingle of a coin. He resolved to put the matter to a test and at the same time get in a satirical dig at the reformers. As he had no dependents or near relatives to provide for, disposal of his fortune furnished opportunity to do this. Even though he should not be present to enjoy his joke when it was sprung or to witness the results of his experiment, he would go to his death with a fling of levity.

A few weeks ago Millar died, at the age of 73. As he had often done before, he had spent Sunday in his law office, searching through his beloved law books for an answer to some puzzling legal question. He was seated at his desk consulting a work of reference when his head fell forward, and, without a sound, he passed away. It was not until a few days after this that his will was opened and his joke, played upon Catholics and Protestants alike, made known. This was the joke:

SOME years ago Millar, who made most of his fortune through shrewd investments, as a side line to his law practice, obtained controlling interest in the O'Keefe Brewery here. At that time the brewery was earning profits of about $1000 a day. In spite of prohibition it never ceased to be profitable and, while Millar reduced his holdings, his stock in the establishment constituted one of the large items of his estate. What did he do with it?

He left it to the preachers!

The will bequeaths all brewery shares in equal portions to Methodist ministers of the Toronto conference who are members of the Orange Order.

In this arrangement there was a double-barreled joke. Methodist ministers here have been the most zealous of prohibitionists. What the 25 of them who qualify are going to do with a controlling interest in the most widely known brewery in Canada is a problem which, no doubt, will have an interesting answer. That is the first barrel.

The other barrel of the joke is in the fact that the associations of the O'Keefe Brewery, since its foundation by the late Eugene O'Keefe, have been largely Roman Catholic. Its general manager, W. T. Kernaghan, is a leading Knight of Columbus. Now he will be working for Methodist ministers who are Orangemen. Since Kernaghan had been presumably a good general manager, it may be argued, with soundest of logic, that he deserved a better fate. Friends are wondering if he will be fired and supplanted by some good Methodist elder. The situation may be tougher on him than Millar anticipated, but at any rate it supplies a religious mixup which would have delighted the cynical lawyer. According to the terms of the document, the ministers must draw their dividends and vote in the management of the brewery for a period of 10 years. Of course, they may refuse to accept the bequest, but they cannot accept it and then dispose of it to somebody else under the guise of contributing to charity. What they do with it is designed to go a long way toward determining whether avarice is greater than principle.

Along with his brewery interests, Millar owned stock in several race tracks in Windsor, Toronto and other cities, and was in partnership in these with Abe Orpen, Canada's most widely known bookmaker of the old days. Orpen knew him well and has this to say about his weakness for horse racing:

"Millar had two great loves—the law and a horse race. He knew everything about the law, but he did not know anything about race horses. But then, who knows anything about horses? Millar seemed to appreciate this limitation, for he never bet more than $100 on a horse race in his life."

BUT even if he wasn't much of a betting man, Millar was passionately devoted to the track. He kept a modest racing stable of his own, and on one occasion won the King's Plate, the supreme racing trophy of Canada. Aside from his work, his only pleasure came from watching the horses run, and he resented the activities of those who sought to deprive him of this amusement. Hence, Joke No. 2 in his will.

Millar owned seven shares in the Ontario Jockey Club, Canada's oldest and most aristocratic racing organization: shares valued today at about $3000 each. These shares the will bequeaths to the three most prominent "uplifters" and opponents of racing in the Dominion. They are W. B. Raney, former Attorney-General of Ontario; N. W. Rowell, former President of the Privy Council of Canada, and the Rev. Ben Spence, leader of the Canadian prohibition forces. Like the Methodist ministers, these beneficiaries must draw their racing dividends and exercise the other privileges of membership. What they will do about it is also a question that is getting much discussion.

VIENNESE BABY WHOSE BIRTH BROUGHT MILLIONS.

A MOST romantic story is associated with the birth in Vienna recently of a baby boy to the Baroness Benko. This lady will now inherit a fortune estimated at more than a million pounds sterling from an eccentric uncle, Senor Rivaz, the Silver King of Peru, who died three years ago, bequeathing everything to his niece in the event of her first child being a boy. If there were no baby, or the child happened to be a girl, his whole fortune was to go to Peruvian charities.

Possibly the most startling condition of the will is the more serious clause which disposes of the bulk of Millar's fortune. All of this, aside from the specific bequests to the reformers and one or two other items totaling perhaps $15,000, is lumped under the general heading of the estate, which comprises probably $1,500,000. This is to be administered by the executors for nine years following Millar's death, which occurred on October 31. Then, as soon as possible after the nine years are up, on Oct. 31, 1935, the entire property is to be sold and the proceeds awarded to the mother of the largest number of children born in the province of Ontario within the nine-year period. A banquet will be held in celebration of the occasion and the fortunate mother presented with a check which, beyond doubt, will be large enough to make her independently wealthy for the rest of her life.

If Rowell, Raney and Spence do not accept their racing shares and the Methodist ministers do not qualify or do not accept their brewery stock, these unaccepted portions will go back into the estate at once, to be disposed of with the residue. And if they do accept the bequests, they are to have only nine years to prosper from the revenues of "sin." Their stock, as well as the other, is then to go to help some mother feed and clothe a houseful of children.

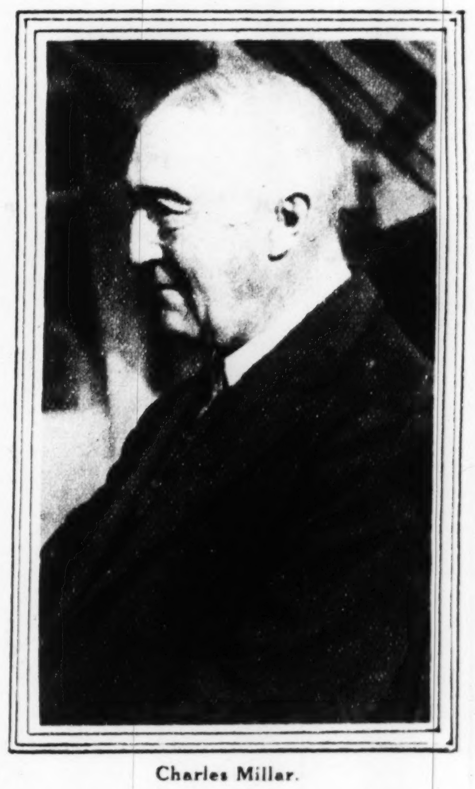
Since the children must be born within the nine-year period following October 31, last, large families already in existence don't count, but some of these are being surveyed with interest as examples of what may be expected as exhibits when the time comes for deciding the award. It is taken for granted that multiple births will figure in piling up the winning count and that competitors need not apply unless they can come forward with two or three sets of twins or triplets. This raises the question of how many children it is possible for one woman to bring into the world within nine years. If credence may be placed in a recent report from Berlin concerning a family of 69 children borne by one mother, it would seem that a nine-year total of 30 or more is not impossible, for this mother was said to have borne four sets of quadruplets, seven sets of triplets and 16 pairs of twins. Such tremendous reproductivity, however, is not expected here. It is generally believed that the family which can boast of two or three sets of twins, with possibly a single birth or two besides, will be well up in the running.

EXTRAORDINARY interest, of course is following the developments, both clerical and domestic, which administration of the will is certain to bring forth. It is said that members of Millar's own profession do not escape from his satire. In drawing his whimsical document he took his dig at the lawyers, too, filling 58 pages of manuscript and inserting all the legal quirks he could think of which would be likely to prove troublesome in a will. Incidentally, he quotes an opinion from Lord Alverstone that a man can do what he likes with his own property, this in support of his contention that his will is invulnerable. Other authorities who have examined it agree that it is, indeed.

As executors of the estate, Millar appointed the two largest trust corporations in the country, corporations which are deadly rivals. The reason for this procedure, he explained, was that "they would quarrel over the fees, and this would help to keep the handling of the estate perfectly straight."

It has been suggested hereabouts that the "joke will," which was drawn in 1921, may have been succeeded by a more serious document, and that it was only a hoax which Millar perpetrated to temper his passing with amusement and to make possible a fling at the reformers. Millar's intimates, however, are convinced the freak instrument was his last and is bona fide. On the day of his death, it is recalled, he remarked to one of his associates of something which reminded him that a few years ago he had made what he termed a "foolish will," one he would have to change. The companion answered that the matter should not be delayed, but if Millar really intended making another, he had already delayed too long. Within a few hours he was dead.

It seems that Millar made several copies of the will and that one copy was regularly executed. While friends and relatives may hope a later instrument will turn up, they have no real evidence that any testament exists. Millar's closest living relatives are two cousins on his father's side of the house. He was never married. Until her death a few years ago, he lived with his mother, to whom, he often declared, he was indebted for all the assistance he ever received in getting on in the world. He was born on a farm and it seems that when he was young his father wanted him to stay on the farm and refused to help him in his determination to get an education at the University of Toronto. While relations remained friendly, it is said, Millar never warmed up to any of his father's relatives after that, even after he became financially successful. Millar, however, had a legion of friends, who were to be found in every stratum of society, from that of stable boys to Cabinet Ministers, and in every part of the Western Hemisphere, from Yukon to Peru. Many thought he would remember some of these in his will, and a common assumption was that he would leave a large amount to the University of Toronto. Both friends and alma mater were to be disappointed. All they got was a good laugh at Millar's joke.



Charles Millar.

WHILE Millar was an unusual character, he was by no means an eccentric. Most of his acquaintances regarded him as the best of good fellows, generous, good-natured and level-headed. His standing in the legal profession was of the highest. Many of the largest corporations of Canada and the United States have engaged his services, and he worked hard on whatever case he undertook. He traveled widely and always had an eye open for speculation. When the Mackenzie River oil rush occurred a few years ago, he was one of the first to enter the country. It was not on record that he ever invested in a single oil claim, but he bought all the boats upon which the eager prospectors had to rely for passage to the oil fields.

One of the men who had known Millar longest and best, perhaps, was Abe Orpen, and Orpen tells several anecdotes that throw considerable light upon the man's character and methods.

"Millar was my closest friend for 50 years," he told the correspondent, "and I had hundreds of business deals with him, but we never had a written contract. In fact, I would never take a written contract from Charlie Millar. His lawyer love of technicalities often led him to dispute written contracts, but nothing could lead him to dispute his word.

"He had a queer, analytical turn of mind. He wanted to look into the souls of people and see what they were on the inside. All his life he leaned to the conviction that avarice and greed for gold exerted the most profound influence on human activities. He had a great respect for this influence, and perhaps overestimated it. No doubt, this was what inspired his peculiar will. He was always trying some test or other to demonstrate his theory.

"I recall once he was unable to serve a summons on an elusive gentleman. So he took the summons, wrapped it up in a neat parcel, put a value of $25 on it and expressed it from Buffalo to the man he sought to reach. The stated value of $25 was the bait, and it worked. Afterwards Millar chuckled: 'I not only served the summons, but I got a receipt for it as well.'

"Once an acquaintance 75 years old came to him with a story that he had only $10,000 and was troubled about his means of livelihood for his remaining years. Millar took him and his $10,000 to an insurance company and eventually made a deal by which the company granted the elderly man an allowance of $2400 a year for the remainder of his life in return for the $10,000 cash. The old gentleman is now 85 years old and has already received $24,000 for his $10,000. Millar was very proud of this achievement and frequently exhorted his old friend to be sure to live to be 100."

Millar resorted to various devices to study man's greed for money. At the Queen's Hotel here, where he lived for several years, it is related that he used to place a dollar bill on the sidewalk running along beside the veranda and then retire out of sight to watch the reactions of passersby who came upon it. When one bill was gone he would replace it with another.

TOM FLANAGAN, for whom Millar acted in his management of the Johnson-Jeffries and Johnson-Willard fights, recalls how Millar came to win the King's Plate.

"He was talking to another racing man one day," said Flanagan, "and in a moment of bravado declared he could win the King's Plate as easily as anyone else. An argument followed and a bet was made. Millar thereupon went out, bought the best colts he could find eligible for the race, trained them and entered them in the race. They ran one, two in the event. Then he was so modest that he kept away from the track so he would not have to appear in the judges' stand to receive the trophy. The incident was typical of Millar's curious shyness."

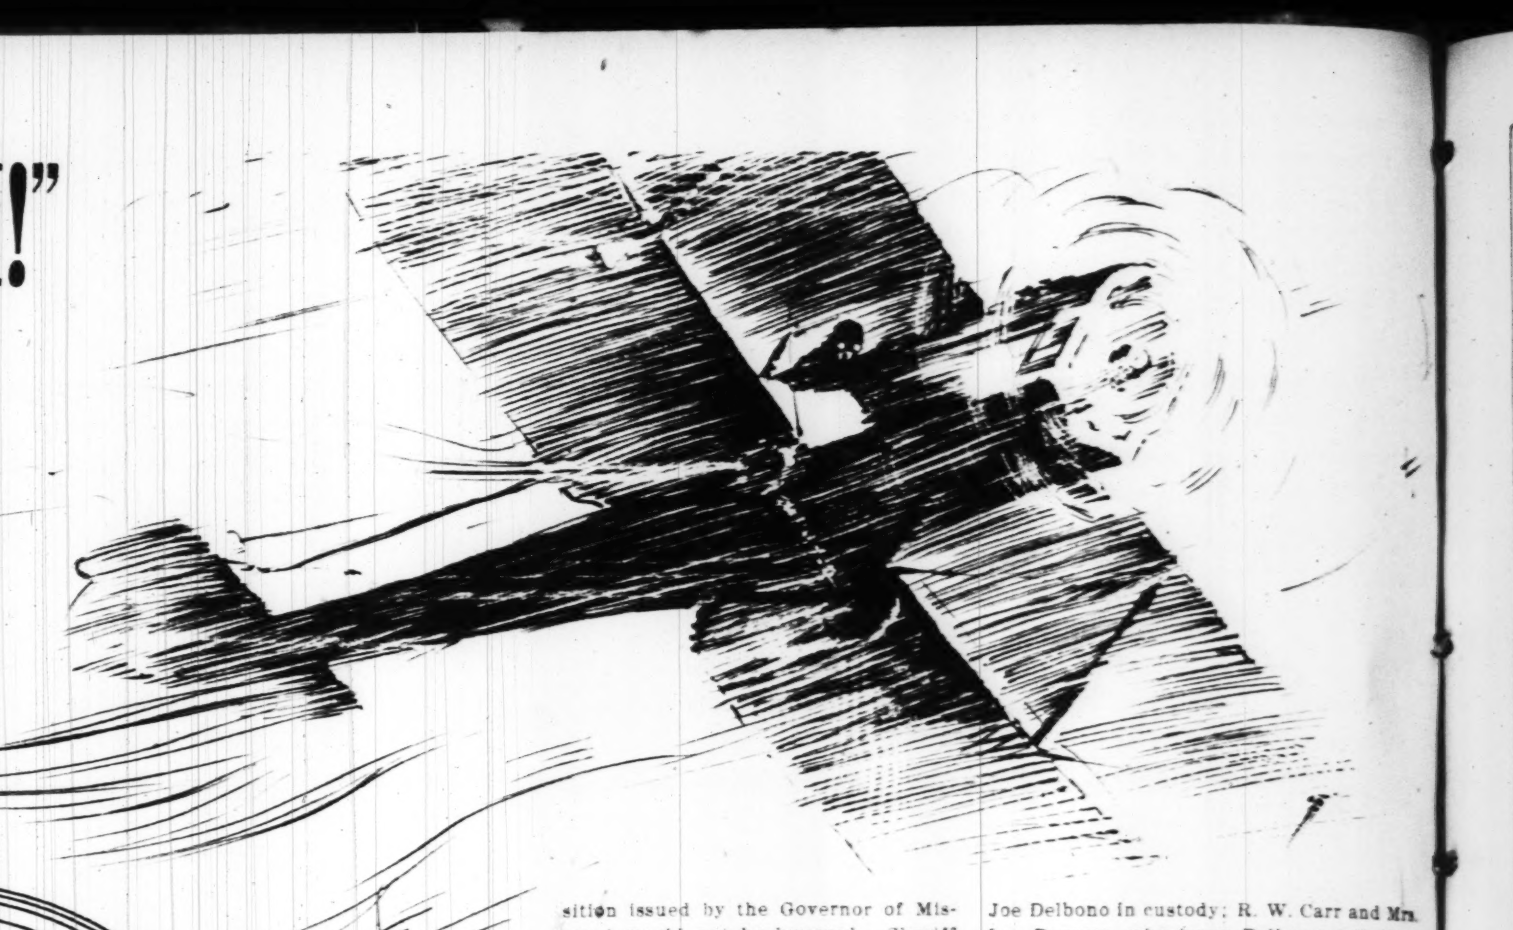
Millar was a vigorous foe of prohibition, but in private life he was exceedingly temperate. He always retired early. Even when guests were assembled at a party in his home, he would excuse himself and would soon be sound asleep, regardless of how much hilarity was going on around him.

James Haverson, a close legal associate of Millar, speaks of him as "a strange man with a tremendously varied circle of acquaintances." Haverson said: "As a lawyer, he had a mind second to none. He would always let the other fellow draw up any agreement when an agreement had to be made in writing. He once told me why. He did this because he could then take advantage of any omission or weakness in it for the benefit of his client."

Millar was a good bargainer, and once he let himself get much the best of a business transaction with a friend. But he didn't forget it. In his will he made a bequest of $10,000 to his friend to compensate him for having got the worst of the deal.

He had few enemies, but there was one man, a prominent Protestant citizen, with whom Millar had trouble. Millar didn't forget him either. In his joker will he left a sum of money to a priest, or that priest's successor in the parish, to say masses for the soul of the Protestant gentleman. Said Millar: "He will need them, wherever he is."

Avenger of Son's Murder Counts "THREE!"



Claude Nowlin Has Spent Four Years in Pursuit of Four Delbono Brothers, Who Killed His Boy on a Missouri Road—Two Are in Prison and One Is Dead.

By F. A. BEHYMER

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oklahoma.

THEY stood at the train gate in the St. Louis Union Station midway, a man and a boy, father and son. The boy was going away. The man was sad. There may have been something like premonition that made this separation harder to bear than others had been. For the boy's sake he had affected a cheeriness he did not feel.

Now it was time for the train to start.

"Goodby, dad," said the boy.

"Goodby, son," said the man.

They clasped hands and then the boy, for all that he was as big as his father, threw an arm around him and kissed him, then hurried away to the train, waving a final farewell.

The man, who was Claude Nowlin, general counsel of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., watched the train depart and returned to his home, his loneliness ameliorated somewhat by recollections of the good month they had had together and his pride in the boy and hopes for his future.

There would be an end of separations by and by when school days were over. It was all settled that the boy, Henry, whose nickname in the family was "H. M.," was to be a lawyer, like his father, and they were to work together as they had played together, and be together always. There was comfort in that for the father in his loneliness.

Letters came every week. Two months had passed. In a few days the boy would be coming back. The man was joyous in the expectation. Then, an hour after midnight, the man was awakened by the telephone's call. He answered drowsily.

It was the boy's mother who was calling. "Claude," she said chokingly, "H. M. is dead—killed—murdered."

• • • • • •

Seldom has there been such affection between a man and a boy as there was between Claude Nowlin and his son, Henry Nowlin. Seldom has there been such grief as was Claude Nowlin's when his son was murdered. Never has there been a greater devotion to a dead son's memory or a greater determination to avenge his death.

For four years Claude Nowlin has spent himself, his accumulations and his earnings in running down the men who murdered his son. All of life that may remain to him and all of labor's rewards that may come to him are dedicated to that purpose. His only regret is that his life and what it may bring to him are all that he can employ in the pursuit.

HENRY was Claude Nowlin's first born. From the first they were pals and playfellows. For his son's sake, Claude Nowlin stayed a boy. For his father's sake, Henry Nowlin was impatient to be a man.

When he was 17 the boy was sent to the Missouri Military Academy at Mexico. When he came back, straight and proud in his uniform, he brought honors with him. He had been one of the editors of the academy paper and a football star and he wore two gold medals that he had won.

He stayed a month in St. Louis with his father. He was to spend the remainder of his vacation with his mother, Mrs. J. W. Holman, at Tulsa, Oklahoma. He was leaving for Tulsa when his father accompanied him as far as the train gate.

When the boy wrote his last letter to his father from Tulsa, he expected to return to St. Louis by train, late in August, for another visit before going back to the military academy. After the letter was sent a plan was formed for a motor trip. He did not notify his father of the change of plan. He would reach St. Louis sooner than he was expected. He would slip up to his father's office and walk in with a hearty "Hello, Dad." It would be a surprise and great fun.

The boy's parents had been divorced. His mother was married again to J. W. Holman, an Oklahoma oil producer. Holman had some business up in Missouri, so the automobile trip was arranged. The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Holman, Henry, his brother, Robert, 12 years old, and W. K. Sweeney, a business associate of Holman.

Claude Nowlin.

Henry Nowlin.

On the evening of August 29, 1922, traveling in two cars, they were nearing Nevada, Missouri. Henry was driving a Hudson car, in which were also Mr. and Mrs. Holman and Holman's daughter, Merywill. Sweeney and Robert were following in a Ford.

A car with blinding headlights came meeting them. It crowded the Hudson off of the road and its right rear wheel dropped over the edge of a culvert. Remonstrances of Holman and young Nowlin were answered with profanity from the other car, which was getting under way again as Sweeney drove up. He had a shotgun which had been used for shooting rabbits along the way. He fired a shot in the direction of the departing car.

He said afterward that the car was out of range and that he fired high with no expectation of hitting it. It seems, though, that some of the shots struck the car and one of the occupants was slightly wounded.

THE men in the car were Sam, Joe and Carl Delbono, Sicilian coal miners, and Henry Dazey, all of Moundsville, Missouri. Sam was driving.

At Moundsville, Dazey left the car and the Delbonos picked up another brother, Frank, and supplied themselves with weapons and returned to the scene.

A passing automobile had taken Mrs. Holman, Miss Holman and Robert to a farmhouse. Holman and Sweeney went in the Ford car for assistance, leaving Henry alone to watch the ditched Hudson.

Adam Roth, who lived near the scene of the accident, saw a car come up and stop. He heard a voice, in broken English, say: "We come back to kill you." There was the ring of courage and defiance in the boyish voice that answered: "Oh, no, you won't kill me." Five or six shots were fired and the car sped away.

Holman and Sweeney came back presently and Roth hailed them and told them what he had heard. They found Henry lying dead in the road. He had been shot twice in the head and once in the breast. The bullet wounds were powder-burned, showing that the shots had been fired at close range.

It was not until after midnight that Mrs. Holman, distracted with grief, collected herself sufficiently to notify the boy's father. It was 1 o'clock when she got Nowlin on the line and told him what had occurred. He started at once to drive to Nevada, where the boy's body had been taken. Rain set in and his car mired down before he had gone half way. He completed the journey by rail.

PROOF presented at the inquest and gathered later by Nowlin and the officials pointed to the four Delbonos. Two of them, Sam and Joe, had disappeared. The other two, Frank and Carl, accused and brought to trial, tried to clear themselves by imputing the guilt to the brothers who had escaped and who were not expected ever to be captured.

They were convicted, however, through the efforts of Nowlin, who had vowed to avenge his son's murder, but the jury let Carl off with 15 years and Frank with 10 years in prison sentences, which they are serving.

Nowlin was bitterly disappointed. As to these two the State had taken vengeance out of his hands, but instead of inflicting justice it had shown mercy, for short prison terms were not the measure of punishment which he felt was their due. As to these two, however, he was helpless while the State was carrying out its idea of chastisement.

Two others, though, Joe and Sam Delbono, were free, untouched by the mild reproof the State had given their brothers. These were fair game for a father who had promised himself that he would not rest until his son's account was settled to the uttermost.

Then began a ceaseless quest. Claude Nowlin, then 41 years old, had achieved success beyond most men of his years. His labors as a lawyer had won him a fair fortune. But fortune was nothing to him with his son's memory unserved in the only way that it could be served. All that his life's labor had brought him, all that it yet might bring him, would be small price to pay for the discharge of what he deemed his duty to his slain son.

To the assistance of county and State officials, generously given, he added the service of detective agencies. And always, by day or night, he held himself in readiness to go wherever a clew might lead. He had duties and responsibilities which he could not shirk, so, in order that his absences on his nation-wide quest might be shortened as much as possible, he utilized airplanes, flying wherever he was called.

IT WAS a faint trail that he and his men were following. Two undersized Sicilians, not differing greatly in their appearance or characteristics from a thousand other Sicilians, were in hiding somewhere, knowing themselves hunted, able to count upon the aid of their countrymen. Descriptions were meager. The only photograph which relatives had failed to destroy was a poor snapshot of Joe. Never did hunted men hide with better right to believe that they never would be found.

There was hope at first that the pursuers would have the help of Sam's fingerprints in the quest for him. He had been drawn in the war draft and had been sent to a Kansas camp where his fingerprints were taken. The Government was asked to aid justice by supplying these, but it took the position that the identification marks of men who had been called into the military service were confidential and could not be employed to serve the ends of justice.

This was one of many hindrances which Nowlin encountered, but no hindrance was great enough to weaken his purpose. The search went on. His part in it was carried on from Oklahoma City, whither he had moved. An airplane pilot was almost constantly at his call. Aside from following definite clews he visited all the coal camps in Missouri and Kansas. His agents searched all the other coal camps in the country.

JOE DELBONO

THESE MEN ARE BROTHERS, B

LY, ITALY.

CRIPTION OF JOE (GIUSEP

k eyes; dark comp

Carl Delbono. Frank Delbono.

After two years' search, Joe Delbono's trail was struck. The information was that he was bootlegging at Springfield, Illinois, driving a Westcott car with a winter top, license 700,-116. The Springfield authorities were notified. Sheriff Lemon, leaving the courthouse after the notification was received, found the Westcott car parked beside his own. He set deputies to watch it, and when a little Italian, accompanied by a woman and child came to it, they arrested him. He said he was William Portieri, occupation, coal miner. He wore a broadcloth suit, silk shirt and patent leather shoes and carried a revolver. His wife and child were well dressed.

Immediately following the man's arrest there began and continued extraordinary activity in the Springfield Italian colony in his behalf, led by John Picco, Italian Consul. Persons acquainted with the deference customarily shown by Governor Small's administration to the Italian voting bloc predicted that the requisition issued by the Governor of Missouri would not be honored. Sheriff Lemon frankly told Sheriff Marshall of Vernon County, Missouri, when he arrived with the papers, that he would need to make a strong showing to get the man. The Springfield Sheriff expressed to me grave doubts whether Missouri would get the man.

Sheriff Marshall had brought two persons who knew Delbono well and who instantly and positively identified the prisoner as Joe Delbono, but Marshall, enlightened as to the Illinois attitude under such circumstances, wired Prosecuting Attorney Dan Gibson of Vernon County to come and bring more witnesses.

Gibson and the additional witnesses came. The extradition hearing was held in Governor Small's office with C. M. Jenkins, Director of Public Welfare, sitting as Judge in the Governor's name. The office was filled with Delbono's friends. Consul Picco bustled about as master of ceremonies, seating the witnesses who were there to swear that Delbono was William Portieri. They did so testify, several of them.

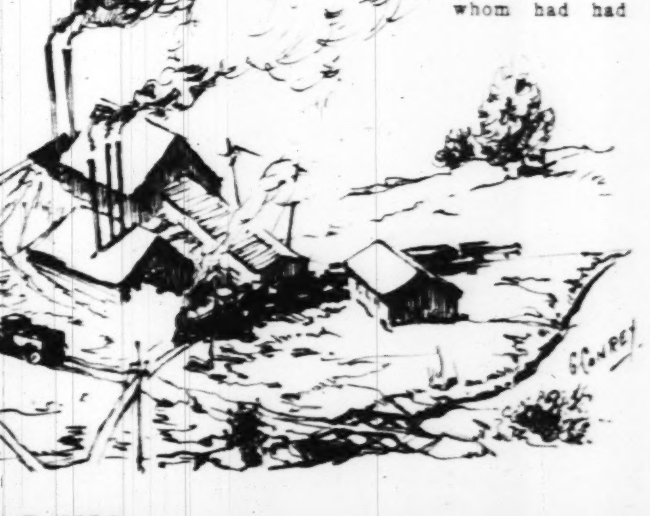
Jim Siciliano was an eager witness. Oh, yes, he knew the accused man well. He was William Portieri. He had worked at Jim's grocery from May to September, 1922, and boarded at Jim's house and never during that time, which covered the date of the Nowlin murder, was William away for a day or night. He was very sure of that. Where was William's wife and his child all the four months that William was working at Jim's grocery and sleeping at Jim's house? Jim shrugged his shoulders and spread his hands. He could not be expected to know where his clerk and boarder kept his family.

James Brown testified that he knew Delbono and that the man before him was not Delbono. The appearance of Brown was a mystery which nobody took the trouble to explain. This James Brown lived at Arma, Kansas, the home of the Delbonos' parents, where Joe and Sam went after the killing, and from where they winged their flight. He is a brother-in-law of Frank Delbono. He was accused of complicity in the crime, but was acquitted. Testifying, he said his home was in Chicago.

For the State of Missouri the witnesses were Milt Gould of Pittsburg, Kansas, former Sheriff of Crawford County, in which is Arma; W. D. Barker, former City Marshal of Arma, both of whom had had Joe Delbono in custody; R. W. Carr and Mrs. Lee Ramsey, who knew Delbono well. Each of them, when asked if Joe Delbono was in the room, turned toward him as he sat a few feet away and looked him in the eye and pointed into his face and said:

"That is Joe Delbono."

Jenkins said something about the sacred rights of an accused person, and took a recess to afternoon. When the hearing was resumed he said he had spent some time in thought. The law was thus and so. The demanding State was required to make strict proof. The demanding State had offered some proof of identity, but only one witness had seen the man in Missouri the night of the murder. On the other hand, several of the accused's countrymen had testified that he was in Springfield at the time. The proof being thus and so, it was the conclusion of "the executive" that the requisition papers would be denied.



THE dazed Missourians departed. Delbono and his friends joyously went their way. Delbono called later at the Sheriff's office and his revolver was returned to him in token of the amity which should subsist between the law and a person who had enjoyed such benefits at the hands of the Governor's requisition officer.

Delbono hunted up James Mariotti, who knew a good deal about him and might have informed on him, and shot him. Mariotti, before he died, was able to say that he had been shot by Joe Delbono, alias William Portieri, and that he had been shot to seal his lips concerning the Nowlin murder.

The shooting, at about the same time, of Joe Chcioppi, who had been associated with Delbono, was also believed to have grown out of the Nowlin murder, but Chcioppi refused to talk.

Claude Nowlin, when Delbono was set free by Jenkins, was trying to reach Springfield. The plane in which he left Oklahoma City was disabled and had to descend. Before Nowlin could arrive by train the murderer had been released. With two years' efforts nullified, there was nothing for him but to resume the weary search.

Joe Delbono, perhaps figuring that there might be such a thing as abusing too much the Springfield sanctuary, left that city and went to Chicago and, under the name of Michael Blando, opened a restaurant. On August 23, this year, poetic justice overtook him. He and his wife had attended a meeting of Sicilians on South Halstead street. They had entered their car to go home when two men stepped out of the shadows and to the side of the car. Several shots were fired. "Michael Blando" was killed.

"My husband's right name," the woman told the police, "was Joseph Delbono. He shot and killed Henry Nowlin."

The killing of Delbono has not been explained. It may have been just an incident of a Chicago bootleggers' war or it may have been reprisal for the killing of James Mariotti. What matters is that Joe Delbono, who is believed to have been the one who fired the shots that killed Henry Nowlin, is dead. Whatever flip of fate may have contributed to that consummation, Claude Nowlin is satisfied.

Sam Delbono is still free, but the search for him goes on.

MORE than four years have passed since Henry Nowlin was murdered, but for Claude Nowlin they have not been years of healing. His grief is not assuaged. His only comfort is carrying on, spending himself and the product of his labors in a quest that knows no ending.

"I owe that to the memory of my son," he says. "It is the least that I can do. I expect to do that if necessary as long as I live."

I asked him, gently, to tell of their parting that day more than four years ago, at the train gate in St. Louis Union Station. He raised his eyes to the portrait of his son, in military school uniform, on the wall of his office. Mist came into them. His face twitched. He controlled himself with difficulty. His voice trembled:

"We were very close. . . . He was a big boy, almost a man. . . . He kissed me good-by. . . ."

It was as though the years had dropped away, and the man, the father, stood again in the Union Station midway. . . . The boy, a big boy, almost a man, straight like a soldier, was passing through the train gate, hurrying, for he had tarried too long. . . . Waving his hand in final farewell.

French Chamber EXPELS A ROTHSCHILD

Ambitious Wife Put Good-Natured Millionaire in Politics—His Lavish Campaign Put a Poverty-Stricken District on Its Feet.

Sem, the caricaturist, a lady and the Baron de Rothschild.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

PARIS, France.

A WOMAN'S ambition has led to a sensational election scandal in France.

The wife of Baron Maurice de Rothschild was anxious to be called "Madame la Deputee" and to pull a few strings in French politics. So she persuaded her husband, who is a kind of good-natured dilettante, to become a candidate for the Chamber of Deputies.

Baron de Rothschild had no party or organization to support him, but he has a large fortune, and under the guidance of some professional politicians he plunged into an orgy of bribery and corruption the like of which has never been seen in France, and may never be seen again.

"I had to give a few gifts to the poor," he naively explained in defending himself before the Chamber of Deputies after his first election.

"How could anyone with my name have done otherwise?"

It happens that nearly all the 105,000 inhabitants in the hilly and sparsely settled Hautes-Alpes department on the Italian frontier are poor, and the way he showered money on them sounds like a Cinderella story.

He bribed one rival candidate to withdraw from the race.

He bribed an influential Socialist Deputy named Cluzel to knife the Socialist candidate and support him.

And then, according to the Chamber's official investigation, he corrupted the voters in every conceivable way. He openly handed out banknotes at his political meetings; he sent new uniforms to all the town firemen, he donated pianos and moving pictures to the schools, and he gave subventions to all hunting, fishing and sporting clubs, town bands and musical organizations, agricultural and mutual aid societies, without forgetting all the large families, the poor families and orphans.

He would arrive at his meetings with a suitcase full of 5 and 10 franc notes.

HE NOT only arranged with all the saloon keepers in the department to give free drinks to all citizens of voting age, but he supplied his supporters with the finest French wines.

Baron de Rothschild himself owns the famous "Romanee" burgundy vineyard, which he inherited from his grandfather, and his relatives own two noted clarets—the "Chateau-Lafitte" and the "Mouton-Rothschild."

He sent thousands of bottles of these noted wines, some years of which are almost priceless, to help fight for him, and they did their duty nobly.

In addition to providing 10 magnificent motor cars for his agents, he hired every available automobile in the country, in order to deprive his opponents of transport, and not only paid the owners a high price, but promised them if he was elected he would give them a cash present equal to the value of their cars.

He distributed monen so freely that men flocked to the Hautes-Alpes from all the neighboring departments, and one witness testified to the Chamber's investigating committee:

"When we heard that Baron de Rothschild would be a candidate, we knew that we would have a gold mine in the department and that the gold-bearing brook, Pactolus, would commence to flow again."

The news even spread across the Alps to Italy and Mussolini's subjects flocked over the frontier to get some of the golden drippings.

One witness, who was not even a voter in the department, testified that he had received 800 francs in handouts in a single day.

Baron de Rothschild was elected Deputy in August, 1924, and in spite of the tremendous influence of his family in France, there was a great outcry as the details of his campaign methods slowly filtered out from this remote province.

Incidentally, he had been vainly summoning the stork for 18 years, and his election caused so much joy in the family that a few months later it came sure enough.

IT IS generally believed that he spent over $200,000 on this election, which is an enormous amount when it is converted into francs at the rate of 33 to the dollar.

Baron de Rothschild is a great-great-grandson of Mayer Anselm Bauer of Frankfort, and the story of how this modest Jewish banker laid the foundation of the Rothschild financial dynasty makes a sharp contrast to the frivolities of his descendants. Bauer was just a little banker at the "Sign of the Red Shield" in "Jew Alley," in Frankfort, but renowned for his integrity. Elector William of the Province of Hesse-Cassel came to see his stamp collection, one day, as both were ardent stamp collectors, and he was so impressed with Bauer's honesty and financial knowledge that in 1801 he appointed him his business agent.

Rothschild and Sardanopolis, his horse, which won the Grand Prix.

The Elector had to flee when Napoleon invaded Germany, and he turned all his silver and gold over to Bauer to hide for him. The latter buried it in his garden and afterward invested it so skillfully that he returned it to the owner with 5 per cent interest. The Elector was so delighted that he recommended Bauer to all the German nobility, who gave him their funds to invest.

Bauer rapidly became a great banker—he had taken the name of Rothschild from the red shield on his bank—and sent his son, Nathan Meyer, to London, a second son to Vienna and a third to Naples. A fourth son remained at Frankfort and a fifth son, James de Rothschild, established himself in Paris after Waterloo had been fought.

The father died in 1812, and 10 years later, Metternich, the great Austrian Prime Minister, gave the title of Baron to all the sons.

Nathan Meyer Rothschild, who went to London, proved to be an even greater genius than his father.

He not only organized a system of sailing boats and carrier pigeons to receive financial information from all over Europe, but he was present at the battle of Waterloo, and his couriers reached London two hours ahead of the official news, which enabled him to make a great coup on the Stock Exchange.

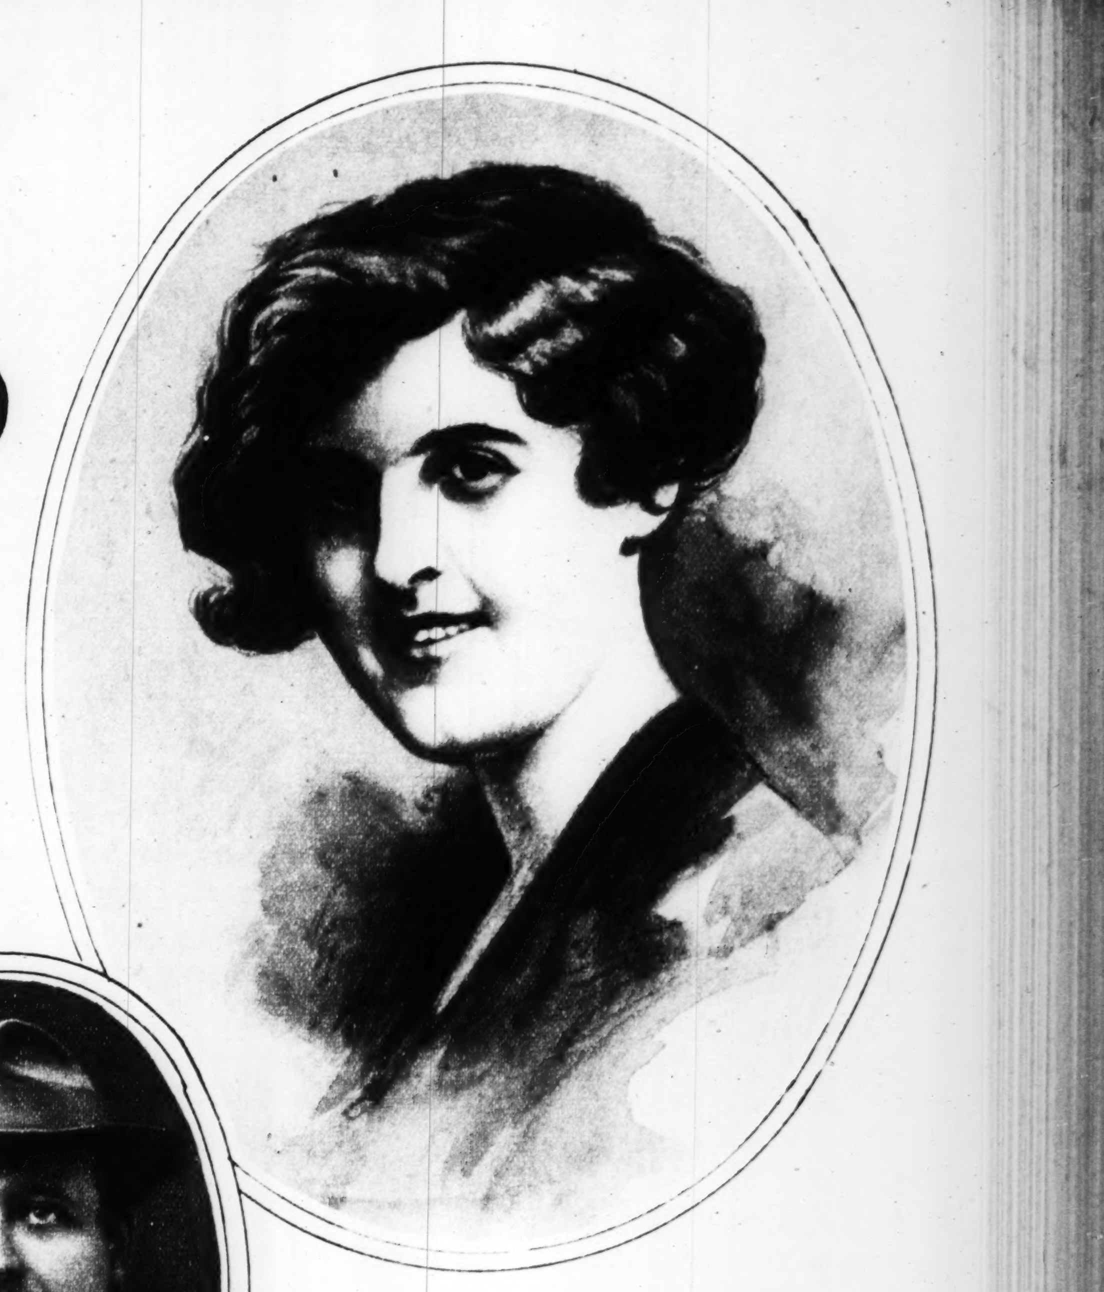
His son, Lord Rothschild, became one of the most influential men in England and when he died, in 1915, the fortune of all the Rothschilds was estimated at $2,000,000,000.

JAMES DE ROTHSCHILD, who opened a branch in Paris, handled the French reparation payments after Waterloo, financed the first railway in France, and his son Alphonse—1827-1905—handled the French reparation payments after the Franco-Prussian War and became the greatest financier in France, as well as an influential political and social leader.

Alphonse's son, Edmond de Rothschild, who is now the head of the Rothschild banking house in Paris, is one of the regents of the Bank of France, and one of the most powerful and respected men in France today.

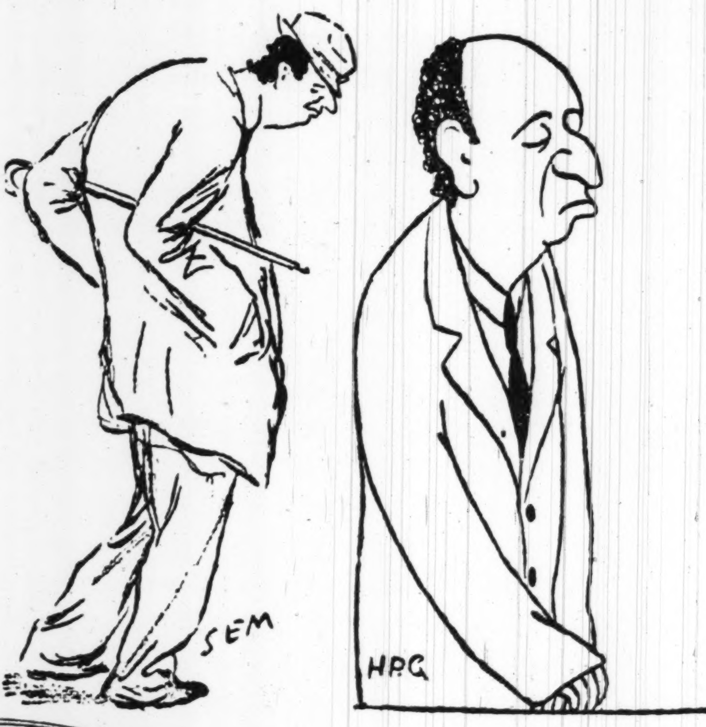
The two nephews of Edmond de Rothschild—Maurice and Henri—are not made of the same stuff as their great-great-grandfather Bauer of Frankfort.

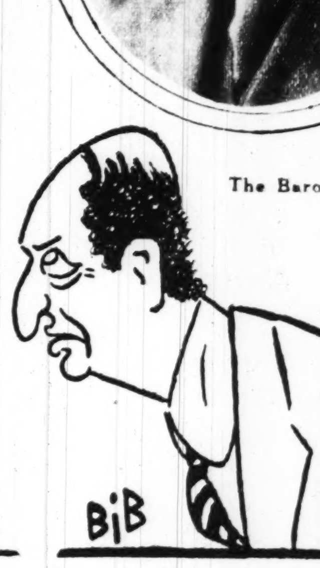
The founder of the dynasty was all wool and a yard wide, but Henri and Maurice are made out of lighter material.

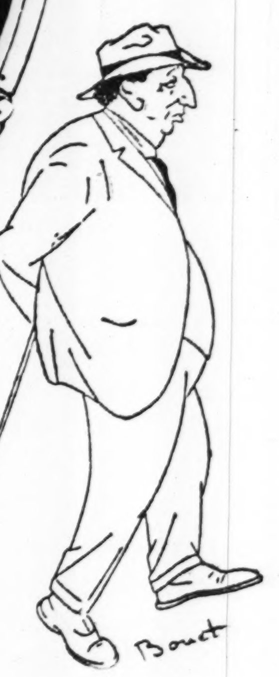


The ambitious Baroness de Rothschild.

The Baron







As Paris cartoonist saw the Baron.

Henri, who fancies himself a dramatic author, bought the Theater de la Madeleine in Paris, hired a company, and sets Paris in high glee every winter by producing his erratic plays at elaborate expense.

Maurice, who is timid, good-natured and easy-going, played with a racing stable until his wife became interested in politics.

The two brothers, who have inherited large fortunes, do not have the slightest interest in finance or banking, and it has often been remarked that in their eyes is a kind of vacant stare, a tired, flickering kind of extinct gaze, and a picturesque French writer said once that "the glitter of gold too long handled has put out and tired their eyes, as is the case with those who make gold and silver embroidery."

AFTER her husband had dropped a small fortune in horse racing, Baroness Maurice de Rothschild, born Naomi Halphen, who belongs to one of the principal French Jewish families—the Jewish women are leading the woman suffrage movement in France—persuaded him to enter politics in order to help the cause and, running as an Independent, he was elected a Deputy for the Hautes-Pyrenees department on the Spanish frontier in 1919.

In spite of huge expenditure he was defeated at the general elections in the same province in May, 1924, but several weeks later a newly-elected Deputy in the Hautes-Alpes department died suddenly.

Baron de Rothschild saw an opportunity to run in the special election in this department—a French Deputy does not need to be a resident of his department—and, under the impulsion of his wife and a Socialist Deputy named Cluzel, who wished to be his financial manager, he plunged into a campaign that will remain historic in France for its comedy as well as its corruption.

The campaign was simplified because the Hautes-Alpes is a poor, straggly mountainous province, with only 17,000 electors, rather off the beaten track.

In this election Baron de Rothschild not only bribed the voters individually, but he bribed them collectively.

"I see that you are as poor as church mice here," he said to them in substance. "If you elect me Deputy I will make you all rich. I will bring tourists here and build tourist hotels. I will guarantee a loan to build roads and railroads. I will lend you blooded cattle. I will improve the provincial capital and I will start a bank to loan everyone money at 2 per cent interest."

The peasants of the Hautes-Alpes were convinced that he was joking, but they elected him by a small majority on August 10, 1924.

The election was so notoriously corrupt that the communist, socialist and radical newspapers, for whom he personified capitalism, started a bitter campaign against him, and the Chamber of Deputies decided, on April 1, 1925, to send a commission to the Hautes-Alpes to investigate the corruption and make a report on whether he should be validated or not.

In the meantime, Baron de Rothschild actually carried out all the promises he made his supporters.

He opened a bank that loaned money at 2 per cent interest.

He gave money out of his pocket to build new roads through the department.

He floated a loan of 500,000 francs at Paris for improvements at Gap, the provincial seat.

He floated another loan to build railways through the department.

He built tourist hotels, advertised the sights of the Hautes-Alpes and is really attracting tourists there.

He sent a score of pedigreed bulls and gave his electors free use of them to improve their stock.

He planted vineyards on the hills and is trying out other crops.

THE Chamber's commission finally finished its investigation and, although the evidence of corruption was overwhelming, the majority of the commission decided to recommend his validation.

Baron de Rothschild, however, had his misgivings, and, in his naive, innocent way, he daily sent a basket of partridges and pheasants to 400 Deputies last winter. He has one of the biggest hunting preserves in France, and he apparently kept his gamekeepers busy killing game for the Deputies who were to judge his case. The majority of these Deputies accepted the game, but blackballed him just the same.

The Chamber received the commission's report on July 1, 1926, and Baron de Rothschild proved to be a damning witness against himself.

A Communist Deputy then read a lot of testimony from the report, like the following:

An Italian mason had fallen off a scaffold in the Hautes-Alpes, and when he recovered he went to see Baron de Rothschild, as everyone said the latter was giving money away.

"You have seven children?" the Baron exclaimed. "That's fine, but do you have your voter's card?"

"I am not a voter here, I am an Italian," the man explained.

"Then I can't give you anything," the Baron replied.

In spite of the commission's recommendation that he be validated, the Chamber voted 202 against 86 to invalidate his election.

The 300 Deputies who were absent also favored invalidation, but they remained away in order not to vote with the 25 Communists who led the fight against validation.

A new election was held in the Hautes-Alpes on October 3, and Baron de Rothschild, who is immensely popular there now, won an overwhelming victory with 10,540 votes against 3149 of his nearest opponent.

The French newspapers declare that the last contest was even more corrupt than the first one, and many demanded that the election be invalidated again, but there is very little likelihood of this.

If he is invalidated a second time he will undoubtedly be elected again by an even greater majority, and then he can laugh at the Chamber.

MAURICE DE ROTHSCHILD was brought up by his grandfather, Baron Alphonse, who lived in magnificent style.

The country house of Baron Alphonse is a magnificent chateau a few miles east of Paris, called Ferrieres, and Maurice was reared there like a young Prince, as the family had high hopes of him.

The Rothschilds built this castle to rival Versailles, and they filled it with some of the most valuable art treasures in Europe.

Baron Edmond, who is the head of the family in France, devotes all his time to investing the wealth of himself and his relatives, as he has no time for banking business.

The Rothschild fortune in France today is estimated at more than $1,000,000,000, and is growing rapidly all the time. It shrunk slightly after the war, owing to the depreciation of the franc, but on the other hand they did not lose any money in Russia.

They have put most of their money in the best French railways and industrial enterprises, and they have a controlling interest in the Nord Railway, which is the most prosperous in France.

The branches of the Rothschild family in the various countries still co-operate financially and still intermarry to some extent, but they lack the geniuses they had a few years ago.

The English branch has almost disappeared, the Austrian branch has lost its importance and only the French and German branches have much vitality left.

There is one passion of the family that never flags, and that is its interest in collecting stamps.

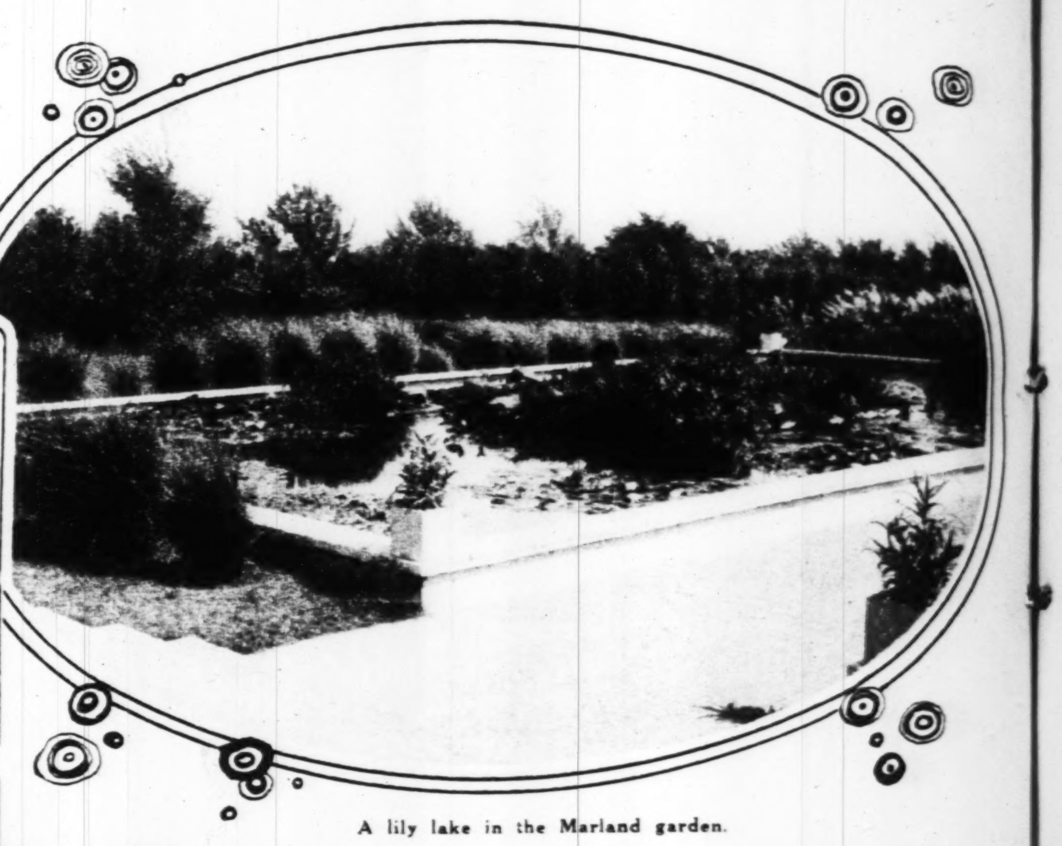
The founder of the house attributed his start in life to Elector William's coming to see his stamp collection, and he set this up as a sort of lucky fetish for the family.

And to this day every Rothschild collects stamps from the time he is born until the day he dies.

Now Ernest Marland Has a Garden

He Wanted One for 40 Years and Now That Wealth Has Come to Him He Has One That He Shares With His Neighbors and He Invites Everybody to Come and See It

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch



A lily lake in the Marland garden.

Ernest W Marland.

PONCA CITY, Oklahoma.

ERNEST MARLAND always wanted a garden. A great garden filled with flowers and green and growing things. When he was a boy he clung to paling fences and coveted the glories that grew beyond the barriers. When he was a man, he promised himself, he would have a garden of his own, such a garden as nobody ever saw before. And there wouldn't be a fence around it. It would be his garden, but everybody in the world could come and walk in it and enjoy the flowers and the green and growing things.

Now, Ernest Marland is a man and he has a garden, and it is for a truth such a garden as seldom is seen, and there is no fence around it. It is open to everybody, to the neighbors and the neighbors' children and all the city's dwellers and the strangers who come from afar.

Not a garden only but a refuge for the birds and a golf course and parks for polo and open fields for other outdoor sports, something like 2500 acres in all, his gift to his city and to his generation and to generations to come. All because he always wanted a garden.

Up to eighteen years ago, the man who wanted a garden had to be content with gazing at others' gardens for he had not made such a success in life as would entitle him to indulge his life-long desire. He was 32 years old then and had won a sort of place among men, as a Pittsburg lawyer, who had turned from law to West Virginia coal leases, adventuring some in oil and gas, in hopes of greater gains than his profession promised, but his winnings had not been great, at no time great enough to justify the acquisition of a garden, and, in fact, at 32, his dream garden was less likely of fulfillment than it had been at odd times before, for the tale that is told out here is that about all he got out of West Virginia oil and gas was experience and at 32 he was pretty thoroughly flattened out.

Oil and gas had claimed him as their own, however, and though they had buffeted him he still had high hopes and was game for another encounter.

OUT here on the plain was the 101 Ranch, cut through by Salt Fork River, stretching almost to the horizon, a great expanse of grazing land, serving well its purpose, but it occurred to George Miller, one of the trio since known to fame as the Miller Brothers, that there might be oil somewhere under the vast Miller holdings. It was a well known fact that oil was hidden deep in the earth. Pools of it had been found here and there. There had grown up a geological jargon, but if anybody had asked George Miller he would have said that he thought it was mostly bunk. Oil might be anywhere. One man's guess was as good as another's. The only way to find out was to poke a pipe down and see what came out.

Maybe, if a pipe was poked down on the 101 Ranch, oil would come out. Maybe not. It was just a gamble. He was too busy to do any poking himself, but there was plenty of room on the ranch. If somebody wanted to come along and bore a hole to find out what was down below he would co-operate to the extent of giving them plenty of room to bore.

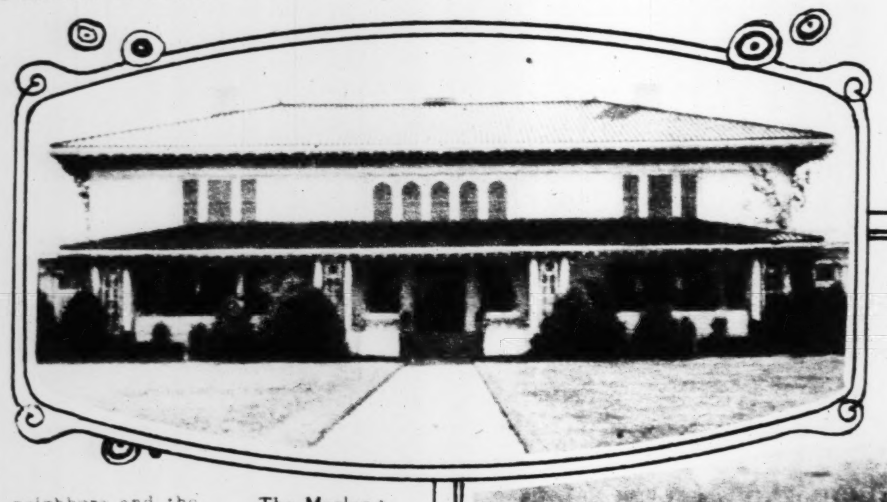
He talked about it to Lieutenant Frank Kenny at Oklahoma City. The Lieutenant was going East. "If you see anybody who wants to take a chance by boring for oil on our place send him out," said Miller.

IN PITTSBURG Lieutenant Kenny mentioned the matter to Ernest W. Marland. He could not, of course, undertake to say that there was oil under the Miller land, but he could say that there was plenty of room to look for it.

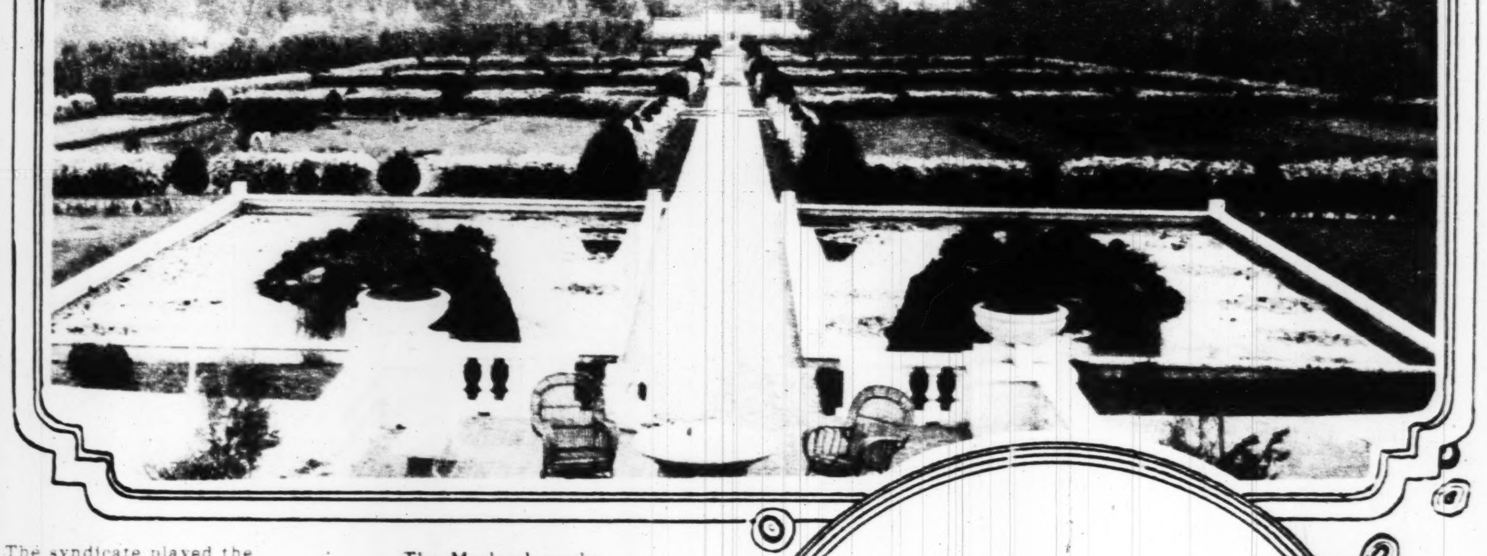
Marland was interested. The tradition that has come down is that he knew his geology and it told him that there was a chance for oil out here. If you ask George Miller, though, he just grins and gives it as his seasoned opinion that Marland knew precisely as much about geology as a hog knows about Sunday. Which isn't much.

However that may be, Marland came, bringing two or three friends with him. With him then, or shortly afterward, were associated Lew Wentz, J. G. McCaskey and Joseph M. Weaver. They scraped up a little money somehow and Miller told them to take all the room they needed on the ranch, and joined with them in organizing the 101 Ranch Oil Co. They hired V. A. Waldo to do the drilling.

The first boring was done out a little way from the big ranch house. It was a toss-up whether they would be able to hold out. About the only thing that they needed was money, but they needed that bad. It was slow work. Waldo's Mexicans were inexperienced and they hated to hurry anyway. Every month there was a crisis. Would the syndicate be able to scrape together enough dollars for the pay-off? As to what was coming to Waldo for his month's toil, maybe he got it and maybe he didn't. It all depended upon how good he was at poker, for the question of payment or no payment was left, Miller says, to the arbitrament of the poker game. The syndicate played the borer. His month's pay was the stake. If the syndicate won, Waldo had to bore for nothing until the next pay day and the next poker game. If he won, the syndicate rustled for enough money to pay its debt of honor.



The Marland home.



The Marland garden.

The well was a "duster." No oil.

There were indications, though. Waldo gave it as his opinion that there was oil somewhere near. But they had to have money to go ahead.

Marland and McCaskey knew a man back in Pittsburg who had sold something and had some money. If they could get it. It wouldn't be easy. It would take strategy. They worked out a plan. The man's name was William H. McFadden. They would send McCaskey to do the talking and Miller for atmosphere. Perhaps the Mc and the breeze of the plains would turn the trick.

This McFadden was a sick man. They found him on a sleeping porch. McCaskey talked and Miller posed. The talk was of strata and anticlines and such. McFadden was impressed. Maybe he would come in.

As they were leaving Miller, mistakenly supposing he was out of earshot of McFadden, said to McCaskey: "Mac, if we are going to get that man's money we'd better get it quick or he'll be dead."

McFadden heard it and it made him mad. So they thought he was going to die. He would fool them. He came out and put his money in and put himself in. He was full of fight and the outdoor life cured him.

THERE was some difference of opinion about where to start the second well. The syndicate favored one location. The well man favored another. His reason was that it was near his boarding house. He had his way. Marland and the others said, "Oh, very well." It turned out afterward that the syndicate had picked out the best place, geologically considered. George Miller mentions it as going to show that geology did not have much to do with it at that stage.

They put down nine wells with McFadden's money. Plenty of gas, but no oil. So they organized as a gas company. The next one struck oil. It was on the Calls-Him Indian allotment, under lease to the Millers. It came in unexpectedly. Miller was out on the ranch. Wentz was the only man of the outfit in Ponca City. The well man got word to him. He hired a livery team, a forgivable extravagance under the circumstances, and went tearing out to the ranch to find Miller and tell him about it. Marland was off bossing the job of putting a pipe line across Salt Fork at Whiteagle. They found him in the river with his pants off and broke the news to him. He put on his pants and they rampaged back to the well.

That was the beginning of Ponca City's oil boom and the beginning of Marland's wealth. Now he is head of the vast Marland interests, one of the richest men of the world. And he has his garden.

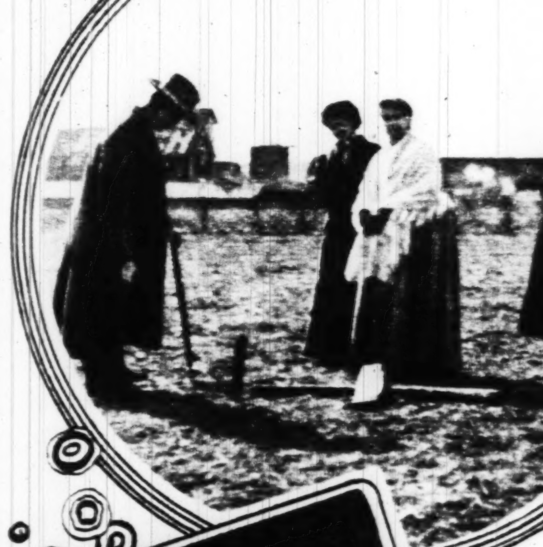
Everybody expected, when Marland was making money hand over fist, that when he had made so much that it would take about all of his time to spend it, he would go away to New York or some other hectic center, as oil magnates usually do, and make his home there. Everybody was wrong. New York is too crowded. A man couldn't have much of a garden there.

In Oklahoma it is different. Here anyone who is so minded can have a garden of a few thousand acres without encroaching upon his neighbors. So, when Marland had made a little money in oil, as he was once heard to express it, he came to the determination to make his home in Oklahoma and looked about for a suitable place. It would have to be somewhere around Ponca City, for here he had made his money and here were his interests.

There was a site east of town that he could get. It was only 80 acres, but it would do for a start. It was hardly the place that anybody else would have chosen for a home. It was nothing but cornfield and stubble. There was not a tree or a shrub on it. In the middle of it was the town dump. The only thing that it had to recommend it was its elevation. Not much of an elevation at that. A hill man would have to look twice to see it, but it is what they call elevation in Oklahoma.

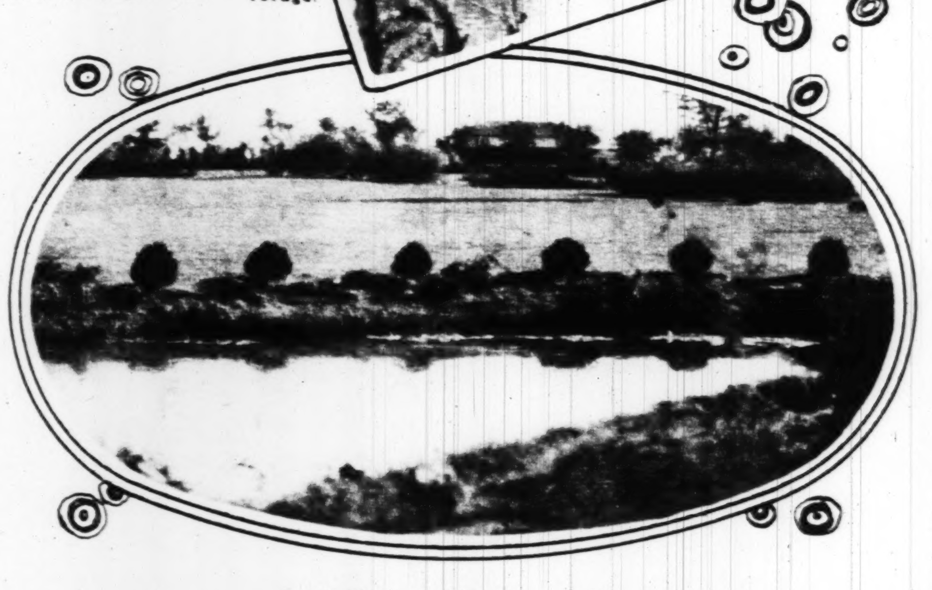
Marland, though, always keeping in mind the garden he hoped to have, had studied landscaping. It was not like his early geology. He took pencil and paper and drew a house and a garden, with walks and avenues. The only trouble was that the paper was not big enough. The walks and avenues ran off of the edge. It was plain that he would have to have more room. So he increased it to 400 acres. On 400 acres a man could have a garden of such dimensions that he would not bark his shins on the statuary when he went walking in the cool of the evening. He could even have a golf course off at one side. He used a bigger sheet of paper and sketched in the golf course.

He built his house, which didn't take very long, and began building his garden and golf course, which would take a good while. The first winter he cleared the cornfield and stubble and dimensioned his garden and golf course, and defined their boundaries with three miles of privet hedge.



George Miller driving the stake for the first oil test in the Ponca City field, in 1909, with his wife and mother and Marland looking on.

In the Marland game refuge.



A Marland golf course hazard.

He needed a lot of trees, if the place was going to look like anything. It takes a long time to grow trees. He was not content to wait upon Nature's slow processes. He sent scouts to the river bottoms five to fifteen miles away and they located 400 trees, ten to twelve inches in diameter. They were dug up and hauled in and placed where they would do the most good.

The second year the concrete walks were laid in the garden, permanently defining its formal scheme. The garden itself, as thus defined, was possibly the largest private garden in the United States, 400 by 1600 feet. Shrubbery was brought from all over the United States, including every variety of evergreen. In six years he had brought together a great variety of shrubbery and plant life, native to the various parts of the country. Many of the specimens were from warmer and colder climes, which had to be protected in winter or summer, according to their nature. They included 20 half-grown magnolias, 20 feet high, from Avery Island, Louisiana. To protect them from the blasts of Oklahoma winters each was separately housed where it stood.

THE golf course took form and comeliness apace with the garden. In its comeliness it was unlike other golf courses, for it was lavishly landscaped. Marland could see no reason why golf should be played on a bare field, with nothing but sward and undulations to relieve it. Anyway, he wasn't going to have anything about his place that couldn't be landscaped. He would leave the fairways open. That was the only concession he would make to the exigencies of the game.

Long before the garden and course were finished Marland gave out that the grounds were for everybody. He would retain only the right to keep them up and pay the bills. Outside of that they were for the public to enjoy, whether it found its enjoyment in strolling through the garden or playing on the links.

To be sure, creating and keeping up such grounds cost a pretty penny, about $250,000 for materials and labor in the six years that they were being brought to perfection and the hire of 30 men all the year round to look after them.

It came to the ears of Marland one day that certain of the town's golf players, feeling themselves obligated, were creating a fund to assist, at least, in caring for the course. It was nice of them, but Marland gently but firmly squelched the plan. It wouldn't do, he said, because those who were not able to contribute to the fund would not feel free to pay.

Local players, of whom there are many in the town of 18,000, have become accustomed to playing in a setting of flowers and shrubs, but visiting players find their play cramped by the distractions of fairways with fancy borders and roughs garnished with flower beds and the water hazards covered with every variety of lilies that can be grown in this climate.

IT WAS a safe guess that a man who had always wanted a garden would not be satisfied when he had it, even with a golf course on the side. Before these had their finishing touches Marland was reaching out for other and greater barrens on which to bring to bear his beautifying touch. His new plan embraced the birds and fowls of the air and the fishes of the waters and such other wild life as could fit into a game preserve program. Three hundred acres were set aside wherein the life of every wild thing would be sacred and a force of landscapers, headed by Marland, fell upon the uncomely area and converted it into a place of loveliness.

"For," says Marland, "I can conceive of no greater service that I might render to our State than to preserve the remnants of our wild life and restore in some degree to our woods, plains and streams the birds, animals and fish which formerly abounded and were one of the greatest assets of the State during the pioneer days."

And there are polo fields for the encouragement of the sport, which has many active devotees in Ponca City, with tournaments under the direction of Don L. Henderson, who was in charge of outdoor recreations for the United States Army on the Rhine, and great open spaces for fox hunting and all sorts of sports, and a projected flying field.

And always, wherever possible, landscaping is done, for there are no boundaries to the garden which Ernest Marland always wanted and dreamed about and is making a glorious reality wherever his hand touches.

TO THE dooryards of the 5000 employes of the Marland companies and to the yards of the other residents of the city and to the more than 400 filling stations maintained by the company, far and near, the gardening infection has spread and in all of these places there are gardens that are fair to look upon.

Just now, in the midst of the game preserve, a great stone mansion is going up, at a cost which may run close to a million dollars, which is to be a house of hospitality for the guests who come to visit the man or attend the numerous recreational activities which he sponsors.

Nobody can tell how much greater may be the extension of Marland's garden. Out beyond the present boundaries are miles of farmland that he owns. Already, by agreement, these are included in the game sanctuary and afford additional range for cross country riding between crop seasons. These farms may be absorbed sooner or later in the general plan. It may come to pass that Ponca City, on the Oklahoma plain, will be known for its greatest privately-owned recreation grounds in the world. All because Ernest Marland always wanted a garden.

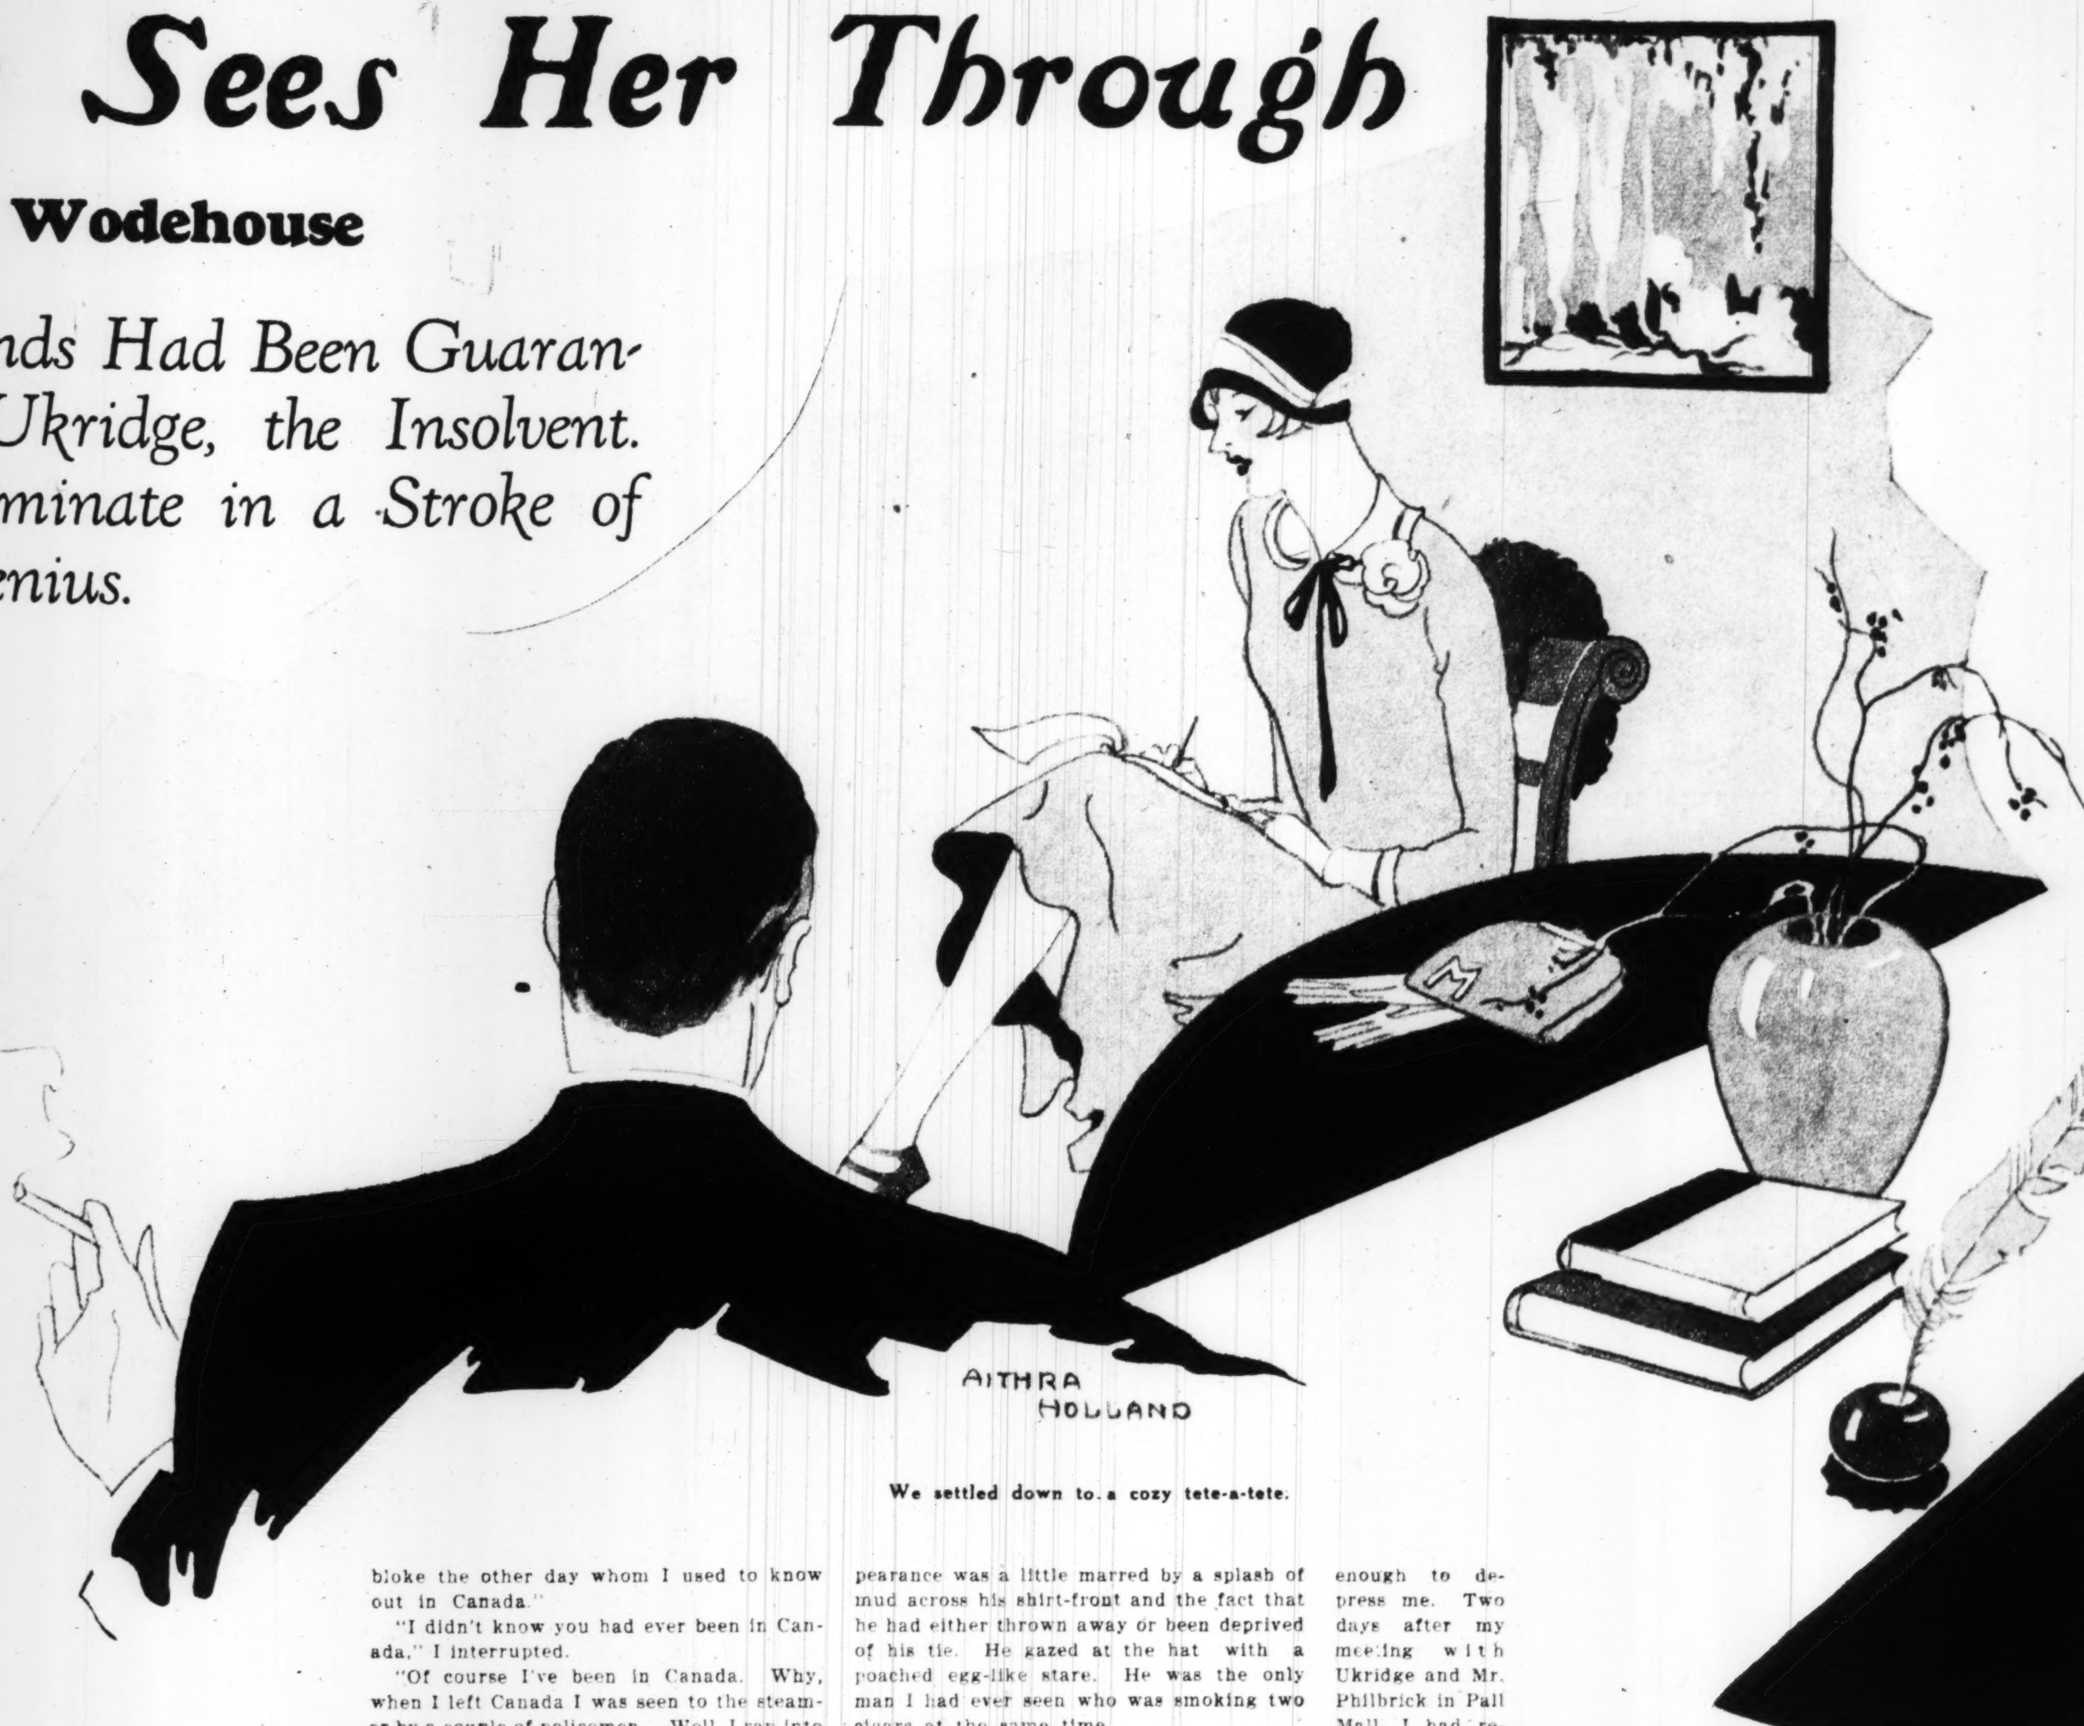
Ukridge Sees Her Through

By P. G. Wodehouse

Payment of 100 Pounds Had Been Guaranteed for Dora by Ukridge, the Insolvent. His Maneuvers Culminate in a Stroke of Financial Genius.



We settled down to a cozy tete-a-tete.

THE girl from the typewriting bureau had a quiet but speaking eye. Rising from that formidable notebook, it met mine with a look of exasperated bewilderment. I could read what was in her mind. She thought me a fool. And as this made the thing unanimous, for I had been feeling exactly the same way myself, I decided that the painful exhibition must now terminate.

It was Ukridge who had let me in for the thing. He had fired my imagination with the tales of authors who were able to turn out 5000 words a day by dictating their stuff. Although I felt that he was merely trying to drum up trade for the typewriting bureau in which his young friend, Dora Mason, was now a partner, the lure of the idea had gripped me. It was only when those gleaming eyes looked into mine and that pencil poised itself to record the lightest of my golden thoughts that I discovered what I was up against.

"I'm sorry," I said, "but I'm afraid it's not much use going on. I don't seem able to manage it."

Now that I had admitted my idiocy, the girl's expression softened.

"Lots of people can't," she said. "It's just a knack."

"Everything seems to go out of my head."

"I've often thought it must be very difficult to dictate."

Two minds with but a single thought, in fact. Her reasonableness, combined with the relief that the thing was over, induced in me a desire to babble. One has the same feeling when the dentist lets one out of his chair.

"You're from the Norfolk Street Agency, aren't you?" I said. A silly question, seeing that I had rung them up on the telephone and asked them to send somebody round; but I was still feeling the effects of the ether.

"Yes."

"That's in Norfolk street, isn't it? I mean," I went on hurriedly, "I wonder if you know a Miss Mason there? Miss Dora Mason."

She seemed surprised.

"My name is Dora Mason," she said.

I HAD not supposed that partners in typewriting businesses stooped to going out on these errands. And I was conscious of a return of my embarrassment, feeling—quite unreasonably, for I had only seen her once in my life, and then from a distance—that I ought to have remembered her.

"We were short-handed at the office," she explained, "so I came along. But how do you know my name?"

"I am a friend of Ukridge's."

"Why, of course! I was wondering why your name was so familiar. I've heard him talk so much about you."

We settled down to a cozy tete-a-tete. She was a nice girl, the only flaw in her character being an absurd respect for Ukridge's intelligence and abilities. I, who had known that foe of the human race from boyhood up and was still writhing beneath the memory of the night when he had sneaked my dress clothes, could have corrected her estimate, but it seemed unkind.

"He was wonderful about this typewriting business," she said. "It was such a splendid opportunity. But for Mr. Ukridge, I should have let it slip. You see, they were asking 200 pounds for the partnership, and I only had a hundred. And Mr. Ukridge insisted on putting up the balance. You see—I don't know if he told you—he insisted that he ought to do something. He says he lost me the position I had with his aunt. It wasn't his fault, really, but he kept saying if I hadn't gone to that dance with him I shouldn't have gone back late and been dismissed. So"——

"Did you say that Ukridge insisted on finding the rest?" I gasped.

"Yes."

"He gave you a hundred pounds? Ukridge!"

"Guaranteed it," said Miss Mason. "I arranged to pay a hundred pounds down and the rest in 60 days."

"But suppose the rest is not paid in 60 days?"

"Well, I'm afraid I should lose my hundred. But it will be, of course. Mr. Ukridge told me to have no anxiety about that. Well, Mr. Corcoran, I must be going now. I'm sorry we didn't get better results with the dictating. I should think it must be very difficult to do till you get used to it."

Her cheerful smile struck me as one of the most pathetic sights I had ever seen. Poor child, bustling off so brightly when her future rested on Ukridge's ability to raise a hundred pounds!

I WAS pursuing this train of thought when the banging of the door, followed by footsteps on the stairs and a confused noise without, announced Ukridge's arrival.

"I say, laddie," he said, entering the room, as was his habit, like a northeasterly gale, "was that Dora Mason I saw going down the street? It looked like her back. Has she been here?"

"Yes. I asked her agency to send someone to take dictation, and she came."

Ukridge reached out for the tobacco jar, filled his pipe, replenished his pouch, sank comfortably onto the sofa, and adjusted the cushions.

"What is all this I hear about your guaranteeing Miss Mason a hundred quid?" I asked.

"Ah, she told you? Yes," said Ukridge, airily. "I guaranteed it. Matter of conscience, old son. You see, it was my fault that she was sacked by my aunt. Got to see her through, laddie, got to see her through."

I goggled at the man.

"Look here," I said. "Let's get this thing straight. A couple of days ago you touched me for 5 shillings and said it would save your life."

"It did, old man; it did."

"And now you're talking of scattering a hundred quid about the place. Do you smoke it or inject it with a needle?"

There was pain in Ukridge's eyes.

"I don't like this tone, laddie," he said. "Upon my Sam, it wounds me. It sounds as if you had lost faith in me, in my vision."

"Oh, I know you've got vision. And the big, broad, flexible outlook. Also snap, ginger, enterprise, and ears that stick out at right angles, like the sails of a windmill. But that doesn't help me to understand where on earth you expect to get a hundred quid."

Ukridge smiled tolerantly.

"YOU don't suppose I would have guaranteed the money unless I knew where to lay my hands on it, do you? If you ask me: 'Have I got the stuff at this precise moment?' I candidly reply: 'No, I haven't.' But it's fluttering on the horizon, laddie. I can hear the beating of its wings."

"Is Battling Billson going to fight and make your fortune again?"

Ukridge winced, and the look of pain flitted across his face once more.

"Don't mention that man's name to me, old horse," he begged. "No, the thing I have on hand now is a business proposition. Gilt-edged, you might call it. I ran into a bloke the other day whom I used to know out in Canada."

"I didn't know you had ever been in Canada," I interrupted.

"Of course I've been in Canada. Why, when I left Canada I was seen to the steamer by a couple of policemen. Well, I ran into this bloke in Piccadilly. He was looking rather lost. Couldn't make out what the deuce he was doing over here, because, when I knew him, he hadn't a cent. Well, it seems he got fed up with Canada and went over to America to make his fortune. And he did, first crack out of the box. Bought a bit of land about the size of a pocket handkerchief in Texas or Oklahoma or somewhere, and one morning, when he was hoeing the soil or planting turnips or something, out buzzed a whacking oil well. Apparently that sort of thing's happening every day out there. If I could get a bit of capital together, I'm dashed if I wouldn't go to Texas myself.

"Well, we got talking, and he said that he intended to settle in England. I told him the thing for him to do was to buy a house in the country with a decent bit of shooting, and he said: 'Well, how do you buy a house in the country with a decent bit of shooting?' and I said: 'Leave it in my hands, old horse. I'll see you're treated right.' So he told me to go ahead, and I went to Farmingdon's, the house agent blokes. I said I'd got a millionaire looking for a house in the country. 'Find him one, laddie,' I said, 'and we split the commish.' He said, 'Right-o,' and I expect to hear that he's dug up something suitable. Well, you can see for yourself what that's going to mean."

"You're sure this man has money?"

"Crawling with it, laddie."

I AM bound to admit that I felt easier in my mind, for it really did seem as though the fortunes of Miss Mason rested on firm ground. I had never supposed that Ukridge could be associated with so sound a scheme, and I said so. In fact, I rather overdid my approval, for it encouraged him to borrow another five shillings; and before he left we were in treaty over a further deal which was to entail my advancing him half a sovereign in one solid payment. Business breeds business.

For 10 days I saw nothing of Ukridge. As he was in the habit of making these periodical disappearances, I did not worry, but I was conscious of a mild wonder as to what had become of him. The mystery was solved one night when I was walking through Pall Mall.

I say night, but it was nearly 2 in the morning. The streets were deserted, silence was everywhere, and all London slept, except Ukridge and a friend of his whom I came upon standing outside Hardy's fishing-tackle shop. That is to say, Ukridge was standing outside the shop. His friend was sitting on the pavement with his back against a lamp-post.

He was a man of middle-age, rugged of aspect and grizzled about the temples. I was able to inspect his temples because—doubtless from the best motives—he was wearing his hat on his left foot. He was correctly clad in dress clothes, but his appearance was a little marred by a splash of mud across his shirt-front and the fact that he had either thrown away or been deprived of his tie. He gazed at the hat with a poached egg-like stare. He was the only man I had ever seen who was smoking two cigars at the same time.

Ukridge greeted me with the warmth of a beleaguered garrison welcoming the relieving army.

"MY DEAR old horse! Just the man I wanted!" he cried, as if he had picked me out of a number of competing applicants. "You can give me a hand with Hank, laddie."

"Is this Hank?" I inquired, glancing at the recumbent sportsman.

"Yes, Hank Philbrick. This is the bloke I was telling you about, the fellow who wants the house."

"He doesn't seem to want any house. He looks quite satisfied with the great open spaces."

"Poor old Hank's a bit under the weather," explained Ukridge. "It takes him this way. The fact is, old man, it's a mistake for these blokes to come into money. They overdo things. The only thing Hank ever got to drink for the first 50 years of his life was water, with buttermilk as a treat on his birthday, and he's trying to make up for lost time. He's just discovered that there are such things as liqueurs in the world, and he's making them rather a hobby. Says they're such a pretty color. It wouldn't be so bad if he stuck to one at a time, but he likes making experiments. Orders the whole lot and blends them in a tankard. Well, I mean to say," said Ukridge reasonably, "you can't take more than five or six tankards of mixed benedictine, chartreuse, kummel, creme de menthe, and old brandy without feeling the strain a bit. Especially if you stoke up on champagne and burgundy."

A strong shudder ran through me at the thought.

"Does he really?"

"Every night for the last two weeks. I've been with him most of the time."

"What plans have you for his future? His immediate future, I mean. Do we remove him somewhere, or is he going to spend the night here under the quiet stars?"

"I thought if you would lend a hand, old man, we could get him to the Carlton. He's staying there."

I lent a hand, and we went.

THE effect which that encounter had upon me was to cement the impression that in acting as agent for Mr. Philbrick in the purchase of a house, Ukridge was onto a good thing. What I had seen of Hank had convinced me that he was not the man to be finicky about price. Ukridge would undoubtedly make enough out of his share of the commission to pay off Dora Mason's hundred without feeling it. Indeed, for the first time in his life, he would probably be in possession of that bit of capital of which he was accustomed to speak so wistfully. I ceased, therefore, to worry about Miss Mason's future and concentrated on my own troubles.

They would probably have seemed to anyone else minor troubles, but they were big enough to depress me. Two days after my meeting with Ukridge and Mr. Philbrick in Pall Mall, I had received a rather disturbing letter.

There was a paper for which I did occasional work and wished to do more; and the editor had sent me a ticket for the forthcoming dance of the Pen and Ink Club, with instructions to let him have a column and a half of descriptive matter. After I had digested the pleasant reflection that here was a bit of cash dropping on me out of a clear sky, I realized why the words Pen and Ink Club seemed to have a familiar ring. It was the club of which Ukridge's Aunt Julia was president, and the thought of a second meeting with that uncomfortable woman filled me with a deep gloom. I had not forgotten my encounter with her in her drawing room at Wimbledon.

I was not in a financial position, however, to refuse, so the thing had to be gone through; but the prospect damped me. I was still brooding on it when a violent ring at the front doorbell broke in on my meditations. It was followed by the booming of Ukridge's voice. A moment later he had burst into the room. His eyes were wild, his pince-nez at an angle of forty-five and his collar separated from his stud by a gap of several inches. His whole appearance clearly indicated some blow of fate, and I was not surprised when his first words revealed an aching heart.

"Hank Philbrick," said Ukridge, "is a son of Belial, a leper and a worm."

"What's happened now?"

"HE'S let me down, the weak-minded Tishbite! Doesn't want that house in the country. My gosh, if Hank Philbrick is the sort of man Canada is producing nowadays, heaven help the British Empire."

"Why did he change his mind?"

Ukridge laughed with a sharp bitterness that nearly cracked the window pane.

"What happened the other night was the cause of the trouble. Naturally, he woke up with a bit of a head."

"I can quite believe it."

"Yes, but my gosh, what's a head! In the old days, he would have gone and worked it off by taking a dose of painkiller and chopping down a half a dozen trees. Now what happens? Having all this money, he wouldn't take a simple remedy like that. No, sir! He went to one of those Harley street sharks who charge a couple of guineas for saying, 'Well, how are we this morning?' A fatal move, laddie. Naturally, the shark was all over him. Told him he ought to spend six months in a dry, sunny climate. Recommended Egypt. Egypt, for a bloke who lived 50 years thinking that it was a town in Illinois. Well, he's gone for six months, doesn't want a place in England, and I hope he gets bitten by a crocodile. And the lease ready to sign. Upon my Sam, it's a little hard. Sometimes I wonder whether it's worth while going on struggling."

A somber silence fell upon us.

"What will your friend Dora do now?" I asked, at length.

"That's what's worrying me," said Ukridge. "I've been trying to think of some other way of raising that hundred, but I don't mind confessing I am baffled. I can see no daylight."

Nor could I.

"ODD, the way things happen," I said. I gave him the editor's letter. "Look at that."

"What's this?"

"He's sending me to do an article on the Pen and Ink Club dance. If only I had never been to see your aunt"——

"And made a mess of it."

"I didn't make a mess of it. It just happened that"——

"All right, laddie, all right," said Ukridge, tonelessly. "Don't let's split straws. The fact remains, whether it's your fault or not, the thing was a complete frost. What were you saying?"

"I was saying that, if only I had never been to your aunt, I could have met her in a perfectly natural way at this dance."

"Done Young Disciple stuff," said Ukridge, seizing on an idea. "Rubbed in the fact that you could do her a bit of good by boosting her in the paper."

"And asked her to re-engage Miss Mason as her secretary."

Ukridge fiddled with the letter.

"You don't think even now"——

"No, I don't."

"But consider, laddie," urged Ukridge. "At this dance she may be in a malleable mood. The lights, the music, the laughter, the jollity."

"No," I said. "It can't be done. I can't back out of going to the affair, because I'd never get any more work to do for this paper. But I'll tell you one thing: I mean to keep clear of your aunt. I dream of her sometimes, and wake up screaming. In any case, it wouldn't be any use tackling her. She wouldn't listen to me. You weren't at Wimbledon, but you can take it from me that I'm not one of her friends."

"That's the way it always happens," sighed Ukridge. "Everything comes too late. Well, I'll be popping off. Lot of heavy thinking to do, laddie."

And he left without borrowing even a cigar, a sure sign that his resilient spirit was crushed beyond recuperation.

THE dance of the Pen and Ink Club was held at the Lotus Rooms, Knightsbridge. The Pen and Ink evidently went in for quality in its membership rather than quantity; and the band, when I arrived, was giving out the peculiarly tinny sound which bands always produce in very large rooms that are only one-sixth part full. The air was chilly and desolate and a gen-

Mrs. Dumbly

Number, Please?
Life Is a Struggle.
Phone, Laundry and Car.
She Does Get All Mixed Up.

IT WAS all very well for the poet to write, "Tell me not in mournful numbers," but I'd like to know how it's possible to tell anything nowadays without telling it in numbers! And mournful ones at that! Now, what could be more mournful than a laundry number when you can't locate the article it belongs to?

I discussed this very subject with the laundry yesterday morning—that is, after central and I had played a little game for 15 minutes, she saying over and over again, "Number, plee-eze?" and I replying: "Dingbat 1323." The object of the game was to see if she could keep me from talking to the laundry.

Just as I thought she was going to win and was about to give up the struggle I heard from the other end of the wire a voice so bland and sweet that I knew it must come from the complaint department.

"This is Mrs. Dumbly," I said. "I sent you my luncheon set."

"What's your number?" she inquired, her voice becoming even more candylike.

"Dougout 2201."

"That's not one of our numbers."

"I didn't say it was! That's my own number. It's always been my number. It was given to me personally, a long time ago! I've had it ever since we had our phone installed!"

"I didn't ask for your telephone number," in a voice so thick with sweetness that I was afraid it might go to sugar. "I want your laundry number—the one we gave your clothes."

"YOU didn't give my clothes one number. You gave them three or four," I replied. "Wait a minute: I'll read several of them from my handkerchief. One is D 6603. That's the last one you gave me when you became capricious and decided to change the decorations on my clothes. If you'll look at the napkins you've been keeping for the last two weeks you'll find it sewed on the fringe and"—

"I'll give you another department," she interrupted.

"I don't want you to give me another department: I want you to give me my luncheon set," I insisted. But they gave me department after department until I had repeated my numbers so many times that I knew them by heart, which was at least a small compensation for my not finding out anything about the napkins.

I was still wondering how I could find them when the telephone rang and a voice asked: "What is the license number of your car?"

"D 6603," I replied promptly. "Er—no, wait! It's 7621. Er—no, I beg your pardon. Those are my clothes. It's A 73-765."

"I just want to warn you," continued the voice. "It's been parked on Mudbottom street over an hour, and there's a tag on it."

I hurried out to find that Artie had left our poor Gaseater six out there alone so long that a policeman had left a notice on it—No. 8934.

After I had taken it down to the police station and paid its bill and received receipt 8934, I decided to compensate it for the humiliation it had undergone by paying the month's installment on it, and so I drove it over to the place where Artie always goes.

I HAD looked in my bankbook, No. 67890, to see if I had the funds, and was about to make out check No. 345 when the girl at the desk popped at me: "What's your note number?"

"No. 8934," I said. "Oh, no, that's my number at the police court—the number I'm arrested with. I don't know what number I pay bills with. I suppose my complaint number wouldn't do, would it?

"I have it here in my purse, and the number of my library card, 6536."

But she refused to let me pay until she could identify me with figures, and I left.

I thought I might calm myself and forget all about it if I went over to Madame Marie's French Shoppe and tried on a dress I'd been thinking of buying. But I found that nobody there knew anything about it.

"What saleslady showed it to you?" Mr. O'Conner, who owns the shoppe, inquired. "Do you remember her number? Was it 20? Or could it have been 21 or 23 or 19?"

But none of them knew anything about it. Even 18, who knew all there was to know about the stock, couldn't imagine what dress it might be.

"What size do you wear?" she asked.

By this time my head felt as if the contents of an arithmetic book had been poured into it, but I tried my best to figure out what figures made up my figure.

"I think I wear bust measure D 6603," I said. "No, no; A 73-675. Does that sound right, or do I look more like an 8934? Maybe it's five double A, or D 7621. I don't know! I give up! If you can find out who waited on me call Mrs. Artie Dumbly—14 and a half."

At that Mr. O'Conner beamed. "Artie Dumbly! I know him. He's A No 1."

"What! My husband, too! How dare you! I'll never come inside your store again!"

I suppose he doesn't know what he said that offended me, but I do!

A Divorce Suit.
High Official Named.
Chicago Scene of Trial.
Co-respondents Fill Hotels.

THIS chapter is one I would not hav written but for the insistence of m relatives and friends who are aware o the injustice done me by the press and hav persuaded me that it is only fair to mysel and them that I state, for once and all, th true facts of the case.

The subject is my divorce from my firs wife, Hugga Much, or rather (thanks to perjured evidence and a "Judge" so crooked that the State Automobile Association had fairly plastered his body with signs reading: "Danger! Reverse Curve Ahead!") her divorce from me.

We had been married only a few years when the storm broke. We were living in Gluten, N. Y., and while nominally proprietors of the postoffice there, were cleaning up a tidy fortune through the barter of dog muzzles, assorted leashes and fleabane. It netted us so little profit to conduct the regular business of a postoffice that we had discouraged Glutenites from buying such things as envelopes and stamps, telling them either that we were just out of those commodities or that the ones we had in stock were infected, or otherwise damaged.

This finally, through some jealous busybody, was called to the attention of Postmaster-General Basil Paunch, and that official personally came up from Washington to investigate. At his first sight of Hugga he forgot all about the business that had brought him and fell violently in love. His love was returned and one day I stumbled upon the ungainly pair playing "Nine Men's Morris" at the municipal filling station. To avoid a scene, I ordered Paunch to visit me at my office, and when I met him there, we had quite a talk.

HE TOLD me it got awfully hot in Washington in the summer months, but the springs and falls were lovely and the winters much milder than in New York. The principal streets, he said, were named after states or letters of the alphabet.

(Editor's note: My sister Cora, who visited Washington at the time of President McKinley's inauguration, wrote me that G street was one of the main business thoroughfares.)

(Author's note: It was, and still is.)

(Editor's note: It was during this trip that Cora became acquainted with Wayne Pardee.)

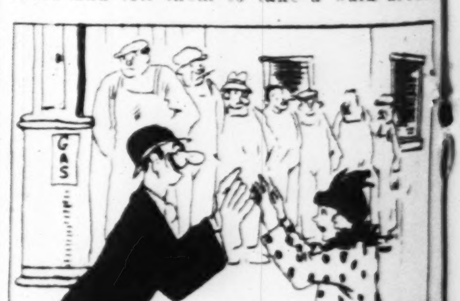
(Author's note: Not the Wayne Pardee!)

(Editor's note: A nephew.)

I started my divorce suit in Sullivan County, but my wife asked for a change of venue, as the doctor said it would do her good. Neither of us had ever been to Chicago for a really long stay, so we chose the Crescent City for the scene of action. We found it much the same as New York except that the citizens carried muskets instead of canes. State street had just been provided with a blazing new system of lights as a result of complaints of machine gunners that because of poor visibility, hundreds of harmless matricides had been mistaken for bystanders and shot down or up.

ON THE day preceding the opening of the case, 46 special trainloads of co-respondents reached the city. In the forenoon they were received by the then Mayor, Gifford Pelk, and given the keys to their trunks, which had been opened by mistake. A tour of the stockyards and breweries took up the balance of the day and then came the problem of sleeping accommodations. Even with cots lining all the halls, the hotels were unable to take care of the co-respondents named either by Hugga or me, and a panic was averted only by a great idea born in the brain of a well-known newspaper man.

"First," he said, "get everybody to bed that has a bed. Then assemble the leftovers and tell them to take a walk around the block. Thus they will all be provided with a lodging."



"Where?" inquired a man with a pointed beard.

"In the morgue," he replied.

"One time," put in another stranger, "we had a case somewhat similar to this in my home town, Cincinnati. There were so many co-respondents that the hotels could not accommodate half of them. So a committee of citizens went to the outskirts of town and put up tents for the overflow. They called it the Tent City."

"That wouldn't do here," said he.

"Why not?" asked the stranger.

"Because Chicago is the second city, not the tent."

eral melancholy seemed to prevail. The few couples dancing on the broad acres of floor appeared somber and introspective. Around the room on those gilt chairs which are only seen in subscription-dance halls, weird beings were talking in undertones, probably about the trend of Scandinavian literature.

THAT hopelessness which afflicted me was not heightened by the reflection that at any moment I might encounter Miss Julia Ukridge. I moved warily about the room, like a cat that has wandered into a strange alley and sees in every shadow the potential hurler of a half-brick. I could envisage nothing but awkwardness and embarrassment springing from such a meeting. The lesson which I had drawn from my previous encounter with her was that happiness for me lay in keeping as far away from Miss Julia Ukridge as possible.

"Excuse me!"

My precautions had been in vain. She had sneaked up on me from behind.

"Good evening," I said.

It is never any good rehearsing these scenes in advance. They always turn out so differently. I had been assuming, when I slunk into this hall, that if I met this woman I should feel the same shrinking sense of guilt and inferiority which had proved so disintegrating at Wimbledon. I had omitted to make allowances for the fact that that painful episode had taken place on her own ground, and that right from the start my conscience had been far from clear. Tonight the conditions were different.

"Are you a member of the Pen and Ink Club?" said Ukridge's aunt frostily.

Her stony blue eyes were fixed on me with an expression that was not exactly loathing, but rather contempt. So might a fastidious cook look at a black beetle in her kitchen.

"No," I replied, "I am not."

"Then will you please tell me what you are doing here? This is a private dance."

One has one's moments. I felt much as I presume Battling Billson must have felt in his recent fight with Alf Todd, when he perceived his antagonist advancing upon him wide-open, inviting the knockout-punch.

"The editor of Society sent me a ticket. He wanted an article written about it."

IF I WAS feeling like Mr. Billson, Ukridge's aunt must have felt very like Mr. Todd. I could see that she was shaken. In a flash I had changed from a black beetle to a godlike creature, able, if conciliated, to do a bit of that log-rolling which is so dear to the heart of the female novelist. And she had not conciliated me. It is too much to say that her jaw fell, but certainly the agony of this black moment caused her lips to part in a sort of twisted despair. But there was good stuff in this woman. She rallied gamely.

"A press ticket," she murmured.

"A press ticket," I echoed.

"May I see it?"

"Certainly."

"Thank you."

"Not at all."

She passed on.

I resumed my inspection of the dancers with a lighter heart. In my present uplifted mood they did not appear so bad as they had a few minutes back.

"Excuse me!"

I had thought that I was finished with this sort of thing for the evening, and I turned with a little impatience. It was a refined tenor voice that had addressed me, and it was a refined, tenor-looking man whom I saw. He was young and fattish, with a Jovian coiffure and pince-nez attached to a black cord.

"Pardon me," said this young man, "but are you a member of the Pen and Ink Club?"

"No, thank heaven!" I replied.

"Then what"——

"Press ticket," I explained.

"Press ticket? What paper?"

"Society."

There was nothing of the Julia Ukridge spirit in this young man, no ingrained pride which kept him aloof and outwardly indifferent. He beamed like the rising sun. He grasped my arm.

"MY DEAR fellow!" he exclaimed, and clutched my arm more firmly, lest I elude him. "My dear fellow, I really must apologize. I would not have questioned you, but there are some persons present who were not invited. I met a man only a moment ago who said that he had bought a ticket. Some absurd mistake. There were no tickets for sale. I was about to question him further, but he disappeared into the crowd and I have not seen him since. This is a private dance, open only to members of the club. Come with me, my dear fellow, and I will give you a few particulars which you may find of use for your article."

He led me into a small room off the floor, closed the door to prevent escape, and, on the principle on which you rub a cat's paws with butter to induce it to settle down in a new home, began to fuss about with whisky and cigarettes.

"Do, do sit down."

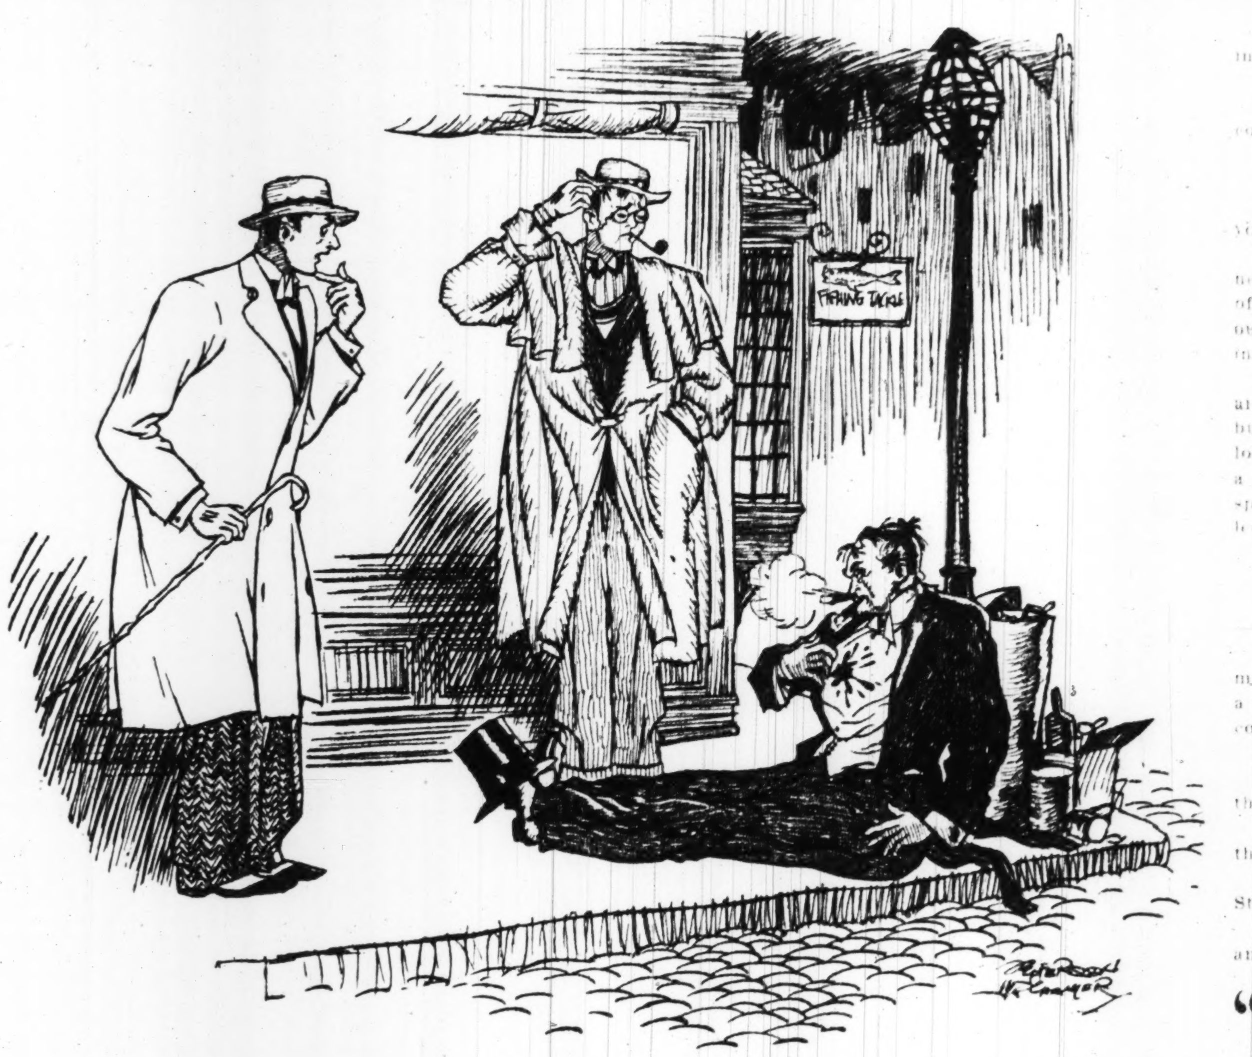
I sat down.

"First about this club. The Pen and Ink Club is the only really exclusive organization of its kind in London. We are to the literary world what Brooks' and the Carlton are to the social. Members are elected solely by invitation. We have exactly 100 members, and we include only writers who, in our opinion, possess vision."

"I know Miss Ukridge, the president," I said.

A faint, almost imperceptible shadow passed over the stout young man's face. There was a rather flat note in his voice.

"Ah, yes," he said. "Julia Ukridge. A dear soul, but, between ourselves, not a great deal of help in an executive capacity."



"Is this Hank?" I enquired, gazing at the recumbent sportsman.

"No?"

"No. In confidence, I do all the work. I am the club's secretary. My name, by the way, is Charlton Prout. You may know it?"

He eyed me wistfully, and I felt that something ought to be done about him. He was much too sleek, and he had no right to do his hair like that.

"Of course," I said. "I have read all of your books."

"Really?"

"'A Shriek in the Night,' 'Who Killed Jasper Blossom?'—all of them."

He stiffened austerely.

"You must be confusing me with some other—ah—writer," he said. "My work is on somewhat different lines. The reviewers usually describe the sort of thing I do as Pastels in Prose. My best-liked book, I believe, is 'Gray Myrtles.' Dunstable's brought it out last year. It was exceedingly well received. And I do a good deal of critical work for the better class of review." He paused. "If you think it would interest your readers," he said, with a deprecating wave of the hand, "I will send you a photograph. Possibly your editor would like to use it."

"I bet he would."

"A photograph somehow seems to—as it were—set off an article of this kind."

"That," I replied cordially, "is what it doesn't do nothing else but."

"And you won't forget 'Gray Myrtles?' Well, if you have finished your cigarette, we might be returning to the ballroom. These people rather rely on me to keep things going, you know."

A BURST of music greeted us as he opened the door. I had an odd feeling that it sounded different. That tinny sound had gone from it. And as we debouched from behind a potted palm and came in sight of the floor, I realized why.

The floor was full. It was crammed, jammed, overflowing. Where couples had moved as single spies, they were now in battalions. The place was alive with noise and laughter. These people might, as my companion had said, be relying on him to keep things going, but they seemed to have been getting along uncommonly well in his absence. I surveyed the mob in astonishment. I could not make the man's figures balance.

"I thought you said the Pen and Ink Club had only a hundred members."

The secretary was fumbling for his glasses.

"It—it has," he stammered.

"Well, reading from left to right, I make it nearer 700."

"I cannot understand it."

"Perhaps they have been having a new election and letting in some writers without vision. I suggest it," as we watched them.

I was aware of Miss Ukridge bearing down upon us.

"Mr. Prout!"

The talented young author leaped convulsively.

"Yes, Miss Ukridge?"

"Who are all these people?"

"I—I don't know," said the talented young man.

"You don't know! It's your business to know. You are the secretary of the club. I suggest that you find out who they are and what they imagine they are doing here."

The secretary had something of the air of a man leading a forlorn hope, but he went at it bravely. A serene-looking man with a light mustache and a made-up tie was passing, and he sprang upon him like a stoutish leopard.

"Excuse me, sir."

"Eh?"

"Will you kindly—would you mind—pardon me if I ask"——

"What are you doing here?" demanded Miss Ukridge, cutting in with a masterful impatience. "How do you come to be at this dance?"

The man seemed surprised.

"Who, me?" he said. "I came with the rest of 'em."

"What do you mean, the rest of them?"

"The members of the Warner's Stores Social and Outing Club."

"But this is the dance of the Pen and Ink Club," bleated Mr. Prout.

"SOME mistake," said the other. "It's a bloomer of some kind. Here," he added, beckoning to a portly gentleman of middle age, who was bustling by, "you'd better have a talk with our hon. sec. He'll know. Mr. Biggs, this gentleman seems to think there's been some mistake about this dance."

Mr. Biggs stopped, looked and listened. Seen at close range, he had a forceful, determined air. I liked his looks.

"What are you doing here?" moaned Mr. Prout, in a voice like the wind in the tree-tops. "This is a private dance."

"Nothing of the kind," said Mr. Biggs. "I personally bought tickets for all my members."

"But there were no tickets for sale. The dance was for the exclusive"——

"It's perfectly evident that you have come to the wrong hall or chosen the wrong evening," snapped Miss Ukridge, abruptly superseding Mr. Prout in the supreme command. I did not blame her for feeling a little impatient. The secretary was handling the campaign very feebly.

The man behind the Warner's Stores Social and Outing Club cocked a polite but belligerent eye at this new enemy. I liked his looks more than ever. This was a man who would fight it out on these lines if it took all the summer.

"I have not the honor of this lady's acquaintance," he said, smoothly, but with a gradually reddening eye. The Biggses, that eye seemed to say, were loath to war upon women, but if the women asked for it they could be men of iron, ruthless. "Might I ask who this lady is?"

"This is our president."

"Happy to meet you, ma'am."

"Miss Ukridge," added Mr. Prout, completing the introduction.

The name appeared to strike a chord in Mr. Biggs. He bent forward and a gleam of triumph came into his eyes.

"Ukridge, did you say?"

"Miss Julia Ukridge."

"Then it's all right," said Mr. Biggs. "There's been no mistake. I bought our tickets from a gentleman named Ukridge. I got 700 at 5 bob apiece, reduction for taking a quantity and 10 per cent discount for cash. If Mr. Ukridge acted contrary to instructions, it's too late to remedy the matter now. You should have made it clear to him what you wanted him to do before he went and did it."

With this sound sentiment, the honorary secretary of the Warner's Stores Social and Outing Club turned on the heel of his shiny dancing pump and was gone. And I, too, sauntered away. There seemed nothing to keep me. As I went, I looked over my shoulder. The author of "Gray Myrtles" appeared to be entering upon what promised to be a painful tete-a-tete. My heart bled for him. If ever a man was blameless, Mr. Prout was: but the president of the Pen and Ink Club was not the woman to allow a trifle like that to stand in her way.

"OH, IT just came to me, laddie," said Stanley Featherstonehaugh Ukridge modestly, interviewed later by our representative. "You know me. One moment mind a blank, then—bing!—some colossal idea. It was your showing me that ticket for the dance that set me thinking. And I happened to meet a bloke in the pub who worked in Warner's Stores. Told me their Social and Outing Club was working up for its semi-annual beano. One thing led to another. I got him to introduce me to the hon. sec., and we came to terms. I liked the man, laddie. We settled the details in no time. Well, I don't mind telling you, Corky, my boy, that at last, for the first time in many years, I begin to see my way clear. I've got a bit of capital now. After sending Dora her hundred I shall have at least 50 quid left over. Fifty quid. My dear old son, you may take it from me that there's no limit—absolutely no limit—to what I can accomplish with 50 o'goblins in my kick. From now on I see my way clear. My feet are on solid ground. The world, laddie, is my oyster. Nothing can stop me from making a colossal fortune. I'm not exaggerating, old horse—a colossal fortune. Why, by a year from now I calculate, at a conservative estimate"——

Our representative then withdrew.

Spider Lovers Who Give Bouquets

Stories of Animal Courtship Related by a Scientist at Oxford Meeting.

OXFORD, England.

HOW spiders present their sweethearts with bouquets was told in a fascinating lecture by Professor Julian Huxley on the courtship of animals, which, with a discussion of heredity, formed part of the program of the British Association one day in its recent meeting at Oxford.

Professor Huxley said: "Perhaps the first adumbration of courtship is seen in the nuptial dances of certain marine bristle worms, in which, at certain seasons of the year and phases of the moon, the creatures swim up out of their crannies in the rocks and gather in groups. Snails, too, have a primitive courtship.

"The first actions, however, to which the name of courtship must be given are those of a few crabs and most spiders.

"The fiddlecrab is characterized by the presence in the male of an enormously enlarged claw. In the mating season, when a female comes past the males throw themselves into a tiptoe attitude, with the large claw held rigidly aloft.

"If the female takes no notice, the male runs to where she can see him, and again strikes a picturesque pose.

"Among the hunter spiders the males perform strange dances before the females. In one type the male offers the female a nice fly, neatly wrapped in silk.

"If put in a box by himself with the fly he will eat it. But if with a female he will wrap the fly up and offer it.

"In a few cases the males stick a leaf or flower petal in a glistening balloon of bubbles as a present. Here we find quite definitely the employment of the nonutilitarian present as a gift from the male to the female."

PROFESSOR HUXLEY also told of birds who hold what one might call "petting parties" and dance together like dervishes.

Extraordinary possibilities of men so specialized in any one trade or profession as to become Robots are conjured up by the result of a six years' experiment on white rats announced to the association by Professor McDougall, the celebrated American psychologist.

The professor, in describing his experiment, said: "I obtained a stock of pure white rats and picked individuals at random. I divided the rats into two groups, one group to be trained to perform a certain task, the other group to be used as a means of comparison.

"I designed a water tank with a small platform at each side of one end. One platform was connected to an electric wire, so that if the rat stepped on it in climbing out of the tank he received a mild shock. There was also an electric light by the shock platform.

"The other platform had no light by it, and a rat was able easily to emerge from the tank by stepping on it. My object was to see if later generations of rats avoided the shock platform more easily than earlier generations.

"If they did, then it seemed clear that they were inheriting a tendency to avoid the lighted and shocking platform.

"I have now reached the seventeenth generation of rats, and I have received a pretty clear-cut result to the effect that the later generations do inherit a tendency to avoid the shock platform." — From the Daily Express, London.

DOUGLAS VOLK, N. A., the distinguished American painter, whose portrait of John Cotton Dana is reproduced upon the front page of this issue of the Sunday Post-Dispatch Magazine by permission of the subject and courtesy of the City Art Museum of St. Louis, where the painting was recently shown, has succeeded not only in representing the features of his distinguished sitter, but in presenting as well the very atmosphere of scholarship and the love of books which are an integral part of Mr. Dana's life and his profession.

Against a background of neutral gray, the sitter is caught in his attitude of work. The fine carnations of the flesh, the modeling of face and hands, and those loose-hung, carelessly worn garments are marks of a master of portraiture. While the very man, himself, is fixed upon the canvas in the firm, high purpose betrayed by the long, thoughtful face with its high forehead, its deep-set eyes and the close-clipped gray moustache.

The painter was born in Pittsfield, Mass., February 23, 1856, the son of Leonard W. Volk, the sculptor. He was a pupil of Gerome in Paris. In 1898 he became an associate and a year later a member of the National Academy. He is the winner of many medals in distinguished competition, including one at the St. Louis Exposition of 1904. And he received in 1921 the Cross of the Order of Leopold from Belgium. From 1886 to 1893 he was director of the Museum of Fine Art at Minneapolis.

His work is represented in the Minnesota capitol at St. Paul and the New York capitol at Albany, in Carnegie Institute, the Metropolitan Museum, the National Gallery, and the Corcoran Gallery at Washington, in the Des Moines, Iowa, Court House, and in several permanent collections of importance. Among his distinguished sitters have been King Albert of Belgium, Lloyd George, General Pershing and Governor Smith of New York.

How the World's Weather Is Gathered Into a Radio Map

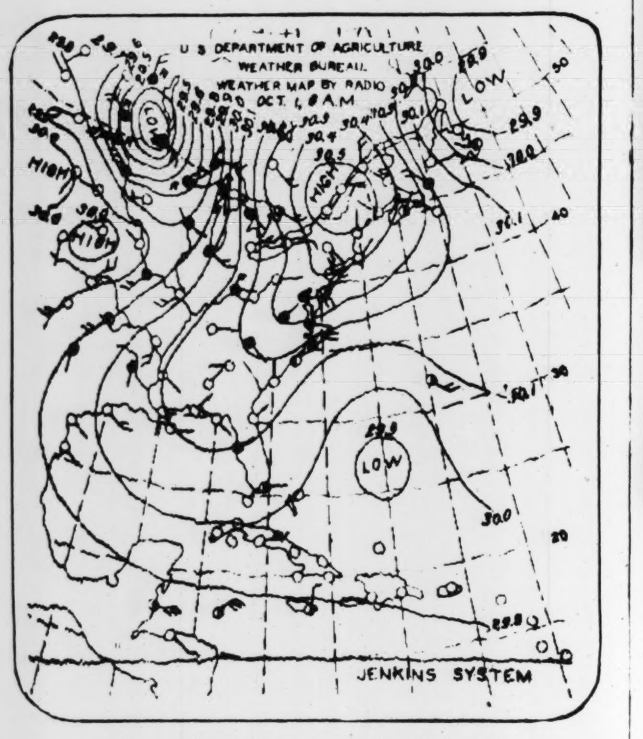
Wireless Has Revolutionized the Forecasting of Weather Conditions by Binding the Meteorologists Closely Together. The War Helped, Too.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, D. C.

THE process of collecting and distributing weather information has been revolutionized by radio. Reports of atmospheric conditions at thousands of places on land and sea are now swiftly assembled at central points in different countries and broadcast at regular intervals. The interchange of current weather news extends over the greater part of the globe, and the forecaster, whose business it is to size up today's weather in order to anticipate tomorrow's, enjoys a bird's-eye view of the atmosphere such as was hardly dreamed of a few years ago. A new era in practical meteorology has dawned with the transmission of weather maps by radio-telegraphy.

Weather travels. Even in the days of Benjamin Franklin the movement of storms from southwest to northeast over Eastern North America was recognized, and in the next generation much was learned about the traveling atmospheric systems that we now call "highs" and "lows." All that was needed to insure the beginning of a weather forecasting service was some means of transmitting information about approaching weather faster than the movement of the weather itself.



A weather map as transmitted by radio.

—Photographs by Science Service

During the French Revolution a method of telegraphing by means of semaphores was introduced. A far-seeing meteorologist urged the use of this device for giving advance notice of storms, but the idea was never carried out. Very soon after the electric telegraph came into general use it began to be applied in a small way to the transmission of weather reports. A great calamity is generally needed to bring about a great reform, and so it was not until a violent storm, in 1854, sank many ships and wrought havoc in the camps of the allied armies engaged in the Crimean War that the world awoke to the necessity of establishing a regular telegraphic storm-warning service. This project was put into operation in Europe in 1855, under the direction of the French astronomer, Le Verrier. Within the next few decades nearly all civilized countries had founded more or less elaborate organizations for collecting weather reports by telegraph, drawing weather maps and distributing, also by telegraph, notice of coming storms and weather changes.

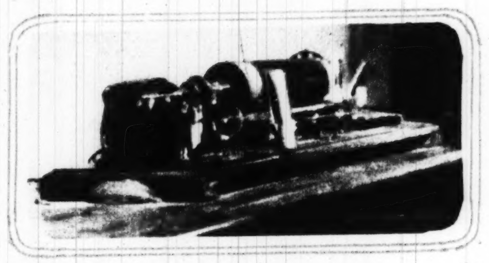
Charting ocean weather in mid-Atlantic aboard the Jacques Cartier.

As atmospheric movements ignore political boundaries, the necessity of an interchange of reports between different countries was recognized from the outset. Before the World War this interchange was effected entirely by wire telegraphy, though radio had been used to some extent in the subsidiary task of collecting weather reports from ships and in the broadcasting of bulletins and forecasts for the benefit of mariners. In America, where reports from the weather stations of the United States and Canada were given precedence of other business by telegraph companies and were sent over prearranged circuits, the telegraphic system was quite efficient. In the Old World, however, delays in transmission were so great that the report of a weather station was often many hours old before it reached some of the forecasting centers, and the forecasts based on such reports were equally slow in reaching the public. There was also a somewhat meager interchange of weather reports by cable between continents and islands. This enabled the United States Weather Bureau, just before the war, to undertake the publication of a daily telegraphic weather map of the Northern Hemisphere, but it was far less complete and up-to-date than the maps of the same area that can now be prepared with the aid of radio.

DURING the war meteorologists in Europe were called upon to keep a vast fleet of aircraft informed concerning current and forthcoming weather conditions wherever flights were undertaken, and the old plan of gathering reports of observations by wire proved entirely inadequate for this purpose. Not only did the aeronauts demand prompter service than the weather-reporting system had previously rendered, but they also required information at more frequent intervals and in much greater detail. Recourse was had to radio to meet these demands, and the essential features of the system then established were retained by the European meteorological services after the war.

In 1919 an international meteorological conference was held in Paris. At this meeting plans were laid for the European radio weather service practically as it exists today. Each country has a network of weather stations, at which observations are made at prescribed hours, generally four times a day. The reports of these observations are promptly centralized in each of the countries by radio, wire telegraphy or telephone. In some countries, centralization is effected in two stages—district centers collect the reports for their several areas, and then transmit them to the national center

IN ADDITION to these national and international broadcasts of reports that have a general bearing upon the weather of Europe, many bulletins of a more local character are issued from the national centers and elsewhere. These include weather forecasts for particular areas, special information affecting various flying routes (issued, in some cases, at hourly intervals), forecasts and reports for agriculture, data concerning ice in channels and harbors and other miscellaneous announcements having to do in one way or another with weather. Since many of the broadcasts above enumerated require a good deal of time for transmission, the entire program of radio weather messages sent out from European stations is a "continuous performance," from midnight to midnight, and during much of the day entails simultaneous broadcasting from two or more places.



A machine for broadcasting weather maps by radio.

Although other parts of the world do not yet vie with Europe in the multiplicity of their radio weather reports, such reports are now issued on an extensive scale in most civilized countries. The United States Weather Bureau still collects reports from weather stations within its own territory by wire, but receives a great number of reports from outlying regions by radio, and broadcasts weather information on a large scale through naval and commercial radio stations. The broadcasts include data, both in code and in plain language, for the marine and aviation interests, and the twice-daily weather synopses and forecasts with which radio listeners throughout the country are familiar. Canada, Mexico, the West Indies, some South American countries, Australia, New Zealand, China, Japan, British India, the Philippines, South Africa and Madagascar are some of the other regions from which weather data, storm warnings and the like are regularly issued by radio.

Two novel enterprises connected with the world's radio service are the "Floating Weather Bureau" and the radio weather map. During the past five years the French training ship, Jacques Cartier, during frequent voyages back and forth across the Atlantic, has served as a clearing house of weather information for the benefit of mariners and as a means of gathering reports from ships for the use of forecasters on land. Hundreds of such reports are received on board by radio in the course of each voyage, and are charted in conjunction with the reports from land stations on both sides of the Atlantic, and these are broadcast on regular daily schedules. The reports already have proven their value.

BROADCASTING numerical data from which weather maps may be drawn by those who have the time and skill to draw them is of much less benefit to humanity than broadcasting the map itself. The latter feat has lately been achieved through the use of an invention of C. Francis Jenkins of Washington. A complete weather map of Eastern North America and the Western Atlantic is now broadcast daily from the naval radio station at Arlington, and some ships have already installed apparatus for receiving it.

The joint efforts of several countries will, it is hoped, eventually give us a daily "mosaic" radio weather map of the Northern Hemisphere, to which each country will contribute a certain section. Some day we may have one of the world.

You're Losing Half Your Gasoline!

For every ten gallons you buy you are losing five! That's a startling statement, but true! You are getting just half the power, half the mileage you should out of your gasoline! For now an amazing invention—a ridiculously simple little device—makes any car give twice its regular mileage to the gallon! This wonderful invention is the work of Mr. J. A. Stransky of Pukwana, South Dakota. And now the inventor will send you a sample at his own risk. Read his offer below.

One Million Satisfied Users All Over the World

WITH this wonderful new invention auto owners in all parts of the country have chalked up records of from 37 to 51 miles on a gallon of gasoline. Every day we hear of some new record—some difficult feat, such as pulling a car through deep sand, or up a mountain, on half the usual gas.

And now this amazing new invention is making fortunes for agents and distributors. Now you, too, can make big money—just telling your friends about it! J. M. James made $120 in one day! Vernon Gaines netted $94 in eight hours. J. W. Cronk made $51 in just ONE HOUR! You can easily earn astonishing big profits in full or spare time.

FITS ANY MAKE OR MODEL CAR

Here's how this wonderful little device works—how it adds more power and mileage to any make or model car. Every carburetor is adjusted to make starting easy. But once the engine gets heated up the mixture is far too rich, resulting in faulty explosion. Half the gasoline is drawn into the cylinders in a raw state, and, instead of exploding, it burns. This causes a heavy deposit of carbon.

But with this startling little device in a car all this is changed. As soon as the engine warms up this device automatically begins to admit a much larger volume of air, thoroughly vaporizing all the gasoline, giving it fully 50% more power—breaking it up so that it explodes instead of burning.

51 MILES ON A GALLON

This wonderful little device cuts the cost of gasoline in half by making practically any car give twice its regular mileage to the gallon.

32 Miles With Buick

Vaporizers installed on both Buick and Ford and are doing wonderful work, getting 32 miles on Buick and 51 miles with Ford.—Harvey C. Hipple, Pa.

Dodge Goes 40 Miles

I must say the Vaporizer I used on my Dodge is all you say it is. I made over 40 miles per gallon between Brownsville and Tampico, Mexico.—T. L. Brown, Texas.

Battling Nelson Says "It's the Goods!"

The Vaporizer is the best thing I ever saw and I have seen many good things in my life. If I don't have a Stransky Vaporizer on every car in Hegewisch I miss my guess. I daresay most of the public know me well enough to know that I never bunked them in my life, and when I say the Stransky Vaporizer is what you say it is, I mean it. —(Signed) Battling Nelson, Hegewisch, Ill.

Used in the United States, Alaska, China, Africa and sixty-nine other foreign countries.

A CARBON REMOVER

Not only does this invention save half the gasoline, but it also saves the expense and time of having carbon scraped out—a job costing from $5 to $25.

INTRODUCTORY SAMPLE OFFER

To introduce this new invention, Mr. Stransky, the inventor, will send a sample at his own risk. Not only that, but he will actually pay you for testing his Vaporizer if you are not delighted with it! Write at once for his proposition.

SALESMEN MAKE BIG MONEY

The demand for the Stransky Vaporizer is enormous. Agents handling this device are simply coining money. Every auto owner in the country—and there are twenty million of them—wants this splendid new invention the minute he sees it. You can sell from five to twenty in one demonstration. Splendid for spare time work. Many former agents are cleaning up enormous incomes as distributors and crew managers. Farmers with no sales experience are sending in orders in 100 lots, netting them two to three hundred dollars. This may sound like big money. It is big money—it is a big proposition—the biggest ever brought to your attention.

Just send the coupon at once for full details of our introductory sample offer. Be the man to cash in big in your community. Mail the coupon right now—today.

Man Sells 5000 Vaporizers

I received my beautiful new Chrysler Coach today, and indeed, I thank you very much for keeping your promise to reward me with this fine car, upon my selling 5000 Stransky Vaporizers. Motorists everywhere are anxious to buy this remarkable invention of yours. It increases their gasoline mileage, greatly reduces carbon trouble, peps up their motors and saves money for them. I made lots of sales on account of satisfied users recommending other car owners to me.—C. O. Carlson.

The Stransky Vaporizer is one of the biggest sales propositions of the century—you can make big money quick. But don't take our word for it. Read what these men say:

J. W. Cronk made $51 in one hour. He says, "the results of one hour's work—17 men gave me orders for the vaporizers."

$120 in One Day!

I have found out that the Stransky will do what you said it would. I took forty orders in one day and wasn't out long. My Ford runs better than it ever did. I can save half the gas and it pulls better.—J. M. James.

$48 in 3 Hours!

My gas bill has been cut nearly in half. I have removed every particle of carbon from my engine. Since I installed it, my engine runs as good as new, starts easier and quicker. I went out Saturday about three hours and secured 16 orders.—J. A. Williams.

My profits for one day were $147.50. In one week I made $280.00. Yes, I am always on the job.—S. E. Herrick, Ore.

Putting REM in the "king" row!

They're on opposite sides playing checkers but on the same side when it comes to how to "check" a cough. REM for them every time!

Now Mr. Richard Griffiths of 2420 Seymour Ave. and Mr. Arthur E. Gutheil of 2534 Poplar St., New York City, will tell you why they think REM is the champion of cough "checkers:"

Says Mr. Griffiths:

"I'm rather subject to coughs. A neighbor of mine first told me about REM, so I went to the drug store and bought a bottle. I was surprised the quick results I got. My cough didn't last long after that. Now all the family—mother, father and sister use it whenever they need a cough medicine."

Says Mr. Gutheil:

"Last winter I had a cough that was rather hard to get rid of. I had tried quite a number of cough remedies and as I had seen so many REM ads in the Subway and in the newspapers, I decided to get a bottle and try it. I started to take REM the evening I got it and the next day already I was much better."

So many who have tried REM speak of the quick relief it brings. This quick action is largely due to a special ingredient in REM---effective, harmless--- that is not found in ordinary cough syrups. Clinging to your throat as it is swallowed, REM spreads a soothing, healing film over the inflamed and irritated membranes.

No Opiates in REM. And it is pleasant to take.

Ask your druggist for REM—the dark blue package with the large orange circle. If it doesn't help you, you can have your money back. Fair enough!

WATCH YOUR THROAT!

Don't let it become serious!

As you probably know, certain harmful bacteria are constantly present in the mouth and throat. And unless proper precautions are employed these disease germs may often get the upper hand and multiply more rapidly than nature can fight them off.

At such times your throat becomes irritated —Nature's way of telling you there is danger ahead.

Particularly at this time of year everyone should watch the throat very carefully. The ideal mouth and throat protection is the systematic use of Listerine, the safe antiseptic.

Its regular use by the entire family, as a mouth wash and gargle, is an easy way to be on the safe side.

Also, then you will be on the polite side in regard to that insidious condition, halitosis (unpleasant breath). — Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, U. S. A.

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active, daily releasing new stores of energy.

Eat two or three cakes regularly every day, one before each meal: on crackers, in fruit juices, water or milk—or just plain, in small pieces. For constipation dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before meals and at bedtime. Dangerous habit-forming cathartics will gradually become unnecessary. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. "I BROKE OUT FROM HEAD TO FOOT with skin eruptions. My entire body was covered with angry welts. I could not rest at night and during the day was so tortured that I expected to lose my mind. Finally someone suggested Fleischmann's Yeast. I took three cakes a day and now I am well. That was three years ago, and I have not had any skin trouble since. I cannot say too much in the praise of Fleischmann's Yeast."

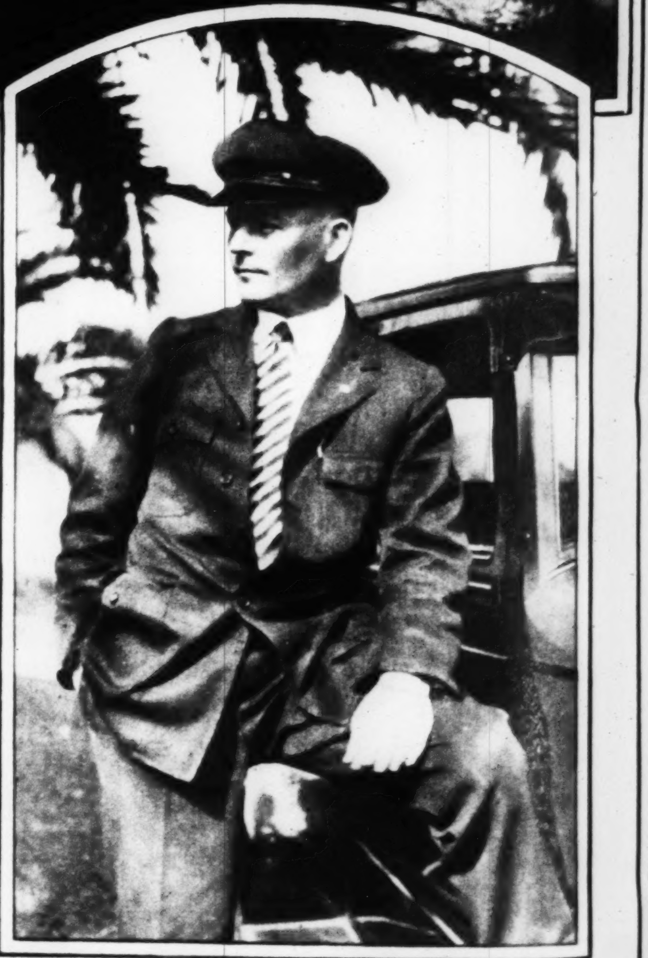
Mrs. Frank C. Mehrling, Baltimore, Md.

"MY LITTLE BOY WAS AFFLICTED WITH A SEVERE CASE OF CONSTIPATION. I started feeding him Fleischmann's Yeast cakes each day. This seemed to supply some deficiency in his diet. In a few weeks, the constipation began to disappear. Now elimination is regular and there is no trace of the old trouble left. The boy is a fine, sturdy fellow now—and the credit is due to Fleischmann's Yeast."

Mrs. B. Hardenbrook, Stanford, Mont.

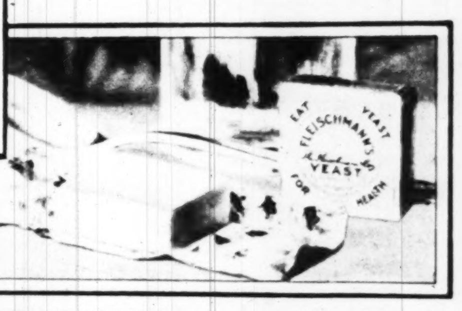
"AFTER SUFFERING FOR YEARS FROM SICK HEADACHES brought on by stomach trouble, I was advised by a Denver doctor to eat Yeast. I began eating Fleischmann's Yeast three times daily. I have been free from headaches for several months, and there is no reason to doubt that Yeast did for my stomach trouble what all other remedies failed to do."

Edward A. Sproul, Denver, Colo.



"I HAVE BEEN A CHAUFFEUR FOR TWENTY YEARS. Sitting in a car for ten or twelve hours a day with practically no physical exercise finally told on my system. I had severe pains in my intestines. A friend learning of my plight advised Fleischmann's Yeast. I tried it and in two months I was absolutely a different person. The pains disappeared. I was entirely well."

R. S. Burnwood, Venice, Calif.



THIS FAMOUS FOOD tones up the entire system—aids digestion—clears the skin—banishes constipation.

"HAVE A CAMEL" IS MUSIC TO YOUR EARS

Camel is totally different from any other smoke. . . . It is more than a cigarette. . . . A lighted Camel is smoking enjoyment realized—the closest thing to the perfection of taste this old earth ever knew.

Camel's popularity has no equal. Camel demand exceeds any other cigarette preference ever known. To say "Camel" is to ask for the world's most popular cigarette. And to light a Camel is to taste the best.

For there's a solid reason back of the fame and the enjoyment of Camels. Quality. Camels are rolled of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos money can buy . . . blended for matchless taste and fragrance.

If you would know how mild and mellow a smoke can really be, just treat yourself to a pack of Camels. Once you know what these words mean, they're music . . . "Have a Camel!"

CHRISTMAS
1926

Perfect dance music possessed with the very spirit of Terpsichore—with a richness, a sparkle, a rhythm that only really great dance pianists achieve.

Today the DUO-ART
Makes Christmas Merry

THE DUO-ART Reproducing Piano will insure a Merry Christmas, most surely. For music and merriment go hand-in-hand. But it will do far more than this. The character or kind of music that the Duo-Art provides is distinctive—different from that furnished by any other instrument. It is the actual living playing of real pianists reproduced.

To possess the Duo-Art is to possess the power to summon practically all the well-known pianists of the world to play your piano for you. Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer and other famous artists will perform superb concert pieces that the public pays hundreds of thousands of dollars annually to hear them play. George Gershwin, Phil Ohman and other celebrated dance pianists will play all the latest favorites as no amateur can play them. Specialists in all classes of music are always at your call to suit every mood and every occasion.

Whether you give a magnificent Period Grand Model of the Duo-Art or a very modest-priced Upright, the main character of the gift is the same. You are bestowing the priceless privilege of enjoying at will the art of the world's greatest pianists. And you are insuring for someone endless days of entertainment, inspiration and enjoyment.

Get my free book. It tells you how to build steam shovels, dredges, automobiles, aeroplanes engines — 1000 working models all from one marvelous construction toy

JUST think of the fun that is waiting for you when you read about these marvelous working models of the greatest engineering feats—trains, drawbridges, steam shovels, concrete mixers, diggers, lighthouses, engines, motors, dynamos, railroad signals. And when you actually own a new Erector Set and make these wonderful models, the best fun is yet to come because the powerful Erector electric motor makes them whiz and spin just like real ones.

You'll get the thrill of your life when the motor starts to purr and the model which you have built with your own hands starts working—oh, boy! how you will shout.

① Erector Scoop. Digs into the ground and dumps contents into Erector Truck. You can make dozens of digging machines with this scoop.

② Erector Square Girder. This big exclusive Erector feature makes Erector so sturdy and strong. They are real girders just like engineers use in making skyscrapers and bridges.

③ Erector Motor. You can make 27 interesting experiments with Erector motor alone. The motor shaft is the same as other shafts. Hitch pulleys to both sides of the motor.

④ Erector Steam Boiler. There is no end to the models that this Erector feature makes possible. Hoisting engines, steamboats, fire engines, horizontal engines, locomotives. The Erector motor furnishes power to make these models go.

Other Erector Features

1—Erector contains more parts, builds more models than any other toy.
2—Erector square girders—an exclusive Erector feature.
3—Erector powerful electric motor—twelve big special exclusive features. (In No. 4 set and up).
4—New Erector Boiler—an exclusive feature (in all sets from the Super-Erector No. 7 up).

10—The New Erector contains the greatest assortment of gears—ten in all—from die-cast, beveled gears, solid brass gears, to the big 50 tooth steel gears.
11—Erector is made from structural steel, plated, enameled and electrically baked.
12—Designed by engineers, used by engineers and endorsed by engineers.
13—The mechanical engineering features of Erector are correct. It is the only perfect method of reproducing engineering feats.
14—It is perfectly interchangeable, owing to the minute details of standardization.

PROGRESS AGAINST LIQUOR RUNNING IS 'INTERESTING IF NOT ENCOURAGING'

Mrs. Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General, Dissatisfied With Laws on Contraband.

COURTS IN CONFLICT OVER SHIP SEIZURES

She Reports, Nevertheless, That 849 American Vessels Were Held During the Last Fiscal Year.

By CHARLES G. ROSS.
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General, in charge of prohibition enforcement, proves herself a realist in her annual report, made public today. Though she sets out certain "noticeable signs of progress in the enforcement of the national prohibition act during the year," she does not blink the difficulties in the way of drying up the United States.

"The progress made by the Government in this suppression of liquor smuggling," says Mrs. Willebrandt, "has been interesting if not encouraging. The law is still unsettled and unsatisfactory."

During the year (the fiscal year ended last June 30), the report shows, 849 American rum-running vessels were seized—330 with cargo and 519 without cargo. The number of liquor-laden vessels seized during the previous year was 516.

Courts Differ on Seizures.

Conflicting opinions have been handed down by Appellate Courts with regard to the right of the Coast Guard and of customs officers to seize American vessels beyond the 12-mile limit. The First Circuit Court of Appeals ruled against the Government in the case of a seizure 24 miles from land, while the Second Circuit Court of Appeals has held that the Coast Guard may arrest an American vessel anywhere on the high seas if there is reasonable ground to suspect the commission of an offense. The question, according to Mrs. Willebrandt, will have to be finally decided by the United States Supreme Court.

Extra-territorial seizure conventions have been negotiated by the United States with eight foreign Governments, but Mrs. Willebrandt points out that most of the courts have held that these conventions are not self-executing and that further legislation by Congress will be necessary before they become of any substantial use.

"One of the outstanding decisions," Mrs. Willebrandt writes, "was rendered in April of this year by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in the Sagatind-Diamantina case. The Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the action of the Court of the Southern District of New York in declining to forfeit the Norwegian steamship Sagatind and the British schooner Diamantina.

No U. S. Laws Covering Cases.

"The ruling of the courts in this case was to the effect that the British-American and Norwegian-American extra-territorial seizure conventions did not have the effect of extending the operating range of the customs and liquor laws of the United States, and that, although the seizure of these two vessels may have been strictly in accord with treaty provisions, there were no existing laws of the United States effective on the high seas under which the seized vessels and their liquor cargoes could be forfeited. The department decided not to file a petition in the Supreme Court for a review of this decision."

Observing that "the rum-running habit on the part of foreign vessels seems to be one hard to break," Mrs. Willebrandt gives a number of instances of vessels that have been seized more than once. For example:

"The British schooner Diamantina has been seized three times. She was apprehended the first time on Oct. 12, 1924, off Sandy Hook and was thereafter released on bond. On April 27, 1925, she was seized 20 miles off the New Jersey coast, having changed her name to the Mousmee and flying the French flag. There was insufficient evidence in the possession of the Government to forfeit the vessel and she was released. On July 30, 1925, she was again seized off Nan-
